COLLAPSES WHEN ARRAIGNED FOR HOTEL SHOOTING

Woman's Plea to Drop Charge for Auld Lang Syne Refused by Craig.

PANIC IN THE WALDROF

Gorgeously Gowned Women Parading "Peacock Alley" Faint in Uproar.

PEN DEFLECTS BULLET

Declares Lawyer Spurned Her, Then Grabbed Weapon She Aimed at Self.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Mary Scott Castle, formerly a society leader of San Francisco, after a night in the Tombs, collapsed in the police courtroom here today after she had been arraigned on a charge of shooting at Attorney William B. Craig last night in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoira.

The break-down followed a touching scene in which Mrs. Castle pleaded with the lawyer, for the sake of their old friendship, to drop his complaint against her and his refusal to grant her request.

Mrs. Castle declared that she had tried to shoot herself, but that the lawyer snatched the revolver and in the struggle it exploded, the bullet striking a silver pen in his pocket and being deflected from his heart.

Held in $3000 Bail.

On the plea of the woman's counsel that she wished to communicate with her brother, Capt. Henry Harrison Scott of the Coast Artillery, at Fort Morgan, Ala., Magistrate Butts fixed Friday as the time for the hearing, holding Mrs. Castle in $3000 bail.

The shooting occurred in "Peacock Alley," as a portion of the lobby is known, and threw scored of gorgeously gowned women parading there into a panic. The women screamed and ran in all directions, trampling on each others' finery and a half dozen fainted in the confusion and were carried to their rooms.

Infatuated, Says Mrs. Craig.

A wild infatuation for Craig on the part of Mrs. Castle was responsible for the attempted murder, according to Mrs. Craig. On the other hand, Mrs. Castle declared Craig had grievously wronged her and, driven to desperation, she had sought to punish him.

Mrs. Castle, who was hysterical most of the night, denied that after firing the first shot she had pursued Craig into the elevator and there tried to again shoot him. She said that when Craig had spurned her on her first approach, she unconsciously walked with him toward the elevator; that when she realized that he would have no more to do with her, she drew the weapon, intending to kill herself, but that Craig grabbed at the pistol and it was discharged, the bullet striking him, but being deflected from any damage by a fountain pen in his vest pocket.

Mrs. Castle said she followed Craig into the elevator and when he said he had been shot, she turned the revolver on herself, but was disarmed before she could take her own life.

Mrs. William B. Craig, wife of the lawyer, who was called to the hotel immediately after the shooting, declared that she and her husband had known Mrs. Castle since all of them were children and declared that Mrs. Castle had been befriended and protected by them for several years.

"But she seemed to be insane upon the subject of possessing my husband," said Mrs. Craig. "I was fully aware of Mrs. Castle's efforts in reference to my husband, as he informed me fully of her actions and of her desires."

Husband in Alaska.

Neville Castle, the prisoner's husband, is believed to be still alive and in business at Nome, Alaska. Mrs. Castle had not heard from him in several years, but acquaintances of his in this city say they have received letters from him recently, and that he is prospering.

The woman is the daughter of H. H. Scott, a prominent merchant of San Francisco, and the sister of Henry Scott, who married the daughter of the late Admiral Sampson. Her marriage in 1897 to Neville Castle, a son of Michael Castle, the latter a leading business man of the Pacific Coast, was a brilliant affair.

Mrs. Castle always had ambitions to become an actress, and shortly after her marriage she gave society a shock by making her debut in San Francisco in 1900 in "The Princess and the Butterfly." She later appeared in vaudeville.

From the West she came to New York, where she appeared at Proctor's in a vaudeville skit called "In Washington's Time." While playing here March 25, 1901, friends of the young woman had police headquarters send out a general alarm for her. She had mysteriously disappeared, and her friends dreaded suicide. She finally returned to her friends and little was heard of her until the shooting.

When arraigned in court Mrs. Castle gave her age as 36, and said that she was an insurance agent. She was becomingly clad in a gown of plaid when she came to court, and wore a veil, which she was not asked to remove dur-

BALD HEADED MAN PAINTS PICTURE OF SPIDER ON HIS ARID PATE TO SCARE FLIES

Though Barren Without, Interior of Otis E. Gillette's Cranium Is Fruitful.

WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 4.

OTIS E. Gillette, an enterprising porter at the Highland Lake Hotel, is baldheaded. Flies have made his bald dome their favorite alighting place.

Gillette, of ingenious turn, has had a large spider painted on his bald crown, and now, he says the flies don't bother him.

LIVER AND HEART WRONGLY PLACED; THIS IS NATURE'S ERROR, NOT THE BUTCHER'S

John Stumbaugh's Center of Circulation Is on Right Side, Which Is the Wrong Side.

John Stumbaugh, who says he always knew his heart was on the right side, which, for a heart, is the wrong side, was much surprised when City Hospital physicians informed him Wednesday that other organs were transposed.

"Your heart," said the doctors, "is on the right side."

"Nothing new about that," said Stumbaugh. "I'm 40 years old, and it's been on that side for 40 years. I knew that long ago."

"Did you know that your liver is on the left side?" asked one of the doctors.

"Never thought anything about its location. Shouldn't it be there?" the patient asked.

"No; it should be on the right side, and your spleen, which should be on the left, is on the right. Your liver and your spleen have changed places."

The physicians state that the transposition of these vital organs has nothing to do with Stumbaugh's illness, which is an attack of dropsy. There is no reason why he should not be perfectly healthy, they say, despite the unusual positions of heart, liver and spleen.

ROOSEVELT, BANQUETED, GETS SKULL OF A RHINOCEROS

Former President and Son Guests of Governor of British East Africa.

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Aug. 4.—Theodore Roosevelt and his son Kermit, were the guests of honor at a public banquet given in Nairobi last night. Frederick J. Jackson, Governor of British East Africa, was chairman and 175 persons sat at the table.

Capt. Sanderson, town clerk of Nairobi, read an address of welcome and afterwards handed him the address enclosed in a section of elephant tusk. American residents of the Protectorate presented Mr. Roosevelt with a tobacco box made of the hoof of a rhinoceros, silver mounted; the skull of a rhinoceros, also mounted in silver and a buffalo head.

Mr. Roosevelt, in reply to the toast, proposed by Gov. Jackson, told of the courteous hospitality he had received, of the prospects for British East Africa and compared conditions there with the Western States during pioneer days.

Roosevelt Lays Cornerstone.

KIJABE, British East Africa, Aug. 4.—Theodore Roosevelt and his son Kermit arrived here early this afternoon from Nairobi and the former performed the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the new mission church and school for white children.

SHOT HITS BAD TOOTH; THANKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Gus Williams refuses to prosecute Francis Canovio for shooting him because the shot performed a real service.

Canovio fired a shot which went through both Williams' cheeks. In its progress the bullet tore out a tooth that had been aching for weeks, and in appreciation of this relief, Williams has refused to prosecute.

PARK CONCERTS TONIGHT.

The park concerts tonight will be in O'Fallon and Industrial parks. Habberton's band will play in O'Fallon Park and the Industrial School band in Industrial Park.

CHICAGO CHIEF QUITS; REPORTER TO HEAD POLICE

George Shippy Sends Resignation to Mayor Following Attacks on Administration.

ILLNESS HIS REASON

Rumor That Withdrawal Was Demanded Denied—Successor Was Political Writer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Chief of Police George Shippy has resigned and Bernard J. Mullaney, former reporter and for several years private secretary of Mayor Busse, is to be made Chief in his stead. Shippy's resignation was conveyed to the Mayor today in a letter written by the Chief from Petoskey, Mich., where he has been resting.

Ill health is given as the cause of his resignation, but it is believed his action was partly due to the attacks made on his administration and the institution of proceedings against some of his inspecters. Charges of graft against officials of the department were made recently and although they did not name the Chief, they increased the difficulties of his position as director of the police in the second largest city in the country.

Successor a Well Known Reporter.

Secretary Mullaney, who is considered the certain successor of Chief Shippy, was a reporter for many years in Chicago. His last work in that capacity was in connection with the political campaigns in which municipal ownership of street railways was the issue.

In the heat of the Dunne-Harlan and Dunne-Busse fights Mullaney was an active and militant force, and Busse chose him as his secretary as soon as he was elected. In that position Mullaney has been virtually Mayor of the city for long periods. He is known all over the city as "Barney."

Inspector Nicholas Hunt visited Chief Shippy at the summer cottage near Petoskey, Mich., where the Chief has been seeking to recover his health, and returned today with the letter of resignation addressed to Mayor Busse.

This was delivered by Inspector Hunt to Mayor Busse's secretary.

Resignation Was Demanded.

The next Chief of Police will be the Mayor's private secretary, Bernard J. Mullaney. It is stated on the best authority that Hunt carried a message to Chief Shippy that induced him to resign his place on the force. The Inspector, however, denies positively that such was the case.

LEFT WITH ONLY HIS TROUSERS

When Henry Jones awoke from a night's slumber in a box car Wednesday, he congratulated himself because he still had his trousers. Everything else he owned had disappeared.

Not until a policeman stopped him and inquired why he was strolling about in decollete did it occur to Jones that he had been robbed. Then he recalled that he was in company with two strange men when he went to sleep.

Three men were arrested and one of them had in his possession a razor which was identified by Jones. Jones lives at the Silver House.

POSTPONED GAMES

American League.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Rain caused the postponement of the game between the New York Highlanders and the St. Louis Browns this afternoon.

Chicago at Philadelphia, two games postponed on account of rain.

National League.

New York at Cincinnati, game postponed on account of wet grounds.

"Well, I see Nat Goodwin has been spurred to action by the story that he rode a horse to death," said the first-nighter.

"Yes," replied the deadhead, "he wants to saddle the whole matter on the Delmar Garden people."

"I don't think Nat ought to try to ride roughshod over our amusement resorts that way."

"No, neither do I. He shouldn't have asked for a receiver for Delmar. The garden is stable enough."

SIM HARRIS GETS $4300 INTEREST ON STOLEN BOND

United States Is About Ready to Pay Him $5000, Amount of Security.

MONEY WENT BEGGING

Politician, Once Accounted Dead, Plans to Have a Good Time With It.

Sim Harris received Wednesday from Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, 86 interest checks for $50 each on a $5000 Government bond that was stolen from Harris' office in Chincinnati 22 years ago. He was notified that on presentation of proper proof to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington the principal of the bond would be paid.

Sim says that at the time the bond was stolen he was practicing law in the office of Joseph B. Foraker. As time went on, he says, he forgot all about the bond until the Government, at its maturity, in 1907, began to make a search for him. The bond was issued in 1877, payable 30 years after date.

Harris put in a claim for the principal and interest last fall, during the heat of the Republican campaign, and immediately afterward was sent to the State Hospital at Fulton. He recently was released from the hospital as cured and returned to St. Louis and furnished proof that he is the original Simeon Harris who owned the bond.

Told His Life Story.

"I made an affidavit three yards long last week, giving Treasurer Treat a history of my life from the time I was born until the date of the paper," said Sim to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "There is so much red tape in Washington that I had to make all sorts of identifications of myself.

"The bond was stolen out of my safe in the Masonic Temple in Cincinnati. I was then secretary of the Hamilton County Republican Executive Committee.

"I lived at 395 West Seventh street, Cincinnati, and moved from there to St. Louis. Afterward the Cincinnati street numbers were changed, and the treasurer lost track of me.

"I told him in my affidavit that I was graduated from a law school in Cincinnati with William Howard Taft, now President, and Joseph B. Foraker.

Friend Thought Him Dead.

"A funny feature of the story is that Harry M. Johnson, who gave out a newspaper interview last fall when I was trying to get the bonds, to the effect that I was dead, that he attended my funeral and saw my wife remarried, was the man who made the affidavit for me that finally resulted in my getting the money. Johnson has been with the Wabash Railroad Co. for 15 years, and, when he learned that the real Simeon Harris with whom he slept when he was a schoolboy, was very much alive, he made an affidavit that helped me to get my money.

"Just to show how technical the Government is, the Treasurer wrote me a letter stating he was satisfied I was the Simeon Harris who owned the bond, but that there was a slight difference between the signature on the last interest check I indorsed 22 years ago and that of today. Of course there would be.

"I understand that some of my friends erected a monument to my memory in Cincinnati, but it will be a long time before I will need it, I hope.

Going to Have Good Times.

"All the interest checks were laid aside in an old envelope sent to my former address in Cincinnati 22 years ago, and returned undelivered. This envelope was sent to me, with all the checks inside of it. I am going to get the checks cashed and then enjoy myself.

"I told Treasurer Treat, who is an old friend of mine, that I had many good Republican friends in 'Jephowe-ville' who were willing to help me spend the money as soon as I got it. But I will not be ready to loan any money to my friends until after Sept. 15, and then only on 99-year notes, to be renewed forever at maturity.

"My loans on short-time notes to politicians have not been remunerative to me, and I am going to change my methods somewhat."

Sim had a big bundle of checks in the envelope, and was careful not to let them get out of his hands. He denied a report that the checks were for 50 cents each, instead of $50. He says the total amount he received was $4,300, being 4 per cent interest on the $5000 bond for 21½ years.

INSOLVENCY IS NOT PROVED

Judge Williams Refuses Order in Delmar Receivership Suit.

Circuit Judge Williams refused Wednesday to issue an order on the Delmar Garden Amusement Co. that it show cause why it should not go into the hands of a receiver. The order was applied for by Attorney W. H. Bleyer, representing Charles A. Powers, to whom Nat C. Goodwin assigned claims against the Delmar company aggregating $6861.

Powers filed suit Tuesday for the sum named, and asked that a receiver be appointed for the amusement company. It is understood that the Court's refusal to issue the order was on the ground that insufficient evidence of insolvency was presented in the petition.

BOY WHO WAS KILLED BY AUTO WHILE PLAYING IN THE STREET

HAROLD WAKEFIELD.

CHINESE OPENS SAFE CAPTURED IN FAN TAN RAID

Bland Silence as to Combination Forces Compromise From Police.

With a smile that was childlike and bland, Joe Jeu stood in the Central District Police Station and watched the officers vainly trying to open an iron safe which had been taken in a raid on a fan-tan game at 19 South Eighth street Tuesday.

Jeu Tom, said to be a silent partner of Joe Jeu in the alleged gambling joint, also smiled. Twenty-eight other Chinese, who had been taken to the station along with the safe, witnessed the proceedings with unblinking eyes and immobile mouths.

The detectives wanted to open that safe to get evidence of fan-tan playing. When they appeared at the door of Jeu's place, the lookout reported them, and there was a hasty scrambling inside. All the detectives found in the way of gambling paraphernalia was a table, which might be used for dining purposes or literary labors.

Joe Jeu was just slamming the safe door shut.

"The fan-tan outfit is in there," said Wells. "Bring the safe along."

They had evidence sufficient to connect four of the Chinese with gambling, provided they could find suggestions of fan-tan in the safe.

"You letee all lest go home I open compliation," was Joe Jeu's order. "You plosecute four—no more?"

Compromise Accepted.

After a conference, wherein the suggestion that an expert safe blower be employed to open the safe was discussed and voted down, the officers accepted Jeu's proposition.

Jeu deftly worked the "compliation" and the safe door swung open. Sixty almond eyes watched the officers as they removed the contents. There was some money, visible to the naked eye as soon as the door was opened. Safes are made for money, so what of that?

"Aha!" cried Detective Wells. "Here they are!"

He brought forth many little white buttons, the poker chip of the fan-tan game.

One of the released Chinese got a wagon and hauled the arrested and discharged men back to its quarters.

AUTO KILLS BOY; BIRTHDAY GUESTS HIS PALLBEARERS

Run Down While Playing "I-Spy" on Eve of Anniversary Celebration.

Harold Wakefield's playmates, invited guests for his birthday party Wednesday night, will instead be pallbearers at his funeral. The birthday cake, with its seven candles, has been put aside, and the boys and girls who used to play "I-spy" and "follow your leader" with Harold gathered silently in the yard of the Wakefield home at 839 North Seventh street, East St. Louis, Wednesday, and gazed sorrowfully at the white crepe on the door.

Harold was killed by an automobile, almost in front of his home, while he played with a half dozen of his little friends there, Tuesday evening. The automobile, a dark red car, and the two men who were in it have not been found.

Harold and his friends were playing "I-spy" at the corner of Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue, a half block from his home. Another boy was "it," and while this boy covered his face with his hands at a curbstone, the rest of the players hid themselves behind trees and telephone poles.

Ran for Home.

The corner pole was Harold's hiding place, and when he saw the boy who was "it" jump up and run toward another of the players to "tag" him, Harold made for the curbstone, which was the "home" base.

Intent on the game, he did not see the automobile, which was just turning the corner. The machine struck his side, and the wheels passed over his stomach.

Edward Wakefield and his wife, Harold's parents, saw from their porch that something had happened at the corner, and the father, running to the spot, carried the child to the house. Death came before a physician arrived. Internal injuries caused death, as the boy's skull was not fractured.

Harold was 7 years old Monday, but his birthday party had been postponed because of the ninth birthday of his brother, Ray, which fell Wednesday. The two were to have their party together, and a cake had been baked for each.

TURRISI'S COUSIN DISAPPEARED DAY BEFORE KIDNAPING

Three Trunks Taken From Pagano House Shipped to Man of the Same Name in Chicago.

CHILDREN AID POLICE IN TRACING DRIVER OF WAGON

Grocers and Their Employe Arrested and Are Held for Examination—Mysterious Man With Black Whiskers Figures in the Crime.

Marchesi Benedetto, cousin of Sam Turrisi, reputed kidnaper of the Viviano children, it was learned by Post-Dispatch reporters Wednesday, has been missing from his home at 932 North Seventh street since last Sunday. On that day his trunk was taken away in a wagon and he departed without telling anyone in the house where he was going.

When this information was given to Police Captain Schoppe of the Carr Street Station, he said that in his opinion Marchesi Benedetto was sent to Chicago to receive the trunks which were taken from the home of Joseph Pagano Monday afternoon. The trunks are consigned to Louis Benedetto.

When it was made known that the trunks were consigned to a man named Benedetto reporters found that a man of that name lived at 932 North Seventh street. In the directory his name appeared as Gioe Benedetto.

No such man was known at that address, but it was said that Marchesi Benedetto kept a liquor store on the ground floor there and had a room on the second floor until last Saturday, when he sold out his business and told neighbors he was going to California.

Sunday his trunk and a box were removed from his room. The police say that a man answering his description was seen at the Pagano home Monday.

Marchesi Benedetto came to St. Louis six months ago at the same time his cousin, Turrisi, came here from Pittsburg. He and Turrisi were frequently together and both knew Pagano and Pagano's brother-in-law, Vincenzo Ricardo, who also has disappeared.

The trunks taken from the home of Joseph Pagano on the day that his friend, Sam Turrisi, fled with Grace and Tom Viviano, were found in the main warehouse of the Adams Express Co. in Chicago Wednesday. They were consigned to Louis Benedetto and they have not been opened, Associated Press dispatches say.

That the trunks were shipped to Chicago was learned by police of the Carr Street District from Lamancia Girolomo of 1906 Cooper street, who drove the wagon in which the trunks were carried to the express office at the Union Station.

A telegram from the St. Louis police to the headquarters of the Chicago Police Department led to the finding of the trunks there. It is believed that their contents will furnish an important clew to the whereabouts of Turrisi, reputed to be the man who is holding the Viviana children for $25,000 ransom.

Special officers will go to Chicago to examine the trunks. The two Pietro Vivianos, fathers of the kidnaped children, refuse to accompany the specials. Fear restrains them.

Records at the local office of the Adams Express Co. show that three trunks shipped from here by three Italians, one of them identified as Girolomo, were consigned to Louis Benandito in Chicago. The shipment was made from St. Louis at 3:25 p. m. Monday.

All are new trunks and all are tied with clothes lines. The largest is three feet wide, three feet deep and four and one-half feet long. The valuation placed upon them in the way bill is $100 each.

Dispatches from Chicago say that the name of Louis Benedetto does not appear in the city directory there and no one has come forward to claim the trunks, though they have been in the express office since Monday night.

TRUNK THEORY HELD BY POLICE INCLUDES SEVERAL IN CRIME

THE police theory of the trunks is that they are the property of Turrisi and others in the kidnaping plot. It is known that Turrisi and Pagano were friends and that a man answering Turrisi's description visited Pagano's home an hour before Turrisi and the Viviano children disappeared.

Conflicting stories told by the Paganos and the fact that the three trunks left their home almost at the same time the children were kidnaped, with the additional circumstance that four strange men left the Pagano home 15 minutes after the trunks were taken away, lead the police to believe that the conspiring kidnapers shipped their property to a place where they believed it would be safe from seizure and search while they negotiated with the Vivianos for ransom.

Girolomo was arrested Tuesday night with his business partner, Pietro Fanara, and their clerk, Domenico Lupico.

Victoria Lovingdale, 12 years old, and her brother, Axel Lovingdale, 9 years old, of 1913A North Thirteenth street, gave Post-Dispatch reporters and the police of the Carr Street Station information on which Girolomo, Fanara and Lupico are held in connection with the kidnaping. Girolomo acknowledged that he took three trunks from the home of Joseph Pagano at 1911 North Thirteenth street on the day of the kidnaping. Panara is Girolomo's partner in the grocery business at 1906 Cooper avenue and Lupico is employed by them.

Pagano worked for Fanara and Girolomo as salesman and order clerk.

Through the Lovingdale children a Post-Dispatch reporter was the first to establish the ownership of the wagon which took the trunks from the Pagano home. This information was obtained Tuesday afternoon, two hours after Chief of Detectives Smith had ordered the release of Pagano's wife and mother-in-law, who had been arrested by licemen working under Chief Cree direction.

Another clew which leads the formed police to believe they will no blunder if they keep the under surveillance has been f by the Lovingdale children. It to a general order for the det Francesco Bertolini as a wit tolini was watched by the pol dey night, but was not arreste

Vivianos Tell of Man Who Wore Whiskers as Disgu

The Vivianos gave the police the first information indicating that Bertolini might know something about the kidnaping. They said that Bertolini, a strange, mysterious man, had been an unbidden guest at their home many times in the last four months.

He came from the East, he told them, and they believed he was a disguised fugitive because, though he was only 24 years old, he had a black beard and wore spectacles which made him appear to be 40 years old.

The Vivianos say that he took a great interest in the children, but they cannot recall that he ever met Sam Turrisi, who was with the boy and girl when they disappeared.

Monday night members of the Vivi family pointed out to the police a they said was Bertolino. Police followed him and saw him go into t home of the Paganos.

Wednesday the Lovingdale children told the police that 15 minutes after the wagon carrying three trunks drove away they saw four men leave the Pagano home. One of them, the children said, wore a heavy black beard and wore spectacles.

Questioned a second time, Fanara said he did not know Sam Turrisi, reputed kidnaper of the children, did not know that Turrisi was a friend of Pagano, or that a man believed to be Turrisi

THAW'S FAMILY DISCOURAGED; TO ATTACK ASYLUM

Council Decides to Lay Charges of Mismanagement Before Gov. Hughes.

CENSURE FOR JEROME

Relatives Declare District Attorney Keeps Millionaire a Prisoner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—From an authoritative source comes the assurance that the Thaw family will at once lodge charges with Gov. Hughes against the Matteawan asylum authorities alleging abuse of Harry K. Thaw if he is not liberated by Justice Mills. One of the Thaw family said today that little hope was held that Harry would be released by Justice Mills.

"But for District Attorney Jerome, Thaw would be now on the high seas and far away forever from New York," said this relative. "Had Jerome shown the same tireless energy and vindictiveness in prosecuting crooked officials and railroad looters that he has in prosecuting a helpless boy he would be the nation's popular idol and the logical candidate for President. Until Jerome arrived in this case we had everything our way.

"At present the proceedings hold out little hope for us. Jerome has pounded into Justice Mills' ears the alleged family taint of the Thaws so relentlessly, and has prodded and goaded Harry with such ferocity that even were Justice Mills favorably inclined we fear he would still have to return Thaw to Matteawan."

Thaw Complained of Asylum.

On the stand Thaw complained of ill-treatment at Matteawan. He said lights were taken from him, his clothing was stripped from him and he was forced to retire earlier in the evening than other patients and was generally harrassed. These accusations against the Matteawan physicians have been noted by the sympathetic mather and family.

At the conclusion of the most disastrous day for Thaw, a family council was held last night and tangible complaint was drawn to be forwarded to Gov. Hughes immediately on Justice Mills' unfavorable decision. In the charges will be cited the facts that Thaw is not a felon, although confined in a criminal asylum, and that he has held aloof from examinations because his lawyers advised him to, that his conduct has been exemplary and that he has shown no evidences of insanity since his confinement.

Despite his relatives' disappointment, Thaw himself is jubilant.

"Yesterday was the best day I have had yet," said Thaw as he entered the courtroom today. He seemed cheerful, greeted Jerome pleasantly, sat at his side and immediately started to chat with Jerome's alienists, who sat behind him. Previous to the recalling of Dr. Austin B. Flint, Thaw remarked: "That's one of the crazy alienists. Each of them showed he had more paranoia, or the exaggerated ego of it, than I have. Flint said he knew more about the case than Jerome and Hirsch said he made less mistakes than anyone else and could tell a man was a lunatic by looking at him."

Says Thaw Is Still Crazy.

Dr. Flint insisted that Thaw is still a paranoiac.

"Did not you swear Thaw believed the shooting to be an act of Providence?" asked Morschauser.

"He did feel that he was substituted for Providence," declared the witness.

Morschauser took up Dr. Flint's connection with a baking powder advertisement.

"Are you aware that a State law prohibits the sale of alumn in baking powder?" he asked.

"I am not, and it does not," replied Dr. Flint.

Thaw then unwrapped a can of baking powder and Morschauser read a label bearing Dr. Flint's name.

"Did you authorize that?" asked Morschauser.

"No, I didn't, and I demanded its removal.

"Well, it's there yet," commented Morschauser.

Thaw's Symptoms of Paronia.

Dr. Carlos B. McDonald, Jerome's medical adviser, was then called. Jerome read a passage to Dr. McDonald from Diefendorf's description of a paranoiac. Among the symptoms described were "writing articles for newspapers and issuing pamphlets."

The last words were read a titter went around the courtroom, Mrs. Willard Thaw, turning to the Countess of Yorke and laughing outright. Jerome heard the subdued laughter and frowned toward Justice Mills.

"Nearly every symptom of paranoia given by the author has been attributed to Thaw by the alienists, and McDonald further declared that the paranoiac was properly described.

Better Off in Asylum.

During Dr. McDonald's description of an illustrative case of paranoia he told of a man released from a State asylum who the next day killed his sister with an ax. Mr. Morschauser objected.

"If we have to answer for all the paranoiacs and their delusions in the world, we may as well go back there now," said the lawyer.

"You're well on your way," remarked Jerome.

Dr. McDonald declared that Thaw is still suffering from paranoia of a "degenerate type."

"What would be the effect of living at Matteawan as compared to Harry Thaw's previous life?" asked Jerome.

"The regularities of hospital life would tend to improve his mind and body, and the irregularities of outside life might cause outbreaks and arouse fears," answered the alienist.

"Alcohol would likely incite homicidal tendencies."

"Would a paranoiac of homicidal tendencies, like Thaw, be dangerous to the community if released?"

"Emphatically so," replied the physician.

Dr. McDonald said that he had constantly watched Thaw in court. Thaw's interruptions of his counsel, his nervous energies in prompting lines of cross-examination, and his confused and incoherent manner on the stand all struck the alienist as the conduct of an excited paranoiac.

Morschauser fought desperately against the admission of the alienist's opinion that Thaw's conduct in court further convinces him that Thaw has paranoia. Morschauser held that Justice Mills should not be influenced by the alienist's opinions of Thaw's actions in court, as the Court had an opportunity to view and judge his mental condition.

Alienist Asked About Christ.

One of the insanity experts who testified yesterday was Dr. William Hirsch, a long-haired person, who declared he thought Thaw a "degenerate paranoiac."

"Absolutely incurable," was the answer to Jerome's next question.

During his cross-examination Dr. Hirsch was asked if he thought religion and his profession compatible. He said he did not.

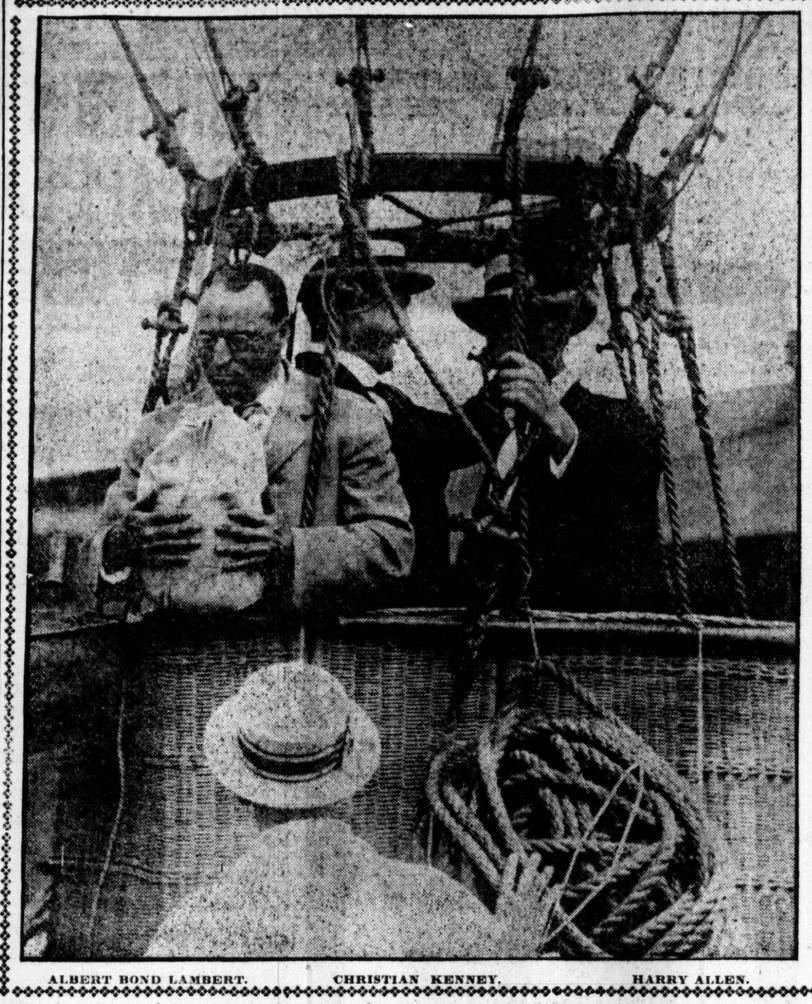

"Are you not writing a book," asked Morschauser, "in which you claim that Jesus Christ was a paranoiac?"

"Yes, I am," replied the alienist, "but I don't want to say anything about the book. It hasn't been published, and when it is published you will know all about it."

"Is it, then, your opinion that the Saviour was a paranoiac."

"I would rather not answer that question," said Dr. Hirsch, glancing around the courtroom, which had suddenly become very still. To his evident relief Justice Mills ordered an adjournment at this moment.

VALENCIA SUCCEEDS GEN. REYES

Elected to Fulfill Unexpired Term of Colombia's President.

BOGOTA, Aug. 4.—Gonzales Valencia was yesterday elected President of the Republic of Colombia by the National Congress to fulfill the unexpired term of Gen. Rafael Reyes, resigned. He will occupy the post about a year.

Gen. Jorge Holguin, who has been acting President of the republic, withdrew his candidacy yesterday, leaving the contest between Valencia and Marco Fidel Suarez.

Gonzales Valencia was Vice-President of Colombia in 1905, but resigned the office in March of that year. Recent dispatches from Colombia credited him with being the leader of the revolutionary movement that broke out at Barranquilla a month ago, following the departure for Europe of the then President, Gen. Reyes.

Trunks Sent to Chicago; Three Men in Custody

seen entering Pagano's house an hour before the children disappeared and a short time before the trunks were taken away.

Pagano, he said, received a salary of $60 a month, but recently had seemed to be dissatisfied.

"Sunday," said Fanara, "Pagano came out to the store and told me that business was bad and that he was going to quit his job. He did not come to work Monday."

Police of the Carr Street District deny a report Tuesday that the home of Joe Ventimiglia was searched on a tip that the children were there. Ventimiglia has not been under surveillance, and the police say that it was a mistake to connect his name with the investigation.

The Lovingdale children were playing in front of their home next door to the Pagano residence when the trunks were taken away.

They told a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday afternoon that the wagon had on it the words "Bakery" and "Jefferson avenue and Carr street." This is the location of the McKinney Bakery Co.'s factory. The reporter learned there that several of the company's discarded wagons had been sold to merchants in the Italian settlement west of King's highway and south of Manchester avenue locally known as "Dago Hill."

On this information and the additional clew furnished by the Lovingdale children that the wagon was drawn by a white horse, the ownership of the wagon was traced to Pietro Fanara. To the reporter he denied that he knew anything about the hauling of the trunks.

Several hours later the police, following the same information, arrested Fanara, Girolomo and Lupico.

At first they said they knew nothing of the use of the wagon to haul the trunks from Pagano's home. Later Fanara said that Girolomo returned to the grocery with his wagon Monday afternoon and put $2 in the cash drawer. He said that he received the money for hauling some trunks for a friend. Lupico corroborated this.

Girolomo then acknowledged hauling the trunks. He said that though he knew Pagano very well, he did not know the house from which he took the trunks was Pagano's residence.

"A short man with a black mustache stopped me at Twelfth and Morgan streets as I was going to market and asked me if I wanted to make some money," he said. "He took me to the house where the trunks were and he and another man helped me load them on the wagon."

"The two men rode with me to the American Express office. I left them there and didn't have anything to do with shipping the trunks."

THOUGHT BURGLAR WAS HUSBAND

"My Name Ain't David," Intruder Declares, and Flees.

Mrs. Louisa Duffy of 1235 South Seventh street thought the man bending over her when she awoke suddenly at 3 a. m. Wednesday was her husband.

"What's the matter, David?" she inquired.

"My name ain't David," grunted the man as he took to his heels.

Then Mrs. Duffy knew she had addressed a burglar. He got nothing.

PUGILIST'S WIFE FIRST ON TRIAL IN NEW COURT

Mrs. Georgetta Stellges Is Arraigned for Shooting Her Husband.

Mrs. Georgetta Rose Stellges of 2803 Locust street was the first defendant arraigned in the new Court of Criminal Correction, Division No. 2, which was opened with Judge Ben Kiene on the bench Wednesday morning. She pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault to kill in shooting her husband, Harry Stellges, an amateur pugilist, at their home Monday.

Mrs. Stellges was held for trial. Stellges is at the City Hospital with a wound in his shoulder, in his left foot and in his left hand. The hospital physicians say he is recovering rapidly.

Mrs. Stellges, after shooting her husband, was cool and collected. She said she would do the same thing again, under the same circumstances, as she would rather see her husband dead than to have him leave her.

Mrs. Stellges, when she was taken into the courtroom to be arraigned, had to face a large crowd of Four Courts officials, lawyers and spectators, assembled to see the court opened.

While there was no regular program several speeches were made by Prosecuting Attorney Phillips, Moss and several Four Courts lawyers.

Judge Kiene was introduced to the court attaches by Acting Judge Kammerer, who is sitting for Judge Wilson A. Taylor in the first division, Judge Taylor being away on an automobile trip with Sheriff Nolte.

Fred Weitz, deputy sheriff, opened the court and acted as marshal. Deputy Clerk Nick Polito served as clerk. A big bunch of roses ornamented the Judge's bench.

The session was held in the former Court of General Sessions chamber. There were no desks or tables and only a few scattered chairs, for lawyers and court attaches. The court adjourned until 10 a. m. Thursday.

Balloon Missouri Lands at Edgemont, Ill., and Makes Second Ascent.

FOR SEE-SAW RECORD

Christian Kenney and Harry Allen Guests in Pilot's Novel Air Cruise.

The balloon Missouri, with Albert Bond Lambert as pilot and Christian Kenney of 5157 McPherson avenue, President of the Missouri Forage Supply Co., and Harry Allen of 3737 Washington boulevard, a member of the law firm of Johnson, Rule & Allen, as passengers, made its first landing near Edgemont, Ill., a suburb of East St. Louis, at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday. The balloon ascended from Second and Rutger streets, St. Louis, at 10:43 a. m. It was Mr. Lambert's purpose to make as many descents and reascensions as possible.

The stop was in Fred Warning's wheat field, just north of Edgemont. The balloon remained down about 15 minutes, and was inspected by about thirty-five residents of the neighborhood. When it went up again, it sailed off toward the northeast.

Mr. Lambert hoped to be able to keep up the up-and-down flight until sunset, in spite of the small quantity of gas and ballast carried by the balloon. The St. Louis III on a recent flight carried six men and 14 sacks of ballast, but the St. Louis III has a capacity of 78,000 cubic feet of gas.

Women See Balloon Start.

Among the spectators gathered to witness the departure of the Missouri were Mr. Kenney's wife and mother, Mrs. John Kenney; Mrs. J. C. Jannopoulo, Judge Virgil Rule, Allen's law partner, and Harlow B. Spencer.

The "get-away" was unusually graceful and pretty, the balloon attaining a perfect equilibrium at a height of 100 feet. This is considered uncommon. The start was looked after by H. Eugene Honeywell.

Neither of Mr. Lambert's companions ever had been in a balloon before, but both are athletes and outdoor sport enthusiasts and anticipated a day of pleasure in their air voyage. Mr. Allen is the champion of Missouri at golf. Mr. Kenney also is an expert golfer.

LAMBERT AND HONEYWELL RACE TO START FROM AERO CLUB

The balloon race between the St. Louis III, piloted by Honeywell, and the Missouri, piloted by Albert B. Lambert, scheduled for next Sunday morning from the Aero Club grounds at Chouteau and Newstead avenues, promises to be an exciting one. Three prominent young sportsmen are going with Honeywell and according to those who know them, they won't let the pilot come down until it's absolutely unsafe to stay up any longer.

The three passengers will be Sidney Bixby, Harry Blackwell and Karl Langenberg. Blackwell is the star catcher of the Country Club baseball team and Bixby and Langenberg are both members of the polo squad of the same club. All three are enthusiastic sportsmen.

The race was arranged by Lambert, who has persuaded the gas company to serve better gas to the Aero Club grounds. Lambert is going alone in the small Missouri balloon, according to the present plans, because he wants to make a record for a one-man flight out of St. Louis.

TARIFF FRAMERS ARE LAGGING

Order of Business Abandoned for Omnibus Bridge Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—There was no apparent haste when the Senate convened to take up the conference report on the tariff bill. Senators offered various business in the form of petitions and bills.

In defiance of the order of business that had been carefully adhered to on so many previous occasions, Senator Frye obtained favorable consideration of an omnibus bridge bill without an objection from any senator.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 4.—A slight earthquake shock was felt in this city about 10:30 o'clock this morning. Many did not feel it, and it caused little alarm.

BABIES BENEFIT BY NEW SKIN DISCOVERY

Stops Itching Immediately, Soothes and Comforts the Little Ones.

A demonstration of the efficacy and entire harmlessness of poslam, the new skin discovery, is afforded when it is applied to the tender skin of infants who are tortured with rashes, chafings, scaly and crusted humors and other skin aggravations. Its effect is soothing, the itching stops at once, the skin heals and is quickly restored to normal condition.

In the various forms of skin troubles in both infants and adults, poslam produces beneficial results from the first application. Eczema, acne, herpes, rash, tetter, etc., yield readily to its remarkable curative properties. Occasional applications will quickly banish pimples, blotches and complexion blemishes and will relieve and cure itching feet, scaly scalp, humors, etc.

Poslam can be had for fifty cents at any reliable druggist's, particularly the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Raboteau & Co., who make a specialty of it. Or the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West 25th Street, New York City, will send a trial supply free by mail to anyone who will write for it. This is sufficient to show results in 24 hours.

MAN AND WOMAN SOUGHT AFTER A QUEER EXPLOSION

Strange Chemicals Found in Debris of Building Wrecked at Night.

A mysterious explosion wrecked a frame dwelling at 4804 Austria avenue at 1:30 a. m. Wednesday. It was occupied by Louis Marre, a young Italian, born in St. Louis, whose whereabouts since the explosion and the resultant fire is not known to any of the neighbors. There is evidence in the ruins that some sort of explosive was being manufactured there.

Marre and a young woman who occupied the house with him were seen leaving the premises at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. With them was another man, whose identity is unknown.

The neighbors said they did not know the name of the occupant of the house, but it was learned by a Post-Dispatch reporter that Anton Beffa, who has a restaurant at Eighteenth street and Washington avenue, rented the house July 18 to Marre, acting as agent for R. H. Nieman of 3513 North Jefferson avenue, the owner.

Beffa said Marre worked until July 18 for the C. L. Gray Construction Co., which is building the La Salle Building at Broadway and Olive street, and that the young man lived with his father at 3815 Potomac street, until he rented the house.

Small and scattered bits of a paste which seemed to be formed of charcoal and sulphur and to have been compounded as an explosive were found in the ruins.

These particles of paste were found in not less than thirty small cans and in a skillet, which, it is believed, was on the kitchen range at the time of the explosion.

Austria Heights lies along Gravois avenue, near the end of the Cherokee line. The houses in the neighborhood are mostly frame and the neighborhood has no gas.

Neighbors describe the man who occupied the house which was destroyed as 24 years old, of medium height, with black hair and dark eyes, and the woman apparently as a year or two younger, a blonde, with reddish hair.

Since they moved into the house, about July 22, the neighbors say, a number of loads of second-hand furniture have been driven to the place, and while a few of the articles have been taken into the house, most of them have been hauled away again.

Joseph Becker, a neighbor, who understands a few words of Italian, said the man talked in that tongue to the drivers of the wagons, who were evidently Italians. Other neighbors say the man and woman always talked in good English to each other.

No Baby in Debris.

The pair used a gasoline stove for their cooking until last Saturday, when a combination coal and gas range, large enough for an ordinary restaurant, was moved in. The neighbors say the range was first used by the woman Tuesday evening.

The man, the neighbors say, reached the house about 6 p. m. Tuesday, accompanied by another man. Miss Mildred Becker and Mrs. Edward Leist, neighbors, saw the two men and the woman leaving the house at 8:30 p. m.

It was apparent from a search of the ruins of the house that no human body was there.

Wall Blown Out.

The explosion was so violent that the front door was blown into the street and a part of a side wall went into an adjoining lot. The front of the house seemed to be more severely wrecked, though the range was in the rear.

The gasoline stove was apparently empty. The stove and a can were found unexploded.

All through the ruins were scattered small tins, like baking powder cans, containing bits of the sulphur and charcoal mixture. The larger quantity of this compound found in the skillet caused policemen to believe that the mess was being cooked on the range as an explosive and that it was set off by some stray spark while the house was empty.

The police do not believe that the explosion was caused intentionally, but they are at a loss to know for what purpose the explosive mixture was being prepared.

31 INDICTMENTS ARE FOUND AGAINST LOUISIANA PRIEST

Three Charge Criminal Libel, the Others Are for Much Graver Crimes.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 4.—Thirty-one indictments against the Rev. John J. Holtgreve, pastor of the Catholic Church at Plaquemine, La., were returned by the grand jury of Iberville parish today.

Twenty-eight of the counts charge grave crimes and the other three allege criminal libel.

King Edward and Guest Go Ashore at Osborne.

COWES, Aug. 4.—Emperor Nicholas, who is here on a visit to King Edward, came ashore from the imperial yacht Standart this afternoon for the first time since his arrival last Monday, and in company with King Edward visited the naval station at Osborne.

Before returning to the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert for luncheon, Emperor Nicholas and King Edward visited Consuello, dowager Duchess of Manchester. The Duchess was formerly Miss Vanaga of New York.

BRIDE OF TURNER WHO WON HER WHILE ABROAD

MRS TED UELK

ROMANCE BEGUN IN PARIS RESULTS IN WEDDING HERE

Ted Uelk and Miss Winifred Burns Attracted by Mutual Homesickness While Abroad.

A romance that began in Paris a year ago resulted Wednesday in the marriage of Ted Uelk of 3945 North Nineteenth stret and Miss Winifrd Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Burns of 1412A Granville place, at St. Rose's Church, Goodfellow and Etzel avenues.

When Mr. Uelk went to Europe with a company of St. Louis Turners in July, last year, he never had heard of Miss Burns, nor had she heard of him when she and her mother started on a tour of Europe. On the way back they stopped at the same hotel in Paris, remaining two weeks.

The approach of the time for returning to St. Louis caused the thoughts of Miss Burns and Mr. Uelk to turn longingly to "home." That was one reason why Miss Burns was glad to meet an attractive young man from St. Louis and why Uelk thought Miss Burns, the St. Louis girl who was stopping at his hotel, was nicer than any other young woman he saw in Paris.

They took the same steamer back and it wasn't long after their return that friends of each knew they were engaged. Mr. and Mrs. Uelk expect to live at 5115A North Market street.

TARIFF AMENDMENTS WILL BE FIRMLY LAID ON TABLE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Every amendment offered to the concurrent resolution to correct the tariff conference report so as to make reductions in boots and shoes and harness and saddlery apply to manufacturers from calf skins, as well as leather from hides heretofore dutiable, probably will be laid on the table.

Senators who desire to have changes made in the conference report called on Senator Aldrich today with requests that he lend his influence toward the acceptance of such changes, but uniformly he replied that the resolution could not be opened up to cover subjects other than the leather schedule and the necessary changes in the maximum and minimum provision.

It is difficult to forecast the length of discussion on the concurrent resolution, but there is said to be little prospect of reaching a final adjournment before Friday.

NOTES DEMAND $300; THREATEN MAN WITH DEATH

Sicilian, Alarmed at Black Hand Letters, Asks Police For Protection.

Two Black Hand letters demanding money have been sent to Joseph Palozollo, an employe of the Hydraulic Press-Brick Co., who lives at 5117 Shaw avenue. He is being guarded by a policeman from the Mounted District, and special officers are trying to find the letter writer. Fright at the kidnaping of the Viviano children caused him to report the letters to the police.

Palozollo is a Sicilian, 25 years old, and has been in this country some time. He has learned the brickmakers' trade and saved several hundred dollars. He paid no attention to the first letter, which was dated July 26, but when the second, dated Aug. 2, arrived and the kidnaping of the Viviano children stirred the St. Louis Italian colony, he became alarmed and informed the police.

The first letter read:

Dear Friend—With these few lines I let you know we need $300 that we come and beg you for. Be careful to bring money on you when you go out and even if you go into the yard have the money on you always. Otherwise when someone presents himself to you they will ask you for a cigar and you must be ready to hand the amount of money they ask for. Otherwise we feel sorry for you. We beg you not to let court know about it. Otherwise it will be worse for you. We respect you as a friend. Pay attention to what we have said. The second letter was couched in terms less polite. It read:

Friend—This is the second letter we have written you. And you still have not answered the demand. If you don't come to the right point we will pull your head off. You can bet on that. Don't lose any time because the time passes and it will be worse for you. If you don't do that we will make you see things you have never seen before. This is your grave.

Both letters were in Italian and the wording given is a translation made for the police by a member of the Italian colony.

GIRL GOES FAST FROM SCHOOL TO DRINKER'S GRAVE

Student, Deserted Wife and Absinthe Slave All in Seven Months.

DYING, TELLS OF RUIN

Helen Chambers Took First Draught to Celebrate Last New Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 4.—On last New Year's eve, Helen Chambers, daughter of an Aurora (Ill.) family, a girl not yet 18 years old and a high school student, went to Chicago and with a girl companion in a cafe there took her first drink. She took several drinks before the night was over and enjoyed to the fullest their fascination.

Helen Chambers died at the General Hospital this morning, following an operation. Her system had been weakened by dissipation and she could not withstand the shock. She had gone to the hospital a mental and physical wreck. In seven months Helen Chambers crowded into her life events that would have been good measure for as many years. From the few drinks she indulged in merely to mark the passing of the old year, she learned to like stronger ones. For two weeks before she was taken to the General Hospital, she virtually lived on absinthe and morphine. A message to her mother in Aurora was not answered, and the girl, with her life ebbing out dozed in lethargy until the end came.

"I was just quitting high school," she said yesterday when asked to tell her story. "On New Year's eve I went to Chicago with another girl. We met two boys and went to a cafe where the New Year's celebration was just starting. I didn't know what it was like, but I found out. Everything was orderly, but I noticed that the girls seemed to drink as much as the men.

"Everyone drank freely and soon it seemed as though everyone was intoxicated. I took my first drink because everyone seemed to be drinking and all be happy as well. The minutes passed quickly and my brain grew numb. I didn't know exactly how I got out of the cafe or the events leading up to it, but when I awoke the next morning I felt disgraced. That was the beginning. This is the end.

"I then decided to run away from home. I decided it would be best. I came to Kansas City about April 1. I fell in with bad associates, but finally married. I went to Dallas, Tex., with my husband. There we quarreled and he returned to Kansas City without me, but I soon followed. Monday I came here, hoping there might be some relief, but it seems ah up with me."

Baby Boy Found in Basket.

Hearing cries, Harry Droege of 2013 Madison street went into the backyard of his home at 10 p. m. Tuesday, and found a 2-weeks-old baby boy in a chip basket. The infant was clad in a long white dress, which bore no marks of identification. A policeman took the waif to St. Ann's Asylum.

POORHOUSE IS FULL AND MANY SEEK ADMISSION

Superintendent Reports Inmates Sleep in Halls and on Porches.

Supt. William Anderson of the Poorhouse notified Health Commissioner Bond Wednesday that no more paupers can be admitted to the institution, as it is now badly overcrowded and the inmates are sleeping on the floors of the halls and on the porches.

Applications for admission to the Poorhouse are piling up every day in the office of the Health Department. According to Health Commissioner Bond there is no immediate remedy for the conditions. There are now 547 paupers in the Poorhouse, and 720 insane people.

Supt. Anderson described the conditions as being very unsatisfactory on account of the crowding. In 1907, during the first year of the financial depression, there were only 489 inmates in the Poorhouse.

Dr. Bond said 15 of the 3000 insane patients sent from the Poorhouse to the State institutions have died. He says he will send 15 more to the institutions to fill the vacancies caused by these deaths, but beyond this slight relief from the congested conditions there is nothing in sight until the new million-dollar Insane Asylum is completed next year.

GIRL CONFESSES TO PILFERING IN TWO BIG STORES

Granite City Miss Declares It Was Easy to Steal Clothing She Wanted.

Laughingly admitting that she stole articles of wearing apparel from two department stores, a young woman giving her name as Ruth Aulabaugh told detectives Wednesday that she found the art of shoplifting so simple that she just could not resist the temptation to steal.

"Besides, I needed the things I took and as I had no money I just pilfered them," she told Assistant Chief of Detectives Schmidt.

Miss Aulabaugh is 17 years old and says she resides at [illegible] D street, in Granite City.

The young woman was arrested as she emerged from the Famous, where she had taken a waist, skirt, two pairs of stockings, belt, pin and two pieces of linen. She also had in her possession a dress which she admitted having taken from the Grand-Leader.

"I wanted some clothes awfully bad," said Miss Aulabaugh Wednesday, "and I took a stroll through the Grand-Leader to see what they had on display. A dress caught my eye and as no one was looking I just picked it up and walked off. When I got out of the store the thought of how easily I had acquired the dress struck me, and I decided to get some more things at another store." Miss Aulabaugh's frankness amazed the detectives. She was placed in charge of the matron and warrants will be applied for against her.

POLICE ALLOW FANS TO WATCH SCOREBOARDS

Crowds to Be Dispersed Only When Street Traffic Is Obstructed.

You can stop and watch the baseball scoreboards outside the newspaper offices now if you don't obstruct the sidewalk or the street. The order issued by Chief of Police Creecy at the instance of President Laird of the Police Board, which resulted in making the scoreboard play to empty standing room for several days, is in effect still, the Chief says.

Notwithstanding this, the fans have returned to their ancient and honored pastime without being arrested or told to move on. It is understood around Police Headquarters that this apparent easing up is due to a reinterpretation of the order by the police. It is said to have been discovered that the police have no authority to compel a citizen to move along when he is merely standing near the curb and is in nobody's way.

Chief Creecy said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday:

"We have instructed the policemen that they must act in a gentlemanly way toward the citizens standing on the streets, and they are to disperse crowds only when vehicle traffic is being obstructed or passage on the sidewalks interfered with."

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Certain Ingredients That Really Grow Hair When Properly Combined

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin, although not a coloring matter or dye, is a well-known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well defined nourishing properties, perfect the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely invaluable medicinal agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair; even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness. If the scalp has a glazed shiny appearance, it's an indication that baldness is permanent, but in every other instance, baldness is curable.

We want everyone troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93% of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and in every particular better, than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 8th and Washington avenue.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT SAYS ALL IS TRANQUIL IN SPAIN

Relaxation in Censorship Indicates That Rebellion Is Suppressed.

MADRID, Aug. 4.—The government today issued an official announcement saying the crisis in Spain is now at an end and that the country is tranquil from the Bay of Biscay to the Mediterranean.

The release of Senor Iglesias, editor of El Progreso, and a certain relaxation of the censorship, are considered the best evidence that the danger is past. The Minister of the Interior says that not only the reservists but the volunteers are flocking to the recruiting stations for service in Morocco.

BARCELONA, Aug. 4.—The situation in Barcelona today is tranquil. The only evidences of the terrible nightmare through which the city passed last week are the ruins of the convents and churches and the torn up pavements, the stones of which were used for the erection of barricades.

There is, however, considerable apprehension for the future. The people are clamoring for the release of the prisoners in the dungeons of Fort Montjuich.

Sabadell and Tarrassa have submitted to the troops and the mushroom republics proclaimed in some of the communes faded as soon as the soldiers made their appearance.

ST. LOUIS POLICEMAN SEEKS MISSING RESTAURANT MAN

Edward Bucher Went to Colorado Springs for Vacation and Has Disappeared.

The services of the Colorado Springs and Manitou police departments have been enlisted by Sergt. William E. Craig of the Newstead Avenue District, who is in Colorado Springs on a vacation, in the search for Edward Bucher, missing St. Louis restaurant man, a press dispatch from Denver said Wednesday.

Sergt. Craig is a friend of the Buchers, whose restaurant is at 4468 Easton avenue. He was on a 15-day furlough and agreed to go West and look for Bucher.

The missing restaurant man has heart trouble and was traveling for his health. Mrs. Bucher fears that he was overcome in the high altitude as she has had no letter from him since one dated July 15, although he was accustomed to write daily.

FISHELLS WILL BUILD NEW THEATER IN THE WEST END

Grand Avenue and Olive Street Site Chosen for $220,000 Structure.

Work has been begun razing the building on the east side of Grand avenue just south of Olive street which is on the site of the New Princess Theater to be erected at a cost of $220,000. The theater will be known as a producing theater, where new productions will be tried out.

The Princess Theater Co., which will put up the playhouse, is owned by Daniel S. and Arthur E. Fishell of St. Louis and E. J. Carpenter of New York. The building will have a seating capacity of 1800, and will be of pleasing architecture. It is expected it will be opened by Feb. 1, 1910.

Daniel S. Fishell is manager of the Garrick and will continue in that position. The Shuberts, who own the Garrick, have no connection with the new project.

NEW PENNIES LEGAL WITH DESIGNER'S INITIALS ON THEM

Government Will Not Recall Coins Though They Are Unpopular With Bankers.

The new "Lincoln" pennies will not be recalled by the Government because the initials of the designer, Victor D. Brenner of New York, appear on the coin, a dispatch from Washington says. The Treasury Department has ruled that this does not make the penny illegal. Two hundred thousand dollars' worth are in circulation already.

The new penny is unpopular, however, because it is much thicker than the Indian head pennies. It is said the new pennies do not stack well and the thickness of the coins causes difficulty in using the standard coin machines in banks and counting rooms.

WAGON SHAFTS SWEEP MEN FROM STREET CAR PLATFORM

Horse Left Standing by Driver Starts Across Tracks as Car Passes.

The shafts of a milk wagon swept the rear deck of a Lee car in front of 2000 North Sixteenth street Wednesday morning and knocked two men into the street.

The victims of the accident were Walter Kierath, 25 years old, of 1442 Warren street, and Edward Bernhardt, 35, of 1452 Benton street. They were bruised.

The milk wagon belongs to J. F. Schroers, a dairyman at 1207 Benton street, and had been left standing in the street by the driver, Robert Bahmer of 1215 St. Louis avenue. The horse moved toward the car tracks just as the car was passing.

MARK TWAIN'S TROUBLES DUE TO JEALOUSIES

Husband of Former Secretary Declares Dispute About Cottage Is Settled.

TO GET HOUSE AGAIN

Daughter Said to Have Resented Miss Lyon's Influence Over Author.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Troubles between Mark Twain and Isobel Lyon, his former secretary, over "The Lobster Pot," the cottage he gave to her at Redding, Conn., are nearing an end, according to a statement just issued by Ralph W. Ashcroft, the secretary's husband and also manager of the Mark Twain Co. at 24 Stone street.

Mark Twain hurried Mrs. Ashcroft home from her honeymoon in Europe by attaching the cottage to collect money advanced by him for its repair. In the haste of her resentment she deeded back the property to the humorist. Mr. Ashcroft now says that she will get it again, possibly by resort to court, and that the repair bills will be settled under a separate agreement.

All that has happened of an unpleasant nature is attributed, in Mr. Ashcroft's statement, to the jealousy of the Misses Clemens, who resented the influence of Miss Lyon over their father in the management of his affairs following the death of Mrs. Clemens in Italy in 1904. Both of the daughters were in sanitariums, he says, most of the time for two years after that affliction. Miss Lyon naturally became the hostess and person of affairs at the Clemens home.

Writer Expresses Confidence.

A letter from Mark Twain to one of the daughters who bitterly criticised Miss Lyons two years ago is quoted by Mr. Ashcroft.

"I have somebody in whom I have confidence to attend to every detail of my daily affairs for me except my literary affairs," he wrote. "I attend to not one of them myself. * * * She has failed to gain your confidence and esteem, and I am sorry. I wish it were otherwise, but it is no argument, since she has not failed in any other person's case. One failure to 1500 successes means that the fault is not in her."

Mark Twain placed all his financial responsibilities on Miss Lyon's shoulders, Mr. Ashcroft says. She followed the custom in vogue under the regime of Mrs. Clemens. No books of account were kept, except check books. There was no record of cash expenditures.

It comes with ill grace, Mr. Ashcroft says, for Miss Clara Clemens to charge improper use of such cash, considering that it was freely used for the expenses of Miss Clemens' concert tours. Failure of these tours, he urges, furnished no just cause for resenting the successful management of Mark Twain's affairs by Miss Lyon, but the abandonment of the tours engendered the bitterness that culminated in the cottage attachment.

H. H. Rogers Mentioned.

Mr. Ashcroft includes in his statement an agreement regarding money advanced for cottage repairs, drawn between himself and Mark Twain on March 13 of the present year. It receipts for $982.47 in promissory notes from Mr. Ashcroft, that being the estimated balance due on money advanced to Miss Lyon for renovation of the Lobster Pot, it being understood that further repayments would be made by Ashcroft if the checkbooks for the year ending Feb. 23 should show that more than the sum named had been advanced for this purpose.

H. H. Rogers figures in the statement as an admirer of Miss Lyon for her services to Mark Twain when the death of Mrs. Clemens left him like a ship without a rudder. She came to the front at that trying time and kept there and no one had a right to criticise her, in Mr. Rogers' opinion. Mr. Ashcroft says that but for the sudden death of Mr. Rogers the affair would have been settled long ago without any publicity.

TWO KILLED IN MISSOURI FEUD

Father Shot Down by Neighbor, Son Slays Another.

NEW MADRID, Mo., Aug. 4.—A neighborhood feud resulted in the death yesterday of M. Chimel, who was shot Monday by Will Williford. The slayer, who has acquired a reputation as a dangerous man, was arrested.

The elder Williford came to town Tuesday, had trouble with Richard Hunot, and was arrested and placed under bond. On the way home Williford met Frank Henry, another neighbor, and drew a knife. Henry shot five times, killing Williford instantly. Henry placed himself in the care of the sheriff.

PAWNS RING, BUYS REVOLVER HUNTS MAN, KILLS BYSTANDER

Negress Stands a Dozen Men Against Saloon Wall, but Shoots Wrong One.

After standing a dozen men against the wall with a revolver, in robber fashion, Jeanette Eadler, a negress, began shooting at Harry Shannon, in a saloon at 2036 Franklin avenue, Tuesday night. The first bullet struck Sam Nelson, colored, in the breast, and he died in an ambulance.

The second bullet went within an inch of Shannon's head. Before the woman could fire any more shots, her human target fled from the saloon, she following. A crowd of men pursued her and caught her at Twenty-first and Morgan streets, where, after a struggle, they wrested the weapon from her and turned her over to a policeman.

According to her story, told at the Carr Street Police Station, Shannon struck her in her home at 3312 Blair avenue. After seeing him enter the saloon, she pawned a diamond ring and purchased a revolver.

PROGRAM FOR TAFT'S VISIT TO ST. LOUIS IS ANNOUNCED

President Will Spend Eight and a Half Hours in Speaking and Dining..

President Taft will spend eight and one-half hours in St. Louis when he makes his Western trip in October, according to dispatches from Washington, where the plans for the trip were made public by his secretary. The day will be spent in eating, speech-making and the dedication of the new Federal building in East St. Louis.

President Taft will reach St. Louis at 7:30 a. m. Oct. 25 and will be the guest of the Commercial Club at breakfast at the Planters Hotel. At 11 a. m. he will deliver an address at the Coliseum and at 1:30 p. m. will attend a luncheon at Hotel Jefferson under the auspices of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway Association.

After the luncheon the President will be escorted to East St. Louis by the East Side Commercial Club. He will deliver a short address at the dedication of the East St. Louis Federal building and will return to St. Louis in time to board the boat at 4 p. m. for Memphis.

The President's boat will be escorted by 100 vessels, two of which will be ships of the navy. Stops will be made at Cape Girardeau, Cairo and Caruthersville.

BREWERY EMPLOYE DISLIKES PROMOTION; SHOOTS HIMSELF

Manager of Bottling Department Ends Life on Sidewalk in Florisant.

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury in the case of Charles W. Sumner of 3703 Sumner avenue, who sat down on the sidewalk near the home of Robert Patterson at Florisant Tuesday forenoon and shot himself behind the right ear.

Sumner, who was 42 years old, had been head bookkeeper for the City Brewing Co. for seven years, at a salary of $100 a month. A month ago he was made manager of the bottling department, with a salary of $125. He had been married and divorced. His former wife is married again.

It is said by members of his family that Sumner was dissatisfied with his new position and that he was in bad health. He left a brief note, which his father received through the mail Tuesday afternoon, but this did not explain his suicide. His mother says she thinks he suddenly lost his mind.

Instead of going to his employment Tuesday morning, Sumner rode out to Florisant on a car. Mrs. Fred Raisch of 3845 Illinois avenue, who happened to be in Florisant, saw Sumner shoot himself and notified the authorities.

CHARGE AGAINST NEGRO OF MISUSING MAILS IS DROPPED

The charge of misusing the mails, on which Ollie Jackson, a negro, manager of the Modern Horseshoe Club at 2309 Chestnut street, was under bond, was dismissed Wednesday by United States Commissioner Morsey.

Jackson wrote a letter to Miss Bertha Becker, manager of the complaint department at Barr's, enclosing $25 and telling the girl to use it in buying silk stockings. The negro called up Miss Becker over the telephone and made an engagement to meet her at Grand and Lawton avenues. Miss Becker notified the police. By prearrangement two detectives waited there and placed Jackson under arrest.

The theory on which Jackson was held for preliminary hearing was that his sending the letter, in connection with his telephone communications with Miss Becker, constituted a violation of the federal laws.

Commissioner Morsey ruled that there was nothing in the letter of a character that would exclude it from the mails, and that the government could not take cognizance of the telephone messages.

How God Knew It.

From the Delineator.

Bobby's father, who was a minister, asked his little son if he could tell him how God knew that Adam and Eve had eaten the apple from the "tree of knowledge of good and evil." This was a hard question for such a little fellow, and after thinking for some time he replied: "I don't know, papa, less 'twas by finding the peelings."

"You don't know how good Toasted Corn Flakes can be until you have eaten EC Corn Flakes."

See this foolish man. It is just as foolish to eat heat-foods in hot weather. Try a breakfast of dainty, crisp EC Corn Flakes. As delicious as a confection. More wholesome than bread or meat.

Be sure you get the right kind. Watch for the EC on the package.

AMERICAN GRACE DARLING ADDS 4 TO RESCUE LIST

Ida Lewis, 68 Years Old, Lighthouse Keeper, Has Saved 22 Lives.

TAKES GIRLS FROM SEA

Passing Steamer's Swell Swamps Boat and Woman Saves Occupants.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 4.—Ida Lewis, "the Grace Darling of America," who, from Lime Rock Lighthouse, off this harbor, had saved the lives of 18 persons, added four more rescues to her record Monday evening.

Ida Lewis is 68 years old and for 30 years she has kept burning the light of Lime Rock, helping and succeeding her father, Capt. Hosia Wilson. Often through angry seas she has rowed to lift the drowning in her tossing boat. The American Congress and foreign societies have decorated her with medals; all Newport honored her when she celebrated her golden anniversary as occupant of the lighthouse.

A steamboat from New York, the Commonwealth, gave the aged life-saver her latest opportunity. The Commonwealth raised so heavy a swell at Fall River that she upset a rowboat, from which a man was drowned, it is said.

An hour later the Commonwealth rounded the south end of the torpedo station here, leaving and spreading a tumultuous wake. Up to that time the water had been as smooth as a sea of ice, and five frolicking girls had ventured out on it in the moonlight.

The waves overturned their boat. Instantly they were shrieking and struggling. Ida Lewis, from her eyrie at the south end of the harbor on a cluster of rocks, saw the girls' danger and jumped into her lifeboat, named like the first one, "The Rescue."

With bravery and vigor remarkable in a woman of nearly three-score-and-ten, she rowed to the girls, and, one after another, lifted them into her boat. She would not tell their names. She described her feat modestly.

Girl Saves Three From Lake.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Miss Grace Kane, daughter of Michael N. Kane of Warwick, Orange County, while at Wickham Lake, a summer resort near here, rescued three persons from drowning yesterday.

Miss Sally Drew, a kindergarten teacher, daughter of A. H. Drew, a wealthy merchant of Warwick, went bathing with Molly Sayer, a child of 12. Suddenly there was a struggle and cries for help came over the waters.

Cornell Vail went to their rescue, but woman and child seized their rescuer, impeding his movements. His strength was fast giving out when Miss Kane, who is an expert swimmer, heard his cries for help, and, jumping up from the dinner table, stripped herself to her bathing suit, ran to the water's edge and plunged in. She seized Miss Drew and swam ashore with her. She returned and brought ashore Vail and his burden.

Three Women Drowned from Launch.

CLARION, Io., Aug. 4.—Mrs. C. S. Bennett, Hazel Hudleson and Eva Porter of this place were drowned on Elm Lake last evening. A dozen girls had crossed the lake in a gasoline launch and in a rowboat and were returning when the rowboat began to sink. The girls crowded into the launch, which sank with all on board. All but three were saved. The bodies have been recovered.

ROUMANIAN SOCIOLOGIST GUEST OF ST. LOUIS FRIEND

Sebastian Librescu, Who Opened New York Libraries at Night, Visits O. Leonard.

Sebastian Librescu, who started the movement, since successful, for the opening at night of the New York Public Library branches for the benefit of working people, is in St. Louis and expects to engage in library and social settlement work among his countrymen, the Roumanians. He is a guest of O Leonard of 2817 Gamble street, whose translation of the Roumanian drama, "New Lamps and Old," was seen for a week at Suburban Garden recently.

While at the Rivington street branch of the New York Public Library, Librescue instituted, through the Licht und Wahrheit settlement group, a movement to have libraries open after 6 p. m. Civic organizations indorsed the movement and in December the order opening the libraries at night and on Sunday issued.

JOY AT COMING MEETING WITH DAUGHTER KILLS MOTHER

Mrs. Hattie Mochrie Expires in Union Station Soon After Greeting Son-in-law.

Anticipated joy at meeting her daughter, whom she had not seen for several years, caused the death of Mrs. Hattie Mochrie of Covington, Ky., at Union Station, Tuesday night.

Mrs. Mochrie had just stepped from a train and was walking toward her son-in-law, T. A. Line of 3427 Abner place, who had gone to the station to meet her, when she fell unconscious. She was carried into the Terminal Hotel, where she expired two hours later.

Line told the police his mother-in-law had heart trouble. She was 63 years old.

GEN. REYES ADVISES FRIENDS TO SUPPORT VICE-PRESIDENT

Open Letter Regarded by Mexican Administration as Withdrawal From Contest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 4.—Gen. Bernardo Reyes has written an open letter, advising his supporters, in rather vague terms, to support Vice-President Ramon Corral for re-election, as a "patriotic duty." This is looked on by the administration as a withdrawal by Reyes from the contest for the vice-presidency.

The Reyistas, or Democratic party, believe that Reyes will later become an open candidate if the strength of the opposition to Corral seems to justify it. At present, they explain, he desires to avoid antagonizing President Diaz. The recent riot at Guadalajara, which the Reyistas have been accused of inciting, is held to be the cause of his letter.

POLICE BOARD WILL CONSIDER BOXING PLANS

President Laird Favorably Inclined If Law Can Be Construed to Permit Reopening the Sport.

IS boxing coming to St. Louis again?

This is the question that promoters and many interested followers of the game are now discussing. Influence has had the subject brought up informally before the President of the Police Board and those interested are anxiously looking forward to a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners to be held Friday, at which it is possible that a decision favorable to the reopening of the game in St. Louis will be handed down.

Among men who in former years attended boxing bouts when they were permitted in St. Louis it is common talk that the boxing game will reopen in St. Louis, in all probability with a series of bouts during Centennial week. That boxing promoters think the time is ripe for the boxing game in St. Louis to again get into full swing is evidenced by the fact that no less than four men are expected to make applications to the Board of Police Commissioners to hold boxing contests if the Board sees fit to decide that restricted boxing bouts are not illegal.

When Col. John A. Laird, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, was visited by a reporter from the Post-Dispatch Tuesday at his office in the Chemical Building, he seemed perfectly willing to discuss all of the phases of the boxing game.

"Have you been approached by any local men with a request to allow boxing bouts in St. Louis?" Col. Laird was asked as an opening wedge.

"Yes, I have," he answered. "A few days ago Walter Brinkop and a gentleman named Morris came to my office and asked permission to bring off boxing bouts."

"What was your answer?" Col. Laird was asked.

"Well, I told them that I did not understand the local situation thoroughly, but I am in favor of boxing, and think it a fine, manly sport. I also told them to make out a written statement as to their plan of bringing off bouts in St. Louis. They stated that they would be glad to do so. If I get their statement in time, I will place it before the Board meeting Friday for the consideration of the members."

"You are yourself interested in the boxing game, are you not?" Col. Laird was asked.

"Why, I like boxing and always have. I like to see a bout. I am an amateur, and consider myself a pretty good amateur at that. I like good, clean amateur sport of any kind."

This was a bit puzzling and Col. Laird was reminded that it was not amateur bouts that the promoters wanted to bring off in St. Louis, but professional bouts, as amateur contests are already permitted at bona fide clubs when held under the auspices of the A. A. U.

BATTLES FOUGHT IN MISSOURI WHILE LID WAS ON LOCAL CLUBS

PROFESSIONAL boxing bouts, held openly and announced as such in different cities throughout the State, recently:

Packey McFarland and Harry Trendall, at Kansas City, 10 rounds.

Harry Trendall and Phil Knight, three times, Kansas City, 15 rounds.

Harry Trendall and Joe Galligan, at Kansas City 10 rounds.

Johnny Reagan and "Kid" Roach, twice at Joplin, Mo., 10 rounds.

"Kid" Silverburg and a Chicago fighter, at St. Joseph, Mo.

Police Board's President Says He Will Ask for Legal Opinion

"PROFESSIONAL bouts, eh? Well that's a different thing. I was under the impression that it was permission to bring off amateur bouts that was wanted. I don't fancy the professional boxing game. The bouts cause talk and result in so much petty quarreling that I could never take much interest in professional sport."

"But is a restricted bout between professionals against the law in Missouri?" was the next question.

"I couldn't tell you off hand, as I am not fully posted on the law pertaining to boxing in this State."

"Do you think that you would sanction the holding of professional boxing bouts in St. Louis?"

"Certainly not, if they are against the laws."

"Boxing bouts between well-known professionals are frequently decided at Kansas City, Joplin, Sedalia and other cities throughout the State," persisted the reporter.

"Well, I don't know, but under the circumstances it does look like what's good for the goose is good for the gander. Nevertheless, because somebody else breaks the law is no excuse for St. Louis to do it also."

"How long will it be, do you think, before a decision can be handed down by the Board as to whether or not boxing will be permitted in St. Louis?"

"If I receive the petition of the men who want to hold boxing bouts in time, I will bring it up at the meeting Friday. If the members of the Board seem favorably inclined towards going further with the petition, I will have the law on boxing in Missouri looked up by the City Counselor. If he decides that boxing bouts, as planned by the men who visited me are not in violation of the laws, we can have boxing bouts. That shouldn't take very long, should it?"

"But don't forget that I like boxing, and am in favor of the sport," again insisted the Colonel as the reporter rose to go.

"Yes," as he pushed his right hand through his pompadour, "I like boxing, but I admire amateurs more than professionals."

Bland Opposes Boxing.

The other members of the Board of Police Commissioners, interviewed on the subject, expressed themselves as follows:

THEODORIC BLAND: I am against allowing professional boxing bouts in St. Louis, as it was decided once before that they are illegal. There is room for contention on this point, however. While the bouts may be inoffensive, I am opposed to allowing them until we get an opinion that they are not against the law.

OTTO L. TEICHMANN: Col Laird is spokesman of the Board of Police Commissioners and as I am not very well informed on the matter of professional boxing I will have to leave the Colonel do the talking for me.

George P. Jones, the third member of the Board, has left the city on a vacation.

Wrangle of Promoters Put Out the Game That Once Flourished

INTEREST in the revival of the boxing game recalls the fact that shortly before the World's Fair year St. Louis was the center of the boxing game and that some important championship contests were decided in this city.

Abe Attell, featherweight champion, really got his first start towards the top when he defeated George Dixon in this city. Later Harry Forbes won the bantamweight championship in this city when he won from Danny Dougherty on two different occasions. Johnny Regan, Tommy Feltz, Clarence Forbes and Benny Yanger all put up their best exhibitions in this city. Most of the bouts were between featherweights and lightweights. The club members did not seem to take to the big men, who, in most cases, were sluggers, with the exception of "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien, the Sullivan brothers, Mike and Jack, and big Andy Walsh. Hugh Kelly and Mike Schreck were other big men who boxed in this city, but the little fellows put up the fastest and most exciting bouts. In fact, they furnished more of an exhibition than a fight.

That boxing is not permitted in St. Louis today is due to a row that broke out among the promoters. One club was running which was bringing off first-class bouts, and several smaller clubs were staging occasional shows for less prominent fighters. Then a Chicago promoter tried to cut in on the game with a fight between Jimmy W[illegible] of Boston and Monte Attell. The result was that the bout was forbidden and no bouts have been held in St. Louis that have been publicly announced as professional contests since.

Nevertheless Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo., Joplin, Mo., Sedalia and other cities throughout the State hold boxing bouts whenever a promoter sees fit to put one on. That these cities are in the same State as St. Louis is the strong argument of the promoters why St. Louis should have boxing bouts. It is generally admitted that if boxing is reopened in St. Louis that the promoters will reap a golden harvest, as, outside of baseball, there is not another professional sport in St. Louis worth the name.

Lambert E. Walther, City Counselor, said Wednesday morning that he was not much of an authority on boxing, and that he has not had any occasion, in recent years, to examine the law pertaining to boxing in Missouri. When asked if he could render, off-hand, an opinion as to whether boxing would be legal in Missouri he declared that he would not like to make any definite statement on the matter until he had looked up the law on the case. Mr. Walther stated that he has heard nothing from Col. Laird in regard to professional boxing, but would be glad to look up the matter for him, if he so wished.

Once before a City Counselor was called upon to hand down an opinion in the matter. It was City Counselor Bates[illegible] At that time the Police Board, fol[illegible] Counselor Bates' [illegible]nstructions, put the lid on all save amateur bouts, even when held before clubs.

Since that time the attitude of the law toward the game has altered. A prominent boxing authority of this city, who did not care to have his name mentioned, expressed himself as follows this morning:

"Courts have handed down decisions since the losing out of the game here which, I think, render untenable the position that professional bouts, held in private and for no prize, are illegal. In New York it has been decided that a fight before a club, whose members only can witness the fray, is not a public bout, in the eyes of the law. Also a Louisville court has held that where fighters are paid to perform, a fight is not a prize fight, provided no title, honor or specific purse to be divided, win or lose, goes with the contest.

"The Missouri law is an old one and is not any more specific than it was when first put on the books.

"It provides against 'public prizefights' or arranging of them in this State. The matter is entirely one of construction and if the authorities are so minded they can permit modified boxing contests by professionals in this or any other city in the State.

"I think the authorities owe it to the promoters to be lenient, as the law on the books today was drafted to meet conditions that were altogether different. That law was on the books back in the bare-knuckle days of brutality and thuggery. I think that the exhibitions of today, say of six or ten rounds, without a decision, with no title at stake, before legitimate clubs and for the benefit of their members only, would be strictly within even the letter of the law."

This opinion was indorsed some years ago by Lawyer Paul Dillon, who looked up the subject for the Missouri Athletic Club. As the police persisted in their determination to put down bouts at that time, the M. A. C. stopped all action and the case never came to a test.

UMPIRE HURST EXPECTORATES IN COLLINS' EYE

Philadelphia Mob Is Prevented From Wreaking Vengeance by Squad of Police.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Umpire Hurst's action in spitting in Eddie Collins' face has created a sensation in baseball circles here.

There is no doubt as to Hurst's action. Tim's act followed Collins' resenting a decision at second base. Collins argued with Hurst about the decision calling him out at second in the eighth.

Just what Collins said to Hurst to provoke him to lose control of himself could not be heard, but during the wordy war Umpire Hurst spat in the popular second baseman's eye.

The fans waited for Hurst after the game. His umps was ushered off the field mid a few pop bottles and other things, chief among them being the hoots and hisses of the multitude, while the fans from the lower grandstand and bleachers amused themselves with his umps and the cops.

Those in the upper pavilion got much fun out of denting the beans of the mobbish ones with cushions, while more than a dozen straw and other hats were fit for the ash can this morning. No one was injured.

BOB CONNERY HAS GREAT SUCCESS AT HARTFORD

Bob Connery, the former Trolley League player who made the White Seals famous in this city, is having great success as manager of the Hartford team in the Connecticut State League. A letter from Bob to Tom Cahill of this city has just arrived, and Bob tells of selling a pitcher named Fisher to the New York American League team for $2000. He has sold a pitcher named Evans to the Boston Nationals for $2500.

Connery says he has a third baseman in Metzger that is a coming star. Several big league teams have already made offers for the boy, but he is not yet on the market. It is likely that Owner Hedges of the Browns will send a scout to see the player upon Connery's recommendation.

Connery has brought the Hartford team from the bottom to the top in a year.

GARRY HERRMANN LIKES NIGHT BASEBALL PLAN

August Herrmann, president of the National Baseball Commission, is a strong believer in the future greatness of night baseball. "There is a branch of the sport that is going ahead," he said recently. "When the feeding of the carbon is perfected night baseball will go ahead in jumps. The carbon is fed by hand now, and frequently when a change is made it causes a flicker that loses the fly from sight for a second or so. All the big league parks are being furnished with the lighting devices. It not alone makes it possible for baseball, but it gives the promoters opportunity to rent the park for a political meeting, football games and other uses."

"Kid" Sullivan Is Victor.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4.—"Kid" Sullivan of Washington won from Dummy Decker in this city in the sixth round, before the Eureka Athletic Club, Tuesday night.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

OF course, it is almost unnecessary to say that Sparks did not set the world afire Tuesdey.

The Boston club, long known as the Beans, of the baked variety, have been careless enough to permit an interloper of a different family to cozzen his way into their midst. This is the Coffey bean. He has taken root at short.

Two "outlaws" who were once very fierce in the Tri-State in other days, seem very tame since their return to law and order—Sebring and Ward.

Bat Nelson's experience in being politely refused a room at a gilt-lined hostelry in Philadelphia, with the excuse that the "house was filled," will remind Tommy Ryan's friends of an experience that fighter had at one of the exclusive establishments in Chicago a fews years since. Ryan was then very much in the public eye and decided he would pose a bit, even it it cost him a little more.

Thomas wasn't often in the habit of letting his personal vanity get a big lead on his pocketbook, "but just for once" he wanted to rub elbows with the elect.

Thomas, lit up with karats from figurehead to 'midships, bowled up to the counter and registered under his fighting name. The clerk turned the book around, looked at the signature, sized up Thomas and said, blandly:

"Sorry, but we are all full."

Ryan took the count for three seconds, in order to take in the true import of the remark, when, picking up his grip, he replied:

"I must say you don't look it," and walked out, leaving the clerk pondering.

Evidently the kidnapers who have demanded that big ransom from the macaroni manufacturer are not true sports—they're simply after the "dough."

Tim Hurst, the only umpire who can call a play at third base while trying to look through the second baseman's back, was again the recipient on encomiums at Philadelphia Tuesday. There were no bottles among these, however, and nothing harder than words reached him. The police escorted him from the park, while the mob gnashed its teeth. Report states that had he fallen unprotected into the clutches of the Quaker fans they would likely have fatally wounded his new uniform trousers.

Tim, however, will be fit for work Wednesday—that is, physically fit.

Going for Good?

PROBABLY the finest trophy that is up for open competition in athletic events of the West will be retired permanently this year, unless the unexpected, the very much unexpected, comes to pass. It is the splendid Busch trophy, worth several hundreds of dollars, emblematic of the 10-mile river swimming championship. Probably no amateur trophy in the country, perhaps in the world, which is a prize that goes to a single individual permanently, is as handsome or as costly as this one.

The athletes of the West would very much like to keep the trophy in constant competition, but the chances are that this event which, as usual, will take place on the Mississippi River under the auspices of the Missouri Athletic Club next month will again be won by Harry J. Handy of Chicago. Bud Goodwin and C. M. Daniels, two of New York's best swimmers, were supposed to compete this year, with the express intention of keeping the valuable trophy in competition.

For Handy has already won it twice and the third time he takes it it will become his for all time. Goodwin and Daniels could probably "team" Handy out of the cup and thus keep alive the event that has become famous throughout the country since John C. Meyers established it. But the chances are they will fall down at the last moment and not appear for the event, leaving Handy to be opposed only by the second-rate men of the country.

St. Louis can hardly afford to have this splendid event lapse for want of a suitable prize and it therefore behooves Messrs. Goessling, the Schwarz brothers, Martin and the local lot train hard for the contest.

Handy was beaten once, by a St. Louis man, and he can be beaten again by hard work. But the half-hearted practice that has so far been undertaken is not the sort that will defeat a swimmer of Handy's mettle.

Handy swam the entire distance at a sprint stroke last year, using the "crawl" throughout. As regular as a machine he plunged his head under the water for three strokes, lifted one for air and dipped again. It was beautiful work. And however well the St. Louis men may train, if Handy works equally hard in preparation, it is probable that not one save Charlie Daniels can hope to keep the trophy permanently out of Chicago.

Youth and Boxing.

JEFFRIES is 34 years old and has proven that he is still able to train down to physical fitness. He has done it, and really it seems that all he needs to perfect him for a fight with any scrapper is the development of his "wind."

Jeffries' feat must bewilder the majority of fighters who are down-and-out, far under thirty. The little men, who should find training easier and a longer life in the ring, invariably give out, as far as top notch ability is concerned, at 25 or shortly after. There's Young Corbett, who is 29—a dead one for several years. Terry McGovern, in a sanitarium, unbalanced at the same age—a relic of four of five years. Britt, under 30, succumbed to an Englishman he defeated several years ago. And so on down the list. The trail of pugilism is lined with the skeleton careers of young-old men.

The fault is plain, and it is not so much dissipation as one would think. It is the fact that youngsters, unformed physically, take up a bitter, hard game while they are yet in their process of development. At the tender age of 16 a serious beating is likely to ruin a young man for all time, and it will surely have a serious effect upon him later in life. But, dazzled by a prospect of fame, the youngsters of class keep to the task until they are burned out ere they have scarcely reached what, in an ordinary man, is his majority.

If fighting is ever to become general again, it should be with the stipulation that boys under age should be kept out of it.

FOURTH PLACE NOW IN SIGHT OF CARDINALS

By JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

THERE'S a splendid chance for the Cardinals to fight their way into the first division; that is, with the first four teams, before the finish of the National League race this year. It's by no means impossible, but it will mean they will have to play a strong game all the way, a much stronger game than Cincinnati and Philadelphia. The Cardinals are now but six games behind Cincinnati, the present possessor of fourth place.

The reason for the belief that Roger and his boys may battle their way into a place with the first four is that the Cardinals have been playing better baseball than either Cincinnati or Philadelphia for the past month or more, and if it is continued to the end of the race, which will be about two months from now, the Cardinals will be in the lead of both of those teams.

Such a finish would be far beyond the expectations of any of the St. Louis fans; and, in fact, they will be perfectly satisfied with this year's results if the Cardinals hold firmly to sixth place. It would be an immense feather in Roger Bresnahan's cap, however, if he could land his kids in the first division, and he's the kind of man to put them there.

The Cardinals showed vast superiority over the Phillies in the game of Tuesday afternoon, the first of a series of four. The superiority seemed to be caused by a difference in spirit. The Cardinals were full of life and were going the limit all the time. The Phillies were dragging. They played with that spirit that makes one think of blasted hopes and hard luck and bad breaks. That's the spirit that will drag down a team quicker than a lot of injured stars or a lot of bush league members.

Man for man, the Phillies are better than the Cardinals. It's a team that classes well in any company. There are great batters and strong pitchers and excellent fielders on the team. Yet it has lost most consistently all through the season. It was a team, picked by many in the spring as the one most likely to contend with the Cubs for the pennant. It has been a rank failure.

Possibly when the troubles of the club, regarding the manager, have all been settled, Billy Murray, the present leader and the one almost sure to be retained, will get the team going better. He's a smart baseball man of the old school and deserves better results.

On the other hand, the play of the Cardinals should improve from now to the end of the season. The club is only beginning to round into form. Many changes have been made since Roger took command last spring. He has picked up a few live pitchers and shook out a few he did not want to keep. He has still more changes to make. The team has been greatly crippled because of Roger's own injury, which is keeping him out of the game. Shortstop Hulswitt is also out. Both will be in line for the run down the homestretch, so there is a reason for believing the team will put up a terrific fight from now on.

It's a great deal to expect of Mr. Bresnahan, but if he can push the Cardinals into the first division in his first year out, he will be crowned king of leaders.

NO one on the Cardinals' team is playing better ball at the present time or has shown more improvement this season than Charles. He's been performing at shortstop since the injury to Hulswitt, but whether there or at his regular position of second base, he seems to have acquired a stride that is going to make him one of the best infielders in the game. Charles has a lot of speed, he can cover a lot of ground and he can handle ground balls and throw with the best ones in the game. A year ago he was tried at shortstop and didn't know how to play the position. Now he is a surprise there. In Tuesday's game he stabbed a low line drive back of third base with his bare hand. Another time he scooped a vicious grounder out of the earth close to second base, stepped on the bag and shot to first for a brilliant double play. His hitting, too, has been strong this year, and since he won the game recently with the three-bagger in the ninth inning that drove home three runs, just enough to win, he has become one of the batting kings of the park.

Worth 10c, costs 5c, best yet. Try it. Bull Durham Cigar.

Browns Miss Chance to Capture a Doubleheader

Chance to Tally What Would Have Been Winning Run in First Game, Is Tossed Away When Ferris Fails.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—It was only hard luck that the Brownies did not get aawy with both games Tuesday. The one particular piece of hard luck which sent the first game into extra innings and a final defeat for the St. Louisans came in the eighth inning. Griggs opened it up as auspiciously as a charity ball with a fine safe wallop and Jones was there with the neat little sacrifice to help him along.

Griggs was limping and McAleese went out and ran for him. Then Williams contributed a nice single that put McAleese on third, with only one down, and it looked good for a run, which, as events turned out, would have won the game. Ferris distinguished himself the first time up with a three-bagger, and had followed that with two infield outs. He looked due to hit it again, but the play that followed looked so much like an attempt at a "squeeze" that anyone not knowing McAleer's rooted objection to that feature of baseball would have been sure it had been attempted. As Ferris met the ball McAleese was half way to the plate. But Ferris merely poked it straight down the line at Austin, and McAleese was trapped and was soon run down. That made two down and the best Stephens could do was to send a long fly to left. After that they never had a chance.

In the two games there were seven pitchers used. Each club used two pitchers in the first game, and in the second game Stallings sent King Brockett in to take Lake's place after the deliberative Joseph had in the third inning struck out the first two men up, then been touched for a double and a single, which, with a base on balls, totalled two runs.

Brockett pitched great ball, but Dinneen was holding the Yankees as tight as you please and the New Yorkers could never get awa[illegible] with anything that looked like runs, except in the sixth inning. That was their only chance. In that inning they got three singles, which, with a base on balls, netted two runs. The two runs were scored by Engle and Elberfeld. Austin produced the hit that brought results, a nice, handy sort of a single to right. Elberfeld was at third base by the time the ball hit the ground and turned and rushed for home in such a hurry that he was less than a yard behind Engle when the left-fielder touched the plate.

Bases on balls were unusually expensive. Of the five men that got to first by the bonus route in the first game, two scored. In the second game five walked and three came home. Incidentally, the three that scored from that beginning were all Brownies.

Because of the great slaughter among the pitchers, the original intention to have a double-header Wednesday and a single game Thursday changed about and there will be but one game today and two tomorrow. Pelty will probably pitch for St. Louis this afternoon.

Waddell started out like he was going to make marks of Stallings' pets in the opening game, but after hitting Chase with a pitched ball he seemed to lose control entirely, and he had the game in a hole when he was taken out at the end of the inning.

Ferris was lucky to get credit for a home run on his smash in the second inning of the opening game. The ball was back to Kleinow in plenty of time to catch him, but it took a bad bound and instead of landing in the catcher's mitt, hit him on the shoulder and bounded away. That was why the catcher was not charged with an error on the play.

HIP BROKEN IN FALL, YOUTH "HOPS FREIGHT" AND RIDES "BUMPERS" ACROSS BRIDGE

Fell 30 Feet From Trestle, but Dragged Himself to a Moving Train.

After his hip had been broken in a 30-foot fall from the trestlework on the east approach of Eads Bridge, Robert Gordon, 18 years old, of 2953 Dickson street, dragged himself to the railroad tracks, more than a block distant, and "hopped" the bumpers of a freight train. When he reached the Sixteenth street yards he fell from the train, exhausted, and lay almost senseless on the ground for several hours before help arrived.

Gordon had been swimming on the East Side and at 10 p. m. started home. In crossing the trestlework to the foot bridge he slipped and fell.

"I don't know how I managed to do it," said Gordon, when he landed at the City Hospital six hours later. "I couldn't walk, but the thought of lying over there all night spurred me on. When the freight passed I just lifted myself onto the bumpers without any thought of the risk I was running."

Gordon was found in the St. Louis railroad yards by J. A. Moore, a switchman, living at 3101 Adams street, who called an ambulance.

PURE MILK AID COMES IN FREELY FROM CHILDREN

6-Year-Old Girl Sells Piece of Fancy Work She Made Herself.

Contributions to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund to save the lives of the tenement babies are coming in freely from the children. There seems to be a disposition on the part of many grown-up people to let the children do practically all of this important work.

Here are a few letters which show who is furnishing the money to save the lives of the babies:

We love to help the babies. Inclosed find $2 from two little girls, age 10 and 11 years.

EMMA HOAGLAND, 4222 Page.
LORRAINE HIRT, 4289 Page.

I send 75 cents for the sick babies. I have earned it all myself doing a piece of fancy work and selling lemonade with the help of some of my little friends. Hoping this will help some poor baby, I am,

Yours truly,
VIOLA MORSE, 6 years old.

Two little girls who were too young to write themselves had Mrs. C. D. Campbell to write this letter to the Post-Dispatch for them:

Jean Campbell of 5629 Vernon avenue, assisted by Margaret Nettler of 5649 Vernon avenue, sold lemonade one afternoon last week, taking in 90 cents, which they wish to contribute to the Pure Milk and Ice Fund for sick babies.

Money From Michigan.

From Wequetonsing, Mich., where she is spending the summer, Mrs. L. P. Miltenberger sends $3 for the Pure Milk Fund. She is one of the grown-ups who do not forget the suffering babies.

Read what this 10-year-old boy and his little friends did for the babies:

George Rosenfeld of 3970 Wyoming street, and 10 of his playmates gave a lawn festival at his home. Now how much money would you expect little boys like this to make for a charitable cause?

They sold lemonade, awarded prizes, and served ice cream and when they counted up the nickels and dimes they had $12, which George proudly brought to the Post-Dispatch office and turned over for the sick babies.

Now isn't that a nice charity, and hasn't George and his little friends done more for the sick babies than hundreds of others who are better able to make money and spare some of it for a charitable cause? Have not George and his friends a right to feel proud of the fact that by their efforts they have saved some poor baby's life?

Little Girls Earn.

Listen again: Ethel Stahl, aged 13, of 1432 North Twenty-third street and Elsie Pettker, aged 8, of 2800 Cass avenue, earned $1 for the babies by selling lemonade at a stand at Twenty-third street and Cass avenue. The sun was not too hot for these little charity workers. They went out and got the money and cheerfully gave it for the benefit of the suffering babies of the tenements.

The record of the deeds of children is a long one, and is not yet finished. Here are other little workers in the great cause: Helen Giesow, aged 6, and Master Leonard Peters, aged 10, sang at a moving picture show benefit at the Castle Theater, Warne and Florissant avenues, and helped to earn the $50 that was turned in to the Pure Milk Fund.

Lillian Schafer and Baby Sturmfels also sang at this benefit and did their share. Tucker and Williams, musicians, also volunteered their services and played some excellent music.

Day after day the children come in with their money, and some excellent reports are to be made later.

COLORS RIOTING AT PIASA; PINKS OPPOSE GREENS

Chautauquans Take Sides in Dispute About Platform Decorations.

The battle of the pinks and greens is on at Piasa Chautauqua. Every Chautauquan is either a partisan of the pink or the green. There are no mugwumps.

The pinks are those who favor pink for a platform decoration. The greens are those who think that green beats pink for that particular purpose.

The color scheme at the opening of the assembly was pink and everybody agreed that it was very pretty. In the absence of Mrs. A. T. Flint, chairman of the Committee on Decoration, Mrs. J. P. Woods had taken the initiative. Pink is her favorite color.

In former seasons the platform had been decorated but once and it was supposed that the pink decorations would stay up all summer. When the pink disappeared at the end of the first week and green decorations took its place, there was a protest from the partisans of the pink.

Change Each Week.

It was explained that there was to be a change of decorations each week. The green color scheme was in honor of Alton day at the resort. Mrs. Nelson Levis of Alton was the creator of it.

The pink partisans protested against the disappearance of their favorite color. The admirers of the green as strongly expressed their approval. Letters were written to the management asking for the restoration of the pink and others asking that the green be retained.

Board Keeps Mum.

The Board of Directors, with great wisdom, staved off interference until the end of the second week, Wednesday. They knew there was to be another change in the decorations then and they hoped that somehow the situation would be relieved.

As the third week begins on Jerseyville day, Mrs. H. Tunehorst of Jerseyville was given charge of the decorations for the week. Mrs. Tunehorst is a diplomat. She may have a favorite color of her own. She isn't saying. She has announced that the color scheme for Jerseyville week will be pink and green. The pink will be restored and the green will be retained and everything will be lovely.

HOT-WEATHER LAXATIVE FREE

At no other time of the year is the tendency to constipation greater than during the summer months, and this is especially the time that it is most important to keep the bowels open. The heat taints food, there are germs in the water, and even fruit has its dangers. For a dozen and one reasons the bowels should be kept open—you should have at least one good passage a day, and in the case of children and young people, two a day is better. The best way to obtain such relief, and to thoroughly regulate the stomach, liver and bowels, is by the use of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN, the great laxative tonic. It is not a temporary relief like salts and purgative waters, and it does not gripe, like tablets and pills. It is so pleasant to take, and so gentle in action, that children prefer it to any other laxative. It is the children's ideal remedy for their stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Use it for constipation, indigestion, sick headache, biliousness, loss of appetite and sleep, drowsiness after eating, diarrhea, "Summer Complaint," gas or wind on the stomach, etc. A bottle can be obtained of any druggist at 50 cents or $1.00. Thousands of families keep it regularly in the house because a laxative may be needed at any moment, and those who once use DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN always prefer it thereafter.

Those who have never yet used DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN and would like to make a test of it before buying in the regular way from their druggist, can obtain a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE either for themselves or any member of their family by sending name and address to the doctor. The sample will be sent to your home free of charge. In this way you can find out what it will do without cost. Also, if the case presents difficulties that doctors and other remedies seem unable to overcome, write a letter to Dr. Caldwell explaining how the person suffers and he will give you his best MEDICAL ADVICE, based on half a century of experience in stomach, liver and bowel diseases, without charge. Women who have children should send for "SUMMER SUGGESTIONS TO MOTHERS," containing the doctor's advice on diet, hygiene, etc., in hot weather—a very important subject. The address is

START ON TRIP, REVEAL WEDDING

East St. Louisans Keep Romance Hidden From Friends.

R. Ford Lemen of 557 North Fourteenth street, East St. Louis, was so successful in keeping his marriage to Miss Loretta Grotte secret, that their parents and friends did not learn of it until they had left on their honeymoon.

They were married by Judge Dickens in East St. Louis July 29. The secret marriage was so well planned that friends were not only ignorant of the marriage itself, but they were also unaware that they were engaged. Mrs. Grote discovered a letter written by her daughter telling of her marriage. The bride and groom are at present traveling in Colorado.

MOTHER SEEKS "JIMMY JAYNES"

"Jimmy" Jaynes of Brighton, Ill., is missing, and a friend of his widowed mother has written to the Post-Dispatch asking that aid be given her in locating him. "Jimmy" Jaynes is 42 years old, and "very simple-minded and very talkative," the writer of the letter says.

He is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. When he left home, the letter says, he wore "an old pair of patched trousers, with suspenders, a black striped shirt with collar attached, a fairly new-looking slouch hat and had no coat or vest on." He was last seen at Brighton at 10 p. m. Thursday, July 22.

TO REMODEL SUBURBAN GARDEN

New Theater, Hotel and Lake to Be Rebuilt at Season's End.

Immediately after the close of the present season remodeling of Suburban Garden will begin, according to the announcement of the Oppenheimer brothers. The improvements are to consist of a new theater, cafe and a small hotel, besides an artificial lake to replace the present small lake.

The lake will be stocked with fish and will furnish the fish for the cafe. Instead of going to the icebox, the cook will get the fish fresh from the lake. It is announced the remodeling of Suburban will not affect the plans of the Oppenheimers to erect a new downtown theater.

NEW PLAY TO BE GIVEN AT THE SUBURBAN

Marguerite Clark Will Be Seen in "The Golden Garter," by E. E. Kidder.

FAVORITE AT DELMAR

Miss Grace Van Studdiford Comes in Revival of "Robin Hood"—Other Bills.

MARGUERITE CLARK will be seen Sunday night in "The Golden Garter." This will be the first performance of the play on any stage and if it is a success Miss Clark will be starred in it the coming season by the Shuberts.

"The Golden Garter" was written by Edward E. Kidder who wrote "Peaceful Valley" and "A Poor Relation," successful comedies in which Sol. Smith Russell starred for many years and which are still yielding royalties to the author.

In "The Golden Garter" Miss Clark has the role of Zaidee, an impish Turkish girl, who is rescued from a plan to send her to the Sultan's harem, by a party of English people. Zaidee repays their interest by falling in love with one of the young men. The party flees Constantinople and is lost in a sand storm, being traced to the desert by a golden garter, found by the irate father.

The closing act is laid in London, where Zaidee upsets the Hadleigh home with her rougery, impudence and bewitching artifices. To escape further annoyances the young man naturally marries the girl and they live happy ever afterwards.

Miss Clark is playing "Peter Pan" this week.

Grace Van Studdiford, the St. Louis prima donna, will open an engagement at Delmar Garden next Sunday evening in "Robin Hood." She will play the part of Maid Marian, the role in which she appeared for several seasons when she was prima donna of the Bostonians.

"Robin Hood" abounds in remarkably beautiful music. Some of the selections are: "Oh, Promise Me," "The Armorer's Song," and "Brown October Ale." When this opera was given at Delmar last season it played to the largest week's business in the history of that popular resort. With Miss Van Studdiford in the cast the piece should be more attractive than ever.

Frank Moulan, in "The Chimes of Normandy," is this week's attraction.

Helen Bertram is to be at Forest Park Highlands next week. It is her first summer engagement in St. Louis since she sang at the Tyrolean Alps. Her companions will be Al Cameron & Co. in "The Last of the Regiment;" Byers and Herman in a spectacular pantomime, Henry Potter and May Harris in a gymnastic display and Wild Wood, a good single entertainer.

The bill this week includes Jarrow, the legerdemain artist, Adele McNeill and her topical songs, the Dunedin cyclists, and the Wilson Brothers.

The New Columbia will open next Monday afternoon, headed by Rosario Guerrero, the famous Spanish beauty, who will make hre first appearance here. Assisted by Signdr Pagileri, Miss Guerrero will present a little story without words, "The Rose and the Dagger," in which she scored a tremendous success in New York.

Miss Mabel McCane, the popular St. Louis girl, in new songs; the Klein Family of seven, in a novel cycling act; Edwina Barry and company in a farce entitled, "The Home Breaker;" John McCloskey, an operatic tenor, with a rich voice, admirably adapted to Irish songs; Henry Clive, a burlesque magician; Mareena, Nevarro and Mareena, acrobats, and Jones and Mayo, mimics and impersonators, are other attractions.

John B. Fleming, for many years manager of the Grand Opera House, will this season preside over the American, which opens its regular season Aug. 15, with the New York musical success, "Follies of the Day." The bookings which have heretofore gone to the Grand have also been transferred to the American. Night prices will range from 15 cents to $1, with 25 and 50 cent matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The improvements and repairs of Havlin's Theater have been entirely completed. Manager Garen has installed an iced-air plant and 40 noiseless fans, which he believes will keep the auditorium 15 to 20 degrees cooler than any outdoor place.

"The Cowboy and the Thief" will open the season at Havlin's next Sunday matinee. It is a new Western play, with a plot that calls for plenty of excitement. Ball scores will be announced from the stage between the acts.

At Eclipse Park the Stanley stock company is presenting "A Woman's Honor." Specialties are introduced between the acts.

LOVE FLED WHEN HUSBAND FOUND SPIRIT AFFINITY

Mrs. Mendelsohn Says He Also Offered Her a Ghostly Lover.

AN IRISHMAN FOR HER

His Was Tall, Handsome Blond, Divorce Seeker Declares.

Mrs. Bessie Mendelsohn of 4457A Cottage avenue said Wednesday she was feeling fine spiritually and otherwise, now that her divorce suit against Jacob Mendelsohn, who has a spirit affinity, is on its way to trial in the materialistic Circuit Court.

Spirits—disembodied, not alcoholic; yet spirits as loquacious as liquor sometimes makes embodied beings—came between the Mendelsohns a dozen years ago, after they had enjoyed 15 years of wedded life. Ever since then the spirits have been causing trouble in the Mendelsohn household.

When poverty comes in at the door, love flies out at the window. It's just the same way as to spirits, or perhaps different in that when the spirits fly in at the window, love walks out at the door. Such is the Mendelsohn experience.

Jacob Mendelsohn associated with spirits so much that in time he came to have a spirit affinity. Not to appear selfish, however, he announced that his wife also had a spirit affinity. There was a difference in the qualities of these affinities which made Mrs. Mendelsohn sufficiently curious to attend a seance and find out about her affinity, though she scoffs at spiritualism.

Hers Was Irish.

"My husband told me," she said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "that my spirit affinity was an Irishman. We, you know, are not Irish. I thought I'd go to a seance and try to find out something about this affinity of mine, whom I never had met and didn't really want to meet, you know.

"So Jacob took me to a seance over in East St. Louis, about three months ago. Mrs. Kate Davis, a medium at 5535 Easton avenue, conducted the seance.

"When I asked her to call up my spirit affinity, she did so. A voice readily recognized by its brogue, though of course I couldn't see the spirit, talked to me. He said he was a very handsome Irishman and was much in love with me. Some day, he said, he would marry me. I was quite pretty, my affinity told me, and far too good to remain the wife of Jacob Mendelsohn."

It was just after Mrs. Mendelsohn met her affinity voice to voice that Mendelsohn walked out of the house and took up quarters in a carpenter shop at 708 North Third street, where he sleeps on a cot.

His a Handsome Blonde.

But it wasn't the spirit affinity that drove him away. He had no objection to that spirit interference between man and wife. He had a spirit affinity of his own, as he had assured his wife time and again. Jacob's affinity, he told Mrs. Mendelsohn, was a tall, slender, handsome blonde.

Mrs. Mendelsohn is short and heavy, with dark hair, and is past 50 years old. Jacob's shadowland love was young as well as willowy. Whether he expected some time to wed the willowy wraith Mrs. Mendelsohn says she does not know. She was not jealous of the sweet young spirit—no more than was Jacob jealous of the handsome Irish spook who wooed his life.

Jacob left the house because his flesh-mate utterly refused to credit his spirit mate, because she laughed at the willowy blonde and asked him how he knew she was a golden-haired ghost when he'd never glimpsed her—merely heard her cooing, wooing voice issuing from the mediumistic cabinet of Mrs. Davis. Mrs. Mendelsohn laughed also at her own affinity, the rich-brogued son of Erin, and told Jacob she couldn't marry outside the orthodox Jewish fold.

No Race Prejudice There.

But Jacob apparently never worried as to racial matters in the spirit world. In fact, his spiritualistic affiliations, Mrs. Mendelsohn says, had wooed him away from his religion. Mendelsohn insisted that pork was fine food and demanded that it be served on the table. Mrs. Mendelsohn protested, and there was a decidedly unspiritual dispute over this material matter.

"It's immaterial to me what you eat away from home, Jacob," said his wife, "but you eat no pork in this house."

So said the two married daughters of the Mendelsohns, who live with the mother and the two other married daughters, who live elsewhere. It was a matter of five married women against one married man, with a spook affinity on his hands, and that is why Jacob Mendelsohn walked out of his door and went to live in the carpenter shop.

"Oh, yes," said Mrs. Mendelsohn, after detailing these facts, "I forgot to tell you that I know the name of my spirit affinity. He told me himself. He's Patrick O'Brien."

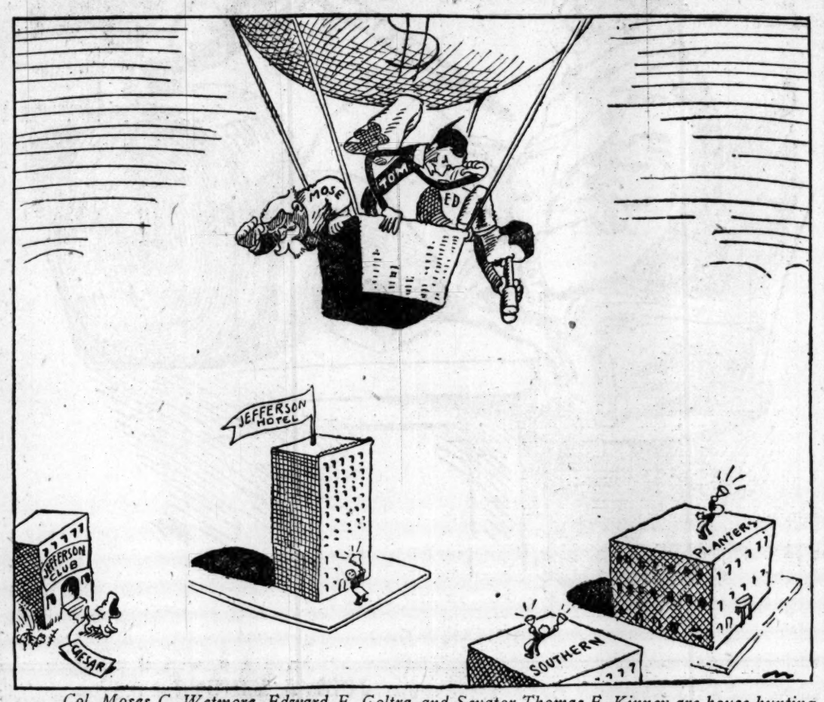

"And what is the name of the shadowy blonde?" she was asked.

"Ah, Jacob never would tell me," she sighed.

Aeronauts, Up Several Years, Are Seeking a Landing Place

Col. Moses C. Wetmore, Edward F. Goltra and Senator Thomas E. Kinney are house-hunting for Democratic headquarters in St. Louis.—News Item.

WHAT, looking for a place to light
With the Showe Me, No. 1?
Mysterious Strangers everywhere,
So kept them on the run.

THAT now they're sailing in the air
A-hunting a landing soft,
A spot to rest their feet on earth
When tired of flights aloft.

THAT they'll come down all safe and sound
Is their fond, expectant hope—
Stand by, all loyal Democrats
To hang upon the rope!

COMPLAINS THAT BURGLARS HAUNT HIS RESIDENCE

Two Have Habit of Dropping Around and Whispering Every Night.

John Keller's home, at 5091 Delmar boulevard, is haunted by burglars. A pair of them have been hanging around the place so long that Mr. Keller, who has become real peevish about it, regards them as parasites rather than robbers.

The two burglars began visiting the Keller flat about a week ago. Now it has become a habit with them to drop around every night. They have not stolen anything, but Mr. Keller claims the privilege of selecting his own visitors, and he is positive he never invited the burglars.

In the week they have been visiting the Kellers the burglars have made three attempts he knows of to get into the house. The first was on last Thursday night. They went into the premises through the back way and made a lot of noise in the yard and at the rear door, which they tried to push in.

Told Them to Be Gone.

Mr. Keller was cross that night about the way the burglars acted, and he told them, rather tartly, to go away and mind their own business. They went away, but now Mr. Keller wouldn't tell them to mind their own business, for he feels sure that their business is to rob his home.

The burglars hung around every night, whispering and mumbling in the shadows, until Monday. Then they tried to push in the side door which leads upstairs to the flat occupied by Mrs. Julia Ruane. Mrs. Ruane heard them. So did Mr. Keller. Both of them indignantly ordered the burglars to go to their own homes if they wanted to push in any doors.

Always Whispering.

Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Keller returned from a social evening with friends about midnight. They saw in the areaway the dim figures of the persistent burglars. The burglars were in earnest conversation. Mr. Keller says they must have a lot to talk about, as they are always whispering to each other.

Mr. Keller was so incensed that he couldn't be polite. He ran into the areaway determined to hit one of the burglars on the nose in the hope that the burglar would take the hint and stay away. But the burglars are as coy as they are persistent. They ran away, eluding Mr. Keller by darting into the alley.

Calls Up Police.

Mr. Keller called up the Page Avenue Police Station and asked for a policeman to sit up all night and tell the burglars if they returned that too much was enough and that they really would have to stay away. If they must have some hobby, Mr. Keller said, they should become baseball fans or learn how to play penuchle.

A police guard will be kept at the Keller home every night until the burglars are broken of the habit of prowling there.

WOMAN WANTS TO RUN A CAT FARM FOR NATION

Her Folks Have Ten Cats Now, and She Estimates $9 a Year a Cat Would Support Homeless Felines Comfortably.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Mr. Tawney, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations and friend of homeless cats, has received a letter from May Cline of Karmony, Warren County, N. J., offering to relieve him of all his worries in the cat line by running—for a consideration—a cat pension to be endowed by the Government.

Mr. Tawney has received lots of cat letters since he openly championed the homeless cats cause on the floor of the House.

Here are some of Miss or Mrs. Cline's views on the cat pension as contained in her letter:

"My folks have 10 cats, and I can give you a correct estimate of the cost of a thousand cats. It costs $3 a year for one cat—conservative estimate—if milk is given. But since the Government cats would probably get bucketsful of sweet skimmed milk, with a lot of bread in it, the cost would be probably as low as $8 a year.

Has Her Eye on the Man.

"Next, the help. As a manager I ask $40 a month and an assistant. This man I know right here. He is made for the job, and he is a good farmer, besides honest, happy, old-fashioned, humorous, industrious, kind and a lover of animals and justice. He will exalt his job. Besides, he will live anywhere.

"My suggestion is that you build this cat pension near Brookland, so that plenty of skim milk may be had from the dairy of the Soldiers' Home. I expect to live in Brookland, and have not heretofore been a resident of the District of Columbia.

"You will have to have 10 acres of land for 1000 cats. I propose to pay a boy to collect live mice and rats from the wharf, paying a small amount. If I can save on the food, of course, it will be my business to do it. I expect to do all the buying and all the bossing and all the disposing—for, of course, you will dispose of cats to fair offers in order to lessen the number. None, however, to dissecting houses. I am very humane.

"If the Government is willing I will suggest to a certain trainer a proposition to train certain of the most intelligent cats for a comedy exposition.

Cats Must Know Each Other.

"You will need a horse. I can furnish the right one at $100, and a plow and a cart. Each cat building can be built for $25. A pen 20 feet long would do for 100 cats, provided they know each other.

"The above is a good outline of the business in this job. It is no woman's job. I don't expect to touch it. But the person who can do the actual work is not the person who can manage it. A woman is better to manage a humane job like this than any man living. Cats live in houses like women, and their natures are much alike. They understand each other.

"You will note that my price is not excessive. I put it low on purpose, knowing the nature of the Government. Let it not be supposed that I would do the country out of a cent. The shoe is on the other foot, as I can prove, by the Patent Office. It requires a Rockefeller to get anything but a living from Uncle Sam.

"Cats differ. Some live to eat. Others live to declaim from the roofs. Others are domestic. On the whole, if you plant orchids, run a training college and a moving picture office, it might be that you could operate the farm, spare the cats and come out even. I have always wanted an experimental school for animals, and cats offer as fine material as there is."

$1,000,000 BUILDING IS PLANNED BY MRS. LEATHE

Structure on Lines of Cupples Block Will Be Memmorial to Her Husband.

Plans of Mrs. Grace A. Leathe, St. Louis' richest woman, to erect a warehouse to cost $1,000,000 at Fourteenth and Poplar streets, as a memorial to her husband, have been announced. The warehouse will be 10 stories high and will be patterned after Cupples' Station.

Mrs. Leathe is now in New York, but the information given out in St. Louis is that work will be begun on the building within a few weeks. The structure will be fireproof and will be so built that freight cars can be run into the basement of the building and conveyed on elevators to any floor.

Mrs. Leathe now has the entire Leathe estate under her personal control and the "estate" has ceased to exist. Mrs. Leathe is said to be planning improvements of her numerous holdings in the Washington avenue wholesale district.

PREACHER OF SHORT SERMONS GETS FARM AS HIS REWARD

The Rev. J. M. Williams Receives Land Worth $7500 for his Moderation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PINE VILLAGE, Ind., Aug. 4.—Burgoyne Davis, a wealthy farmer and member of the Methodist Church in which the Rev. J. M. Williams preached for four years, yesterday made the minister a present of 60 acres of land, valued at $125 an acre.

The Rev. Mr. Williams preached very short sermons, and it was because of this fact that Mr. Davis and his wife took such a liking to him.

The deed says that the consideration for the land is the deference that Mr. Williams paid to the wishes of his parishioners by making his sermons short and to the point.

BIRTH OF A SON REVEALS ROMANCE OF DEAD LAWYER

Alfred Lauterbach Wealthy Attorney, Was Believed to Be a Bachelor.

KILLED JULY 30, 1908

Minister's Daughter, Now a Widow, Announces Advent of Heir, May 5, 1909.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Two advertisements which appeared in the newspapers today disclosed a strange romance in the life of Alfred Lauterbach, a wealthy young lawyer, who was killed in an automobile accident on July 30, 1908, and they also disclose a pathetic sequel of that romance.

The advertisements read:

Married.

LAUTERBACH-CUNNINGHAM — On July 21, 1908, Sophia Houston, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. S. R. Cunningham, of Oakland, N. J., to Alfred Lauterbach, of New York.

Born.

LAUTERBACH—On May 5, 1909, to Alfred Lauterbach, deceased, and Mrs. Alfred Lauterbach, a son.

Alfred Lauterbach left a considerable fortune at his death. He also left a will, but that document made no provision whatever for a widow and contained no hint that he had ever been married.

Was Believed to Be a Bachelor.

All of his friends and all of his family supposed he was a bachelor, at the time of his death. None of them knew anything to the contrary until they read the advertisements.

His father, Edward Lauterbach, a noted lawyer and Republican leader, received a letter yesterday from the former Miss Sophia Houston Cunningham which simply announced that she and Alfred Lauterbach were married on July 21, 1908, and that a son was born to her as a result of that marriage on May 5, 1909, nine months and five days after the father's tragic death. The will of Alfred Lauterbach was filed for probate on Aug. 11, 1908. It was a brief document, written a long time before the secret marriage to Miss Cunningham.

The posthumous son of Alfred Lauterbach was born in the Long Island College hospital, Brooklyn, the records of that institution show, on May 5, 1909. Two weeks after the baby's birth mother and child left the hospital.

Mrs. Cunningham, mother of the young woman, refused to say where her daughter and Mr. Lauterbach were married or who performed the ceremony. She declined to give any particulars of the wedding. She admits that her daughter had written Edward Lauterbach a letter notifying him of the marriage. She refused to say where her daughter is now living.

It was just nine days after this alleged marriage to Miss Cunningham that Alfred Lauterbach was killed. It was at 1 o'clock on the morning of July 30, 1908. He was driving the automobile and sitting alongside of him was a French actress—Miss Therese Beschel. In the rear seat of the machine were two friends of Mr. Lauterbach, Edmund L. Goodman, a real estate operator, and William H. Cahn, a broker.

For several days it was denied that Miss Beschel was in the party, but later when a young woman called on Edward Lauterbach and tried to collect $200 for injuries received in the accident, Miss Beschel made it known that she was in the automobile, that she never visited Edward Lauterbach or tried to collect money from him and she denounced the other woman as an impostor.

Alfred Lauterbach was 37 years old at the time of his death. He had a valuable law practice.

American Girl Is Unfitted for Title

—MRS. EMILY POST.

Author of "The Title Market" Says Mind Must Be Trained to Be Happy Entertaining Husband's Affinity.

BY ETHEL LLOYD PATTERSON, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—"To the European man of title love is love, and marriage is marriage. To the American man, love and marriage are one and the same. Unless an American girl can adjust herself to the mental attitude of the titled European, she had best choose one of her own countrymen as a husband."

Impartially and with the insight of the analyst, Mrs. Emily Post, author of "The Title Market," now running serially and to appear in book form later, was discussing the much-debated international marriage.

"The European and the American are fundamentally different, and, as the American girl who marries a title cannot expect to remake Europe, Europe has to remake the American girl," adds the authoress.

Own Position Secure.

Mrs. Post, whose position in society here and abroad, is on a plane with her mentality, is thus equipped to make her convictions upon the subject of international marriage of most value.

In a lingerie frock and wide-brimmed shade hat she dispensed tea and tenets across a silver-laden table at her home in Tuxedo.

Mrs. Post speaks hurriedly and vivaciously, with an occasional quick gesture that reminds one of her years in France. She is essentially of that finest breeding which is manifest both physically and intellectually.

"Of course, not all marriages of American girls to foreign titles prove unhappy," went on Mrs. Post, slowly, "but when they are not, it only proves that one of our countrywomen has successfully curbed her natural tendencies—has attained the European manner of regarding matrimony. It is hard, but it can be done, and it has been done.

Must Think as Europe Does.

"But the effort, I think, can be best likened to the effort that is necessary in speaking a foreign tongue when you are sick and tired. The American girl who marries a foreigner must learn to put her thoughts into his language as well as her words.

"Many of the unhappy international marriages are the result of the girl's mother," Mrs. Post continued, "the American mother whose place it is to see that her daughter is not marrying a good-for-nothing creature, devoid of even the social position that she fancies she is attaining.

"American mothers are blinded by the gallantry with which the European man treats them. They fancy that the superficial chivalry displayed toward them is the quality upon which to found a happy future for their daughter. They are unused to attention and underscored courtesies. In America everything is the American girl. Our men do not have time to be gallant to our mothers.

Mothers Are at Fault.

"Then the American mothers are at fault, too, in the training they give their daughters. If a girl were brought up properly she would not submit to selling herself for a title. But the society girl of America is only educated to be an ornament, and is taught that the most desirable attainment is social position. When she goes abroad she falls an easier victim to the title mania than does her mother."

"And what is it, and why is this title mania?" I questioned.

"Frankly, I do not exactly know," admitted Mrs. Post. "The germ of it is in the air in Europe. Maybe it is because a title is the one thing that an American is never born with, nor attains by genius or work. Maybe it is the tangible proof of its power in Europe. I have seen Americans fairly pushed aside and herded together that a duchess might sweep by them at a queen's reception.

"In Europe one dares not sit down in the presence of a duchess, absolutely dares not. To see that is to see a form of power that goes to the head like wine. Or, maybe the coveting of a title is engendered by that inexplicable resentment that an American feels when she follows a woman of title into a reception room to hear, first, 'Excellenza La Principessa di Primoli,' and then, as she makes her own entrance, 'Mees Smeet!'"

Proud of the Name.

"One thing upon which the American girl who is married to a titled European can always count," continued Mrs. Post, "is her husband's regard for her as the bearer of his name. The European man's god is his family. The woman upon whom he has bestowed his title must be treated with respect in public at least.

"One of the vilest little titled men of France always treated his wife with the utmost deference in public. Maybe he scratched her eyes out when they were alone, but in society his behavior was the acme of courtesy. In America, you see, a man treats his wife as well or as badly as he loves her. His love regulates his attentions. In Europe there are years and years of tradition respecting what is due the lady of the castle.

"Also, although the European man may be less faithful to his wife, he conceals his indiscretion more carefully. No European wife need see what she does not care to. In America men have the 'chorus-girl' habit. They will flash their footlight divinity in a box next to their wife's at the opera.

Wife Entertains Rival.

"The European man, speaking generally, does not care for the woman of the stage. They prefer women in their own social sphere. In most cases the wife entertains unknowingly the object of her husband's attentions. It may be more degrading, but it is at least less crude."

"And are the European girls possessed of more education than the girls of America?" I queried.

"Speaking generally—yes," affirmed Mrs. Post. "But in the case of an American girl who marries a title and succeeds socially, that girl must be equipped with an education that surpasses the European. For an American girl to be really a princess, she must be more than a princess. Lady Curzon was everything that I mean. She was the most regal creature I ever saw. But the average American girl is not educated in the branches that would enable her to be a real aid to her husband in establishing their position."

"Do you think that a mother ever has the right to select her daughter's husband for her?" I asked Mrs. Post.

"Well, I do not know," she said thoughtfully. "There are many things in favor of the marriages that are arranged by parents. Often older people can judge pretty well whether two young people are going to be happy or not. Then there is the financial arrangement in connection with such marriages that I consider quite desirable. I mean the sum of money that is set aside for them, insuring a certain income or nest egg."

"And if you had a daughter, would you want her to marry a titled European?" I queried as I rose to go.

"If she was marrying him in spite of his title, and not because of it," Mrs. Emily Post said slowly, and then, "Oh, I don't know; I—guess—"

And on that most American word her voice lingered, leaving her sentence incomplete, although I had the very definite impression that she would not.

Burglars Perfectly at Home.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Burglars who visited a house at Gateshead during the family's absence played cards, consumed two bottles of whisky, had a good supper and shifted all the drawing-room furniture into the kitchen before decamping with jewelry valued at $25.

HUSBAND DECLARES HIS WIFE HAD DOCTOR MAKE HIM OLD

Defendant in Divorce Suit Alleges Blood of Aged Man Was Injected Into His Arm to Destroy His Youth and Vivacity.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 4.—O. C. Rogers offered a novel plea in answer to a charge of non-support made by his wife, Barbara M. Rogers, in court here.

He said that Mrs. Rogers had blood from a diseased old man injected into his veins, which nearly caused his immediate death, and has made him a cripple for life. Thus prevented from performing manual labor, he pleads that his wife cannot compel him to support her.

Rogers, who is a young man, says that he married Mrs. Rogers in Chicago while he was a mere boy, and when she was already the mother of five children, by a former husband.

"I was inveigled into the marriage by the wiles of a woman old enough to be my mother," said Rogers in court. "It was my first experience with a woman, and she easily threw the net about me.

"But after we were married she tired of my youth and vivacity and attempted to reduce me to a state of decrepitude, which she had reached.

"She got the aid of a quack doctor, who was attending an old man afflicted with rheumatism and other diseases. Under the pretext that he wished to analyze the blood of the aged invalid, he drew some of it from his veins. This he put into a hypodermic syringe, and while I slept he injected the dose into my arm."

Then, exhibiting a hand that was withered, and an arm that showed the marks of his disease, Rogers continued:

"I came near to losing my life. As it is, I am not able to perform manual labor with that hand."

Rogers is related to prominent Denver professional men. He has demanded a jury trial.

CITY IS STRIKE-BOUND, NEARLY ALL GUNS IN STOCKHOLM SOLD

Citizens Rush to Arm Themselves and General Tie-Up Is Threatened by Unions.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 4.—The labor conflict in Sweden shows signs this morning of becoming more acute. While the ranks of the strikers are considerably swelled, the general strike called for today has not become entirely effective. Many organizations, although sympathizing with the strikers, hesitate to join them actively. Street car men and cab drivers stopped work this morning. Protection of the gas works and the electric lighting plant by troops has incensed the workmen, whose leaders threaten to call out all the men unless the soldiers are withdrawn. The printers' union this morning resolved to postpone their strike decision.

A corp of several thousand workmen is being organized to maintain order, and the people generally, bankers and merchants, are arming themselves. The gun shops of the city are practically sold out. All tourists have left Stockholm and the number of visitors in the city is smaller at this season than for many years.

Although railroad men have decided not to strike, the Government is guarding the tracks with troops. Quantities of dynamite are reported to have mysteriously disappeared from the Government stores.

WOMAN TELLS OF KILLING MAN AT HUSBAND'S ORDER

Mrs. Ben Marcri Declares Her Own Life Was Threatened If She Did Not Obey.

PRACTICED SHOOTING

When Marksmanship Was Satisfactory, She Was Told to Wait for Victim.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Aug. 4.—Abandoning the stories that she had been attacked, or that she had obeyed a mandate of the Black Hand, Mrs. Ben Marcri today told what officials believe to be the truth about her killing Joe Rodi.

Mrs. Marci declares her husband commanded her to shoot Rodi, of whom he had become jealous, and had told her if she did not, the husband would kill her.

She said she practiced shooting with a revolver until she had attained great proficiency, and that when all was ready, shot Rodi to death.

Mrs. Marcri has been in jail here since the shooting, and has told many stories of the affair when questioned by the prosecutor.

The prisoner had been visited day by day by her father and brother and urged to make a clean breast of the story. She claimed that she shot Rodi, who had made an attempt to attack her, but as her father had known Rodi in Italy, he believed the story was not true.

Wife Tells Her Story.

Finally, after much persuasion, she agreed to tell the story in full, and Veto Manfredo, the interpreter, was called in. She said:

My husband was extremely jealous of Rodi because we happened to know him back in Italy, and he grew more jealous each day. He made my life miserable and threatened every day to kill me if I did not kill Joe Rodi.

I begged and pleaded with him, but he would not listen, and more than once he showed a knife and said he would cut my head off if I refused. One day he brought a pistol and a lot of cartridges home with him and he told me I must practice shooting as I had to kill Joe.

For several days we went to the woods together and I soon learned to shoot with remarkable accuracy. My husband would place a piece of paper on a tree and I would shoot it off nearly every time.

At last he was satisfied that I could shoot well enough to hit a man several feet away and he planned that I must hide near the house and when Joe, who boarded with us, came home, shoot him and then tell that he had attacked me. He said the officers would arrest me and take me to jail, but that he would come and get me.

At last the day arrived and I lay in wait for Joe. My heart almost failed me, but I knew if I failed to shoot him my husband would surely kill me. I shot poor Joe down and then called the officers and told them what had been done and why it was done.

My husband was not about the house when I killed Joe and he has never called on me in jail.

After telling the interpreter her story she made another confession in English to the officers. Mrs. Marcri is 17 years old and is considered a very beautiful young woman.

ONE-ARMED MAN WHIPS TWO WHO ATTACK HIM IN ROOM

Stabs One in Back as He Turns to Run, the Other Retreats.

Harry Elliot, who has only one arm, bested two men in a fight Tuesday night, stabbing one in the back so seriously that the latter had to be sent to the City Hospital.

Elliot is 22 years old and lives at 1311 Pine street. Tuesday he quarreled with two roommates, Louis Pappas and Sam Annas. Pappas threw a brick at Elliot and the latter fled from the house and remained away until he thought the trouble had blown over.

When Elliot returned to his room Tuesday night, he was set upon by Pappas and Annas. He drew a shoe knife from his pocket and began wielding it. Annas retreated. Pappas turned to run, but was cut in the back.

BOYS' BED IN DRYGOODS BOX

Policeman Finds Runaways Asleep on the Street.

Sleeping in a dry goods box on the sidewalk was so much preferable to a bed at home that Louis Lanzis and George Brandhorst, each 12 years old, resented the intrusion of a policeman, who insisted upon them accompanying him to the House of Detention.

The dry goods box was in front of 1206 Pine street. Sergt. Harington of Central District found the boys. Louis lives at 3217 Wilson avenue and George's home is at 3342 Shaw avenue. They ran away from home Tuesday afternoon.

ST. LOUIS CLIMATE.

The Business Men's League pamphlet giving correct information on St. Louis weather should be useful in correcting the impression that the summer months in this vicinity are exceptionally warm.

A table is compiled showing that the average mean temperature for the month of July is 79. New Orleans is 81, New York 74, Chicago 72, Pittsburg 75 and Philadelphia 76. There is nothing in these figures to justify the notion of excess. St. Louis is cooler than New Orleans and not much warmer than Philadelphia.

Moreover, the percentage of sunshine is greater than in any other city. We have 60 per cent of unclouded sunshine against 55 for Boston and 56 for New York, seaboard cities, and 57 for Chicago, a lake city. St. Paul has 54 and New Orleans 53.

Winter temperatures are equally favorable. The St. Louis average is 34, Chicago 26, St. Paul 16, New York 32, Boston 29, and in the number of clear days St. Louis is in the lead.

Add to these the undeniable fact that there are fewer prostrations from heat in the summer than in Chicago or in the Eastern cities, and that in winter there is a superior health record.

It is natural for people when they are uncomfortable to think and say that the place where they are is the most uncomfortable place on earth. But a study of the climatic record of St. Louis proves that human nature is, in this respect, unreliable, and St. Louisans can help their city by pointing to the facts, which correct a widespread erroneous impression.

The kidnaping of a boy and girl in this city gives the local police something more important and serious to do than prodding baseball fans and discussing friction at headquarters. The case is an opportunity for the force to prove its efficiency in catching criminals. The kidnaping of children is the meanest of crimes. It frequently involves murder. A good record in this case will go far toward offsetting the record of errors in other cases. Catch the kidnapers.

THE "THIRD EYE."

The "third eye" has been seized upon as the most concrete thing in Mrs. Annie Besant's popular presentation of her Scheme of Things. What the president of the Theosophical Society thinks and the common intepretation of her thoughts are probably very different things. But even one who lives on the heights, to whom the mysteries of life and of death are unfolded, who crumples the fragile knowledge of science in her fingers and holds converse with another world, must come down to common human levels when she would be understood.

So Mrs. Besant calls the mysterious link which has just missed connecting every man of us with the unknown and the inscrutable, the "third eye." Anyone can understand that. But if she had called it the undefined sensibility which, under proper development, throbs in unison with and in response to the ether waves in the borderland between the quick and the—and those who were once quick, we would think it something new in baseball dialect and ask what the score is.

This incapacity of a physical world to divorce itself from its physicism and become so etherialized that it can project itself into the realm of the occult, is plainly the stumbling block in theosophy's path to popularization. Strive as they will, the thought-chastened and soul-clarified elect find few novitiates with clairvoyant power to look beyond. The difficulties of proselyting have compelled them to have recourse to methods which appear absurd. They play upon the public's fear of the supernatural. They work what we call wonders to overcome and entice us. To them they are not wonders, but the simplest of simple things. They thrill us with miracles, but to them they are not miraculous. They play on our love of pageantry and bring us under the influence of mind-influencing colors. The stomach must be won from its coarseness by ambrosial diet. The flesh must be robbed of its appetites. The ideal is brought nearer by processions of angel-garbed maidens and in the mellow light of the moon is found the most effective time and atmosphere to bridge the narrowing breach between two worlds.

Before Mrs. Besant leaves our shores we will all fall under her spell and be ready to percolate through the ambient realms and shoo away anyone so stupid as to confuse a return of the good times of a million years ago with modern fairy tales.

Unfortunately other traces of Rooseveltism are not as easily obliterated as the White House [illegible] court.

THE PROHIBITION CAMPAIGN.

The menace of prohibition still hangs over Missouri. The Prohibitionists were not discouraged by the failure of the amendment resolution in the Legislature last session. Nor are they disheartened by the Anti-Saloon League's estimate of a popular majority against the measure. The Executive Committee of the Constitutional Amendment Association, which is in session here in St. Louis, has decided to submit the question to the voters through the initiative in the general election of 1910.

It should be noted that while the Anti-Saloon League is opposed to the submission of the question in 1910, because of the fear of its defeat, the members of the league do not oppose prohibition. Probably an overwhelming majority of them would support it at the polls.

We do not believe that a majority of the people of Missouri favor prohibition. But we do not underestimate the danger of a vigorous campaign. The Prohibitionists are at work and will be busy until election day. The campaign is being pushed through every organization whose support and assistance can be obtained.

In the convention of the Sunday school workers of Cedar County, Mo., a resolution pledging the services of the members to the cause of State-wide prohibition and calling upon every county convention and the State convention to co-operate, was passed.

President Millien of Hardin College has suggested the raising of a fund of $100,000 for the campaign. That financial and moral support for the campaign will come from kindred organizations and sympathizers all over the country is certain.

How will the anti-prohibitionists, the great body of citizens who see in prohibition a menace to the moral and material interests of the State and especially of the larger cities, meet the issue? What methods will these citizens adopt to oppose the vigorous campaign of the Prohibitionists? What organizations will they have to fight the measure before the people and at the polls? How will they conduct the needed educational work?

The St. Louis business men, with the aid of business men from other parts of the State, did effective work in the State Senate, but ceased work the moment victory there was assured. It was a spasmodic effort. The liquor interests do not represent the public interests, nor the sentiment of the citizens who oppose prohibition on principle and who foresee in its adoption the great injury of the State and the revival of unrestrained dens in the cities. If there is no organized effort among citizens of this kind, not in any wise connected with or interested in breweries, distilleries or saloons, the election will go for prohibition by default.

There are indications that the Steel Trust and the Woolen Trust do not regard the Payne-Aldrich bill as a devastating lowering of duties.

THE KANSAS CITY SCRAP.

In the clash of partisan politicians over the late unpleasantness between Gov. Hadley and the Kansas City Election Commissioners, we find that the Governor was hasty in charging the Election Board with derelictions based upon second-hand statements concerning the truth of which he had no personal knowledge, and the Election Commissioners were overenthusiastic in pointing out flaws in the Governor's second-hand statements.

The Governor's rather humiliating experience in failing to support his statements of registration frauds should teach him a lesson. He should modify his partisanship and restrain his eagerness to rush into print and speech. He should bear in mind the sage remark of the bird when the consequences of overindulgence in the art of speech fell upon him.

But after all something was accomplished by the Kansas City scrap. The grand jury will investigate charges of fraud in the city's elections which has been the theme of many partisan speeches and editorials. We shall learn the truth.

We'll wager a doughnut those kidnapers don't dare pass a scoreboard.

TAXING EXPORTED HEIRESSES.

Mr. Paul Morton's suggestion that a tax be imposed on heiresses exported for sale in the European matrimonial market is, as he says, in the interest of the home, but it is equally in the interest of American capital, blood and heredity. We are losing some strong stocks through this traffic and it ought to be stopped.

But the tax ought to rest where it belongs. The foreigner should pay it.

With every woman whose father buys her a title goes a vast sum in settlement. That is, in fact, the moving consideration. The woman herself is secondary in the mind of the Duke or Prince or Ahkoond. Now the levy should be on this settlement and it should be a graduated tax.

Thus, with a settlement conveying $10,000,000, the rate should be, say 50 per cent. From this, which may be fixed as a maximum, the rate can fall on a sliding scale to a minimum of, say 5 per cent on a settlement of $100,000.

By such a policy our Government can kill two birds with one stone; that is, it will tend to keep both American women and American money at home, where they belong. If it is argued that the foreigner will shift the tax to the father, it may be observed that father is a thrifty gentleman and, after giving $10,000,000 for a battered title, he will be in no humor to pay $5,000,000 more as a tax to Uncle Sam. Every offer will be net; that is, it will include the tax, and the foreigner will have to take it, less the Government claim. Of course, this may increase the size of some settlements, but it will, at the same time, be a powerful discourager. When the old gentleman pays the highest rate he can afford he won't be willing to go on and pay 50 per cent more in taxes.

With this improvement Mr. Morton's suggestion is sound patriotism. Our money is going abroad in vast sums and the titles we get in return, while ancient and some of them genuine, can be enjoyed only by the lady in the case. They are never diffused among the people. As a public policy this thought of the great rebater is stamped with the highest wisdom.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Keep on Complaining.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In our vicinity a steam cleaner has started a plant. They have a low chimney and use soft coal. The black, thick smoke pollutes the air and soils the clothes and houses of all living within two or three blocks. The neighbors complained to the Smoke Commissioner that this place was a nuisance. Nothing has been done. The Commissioner says the owner avows he uses coke and makes no smoke and his word is taken in preference to that of the combined neighborhood. The Inspector came out once after office hours and found the plant closed down and no smoke in the air. He acknowledged the engine was being operated by an unlicensed engineer. This alone should have been sufficient to close them down. Is there anything we can do?

Jerome vs. Thaw.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Unless one were familiar with the facts it would be difficult to tell from a reading of the Thaw case whether Jerome is trying to establish the insanity of Thaw or whether Thaw is endeavoring to establish the insanity of Jerome. The questions and answers seem to compare pretty well, one with the other. The only difference observable is that Thaw is locked up while Jerome isn't.

Stables Better Than Poorhouse.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The "Poorhouse" is the name of an institution where the dregs of humanity drift and settle, after a last futile effort to be self-supporting has failed. Here we find, not the dry and dead bones, but the living and breathing bodies of human beings. They are crippled and maimed, sick and worn out, helpless and spiritless wrecks of a brutal economic and political system that has used them up, squeezed them dry, broken and bruised their bodies and then pitched them out on the scrap heaps of modern civilization. Huddled and herded together in great barn-like barracks, several hundred in a great big frame shed; deprived of privacy and solitude, which everyone should have to keep normal, and especially the old people, who at a disadvantage, even under the best conditions. Surrounded by several hundred insane, whose shrieks are continually heard; nothing useful in the way of employment to occupy the mind, but just to sit and stare and shrivel and die. The writer paid a visit to this institution and was surprised to find the above conditions. Not that any blame attaches to the management, for they are no doubt doing all that they can with the appropriation allowed them. The place is clean and well regulated as far as a casual observation indicates. But I could not hold my head up for shame when I walked through the big frame shed, called a barracks, and noted what these poor wretches had to contend with. One bed right next to the other, not even so much as a curtain between to act as a partition. And what do you think of this—not a single screen door or window did I see? Several old men who were taking a nap had their heads covered up with their coats or other cloth protection against flies. Not even in the immense big brick kitchen was there a screen door. It surely would not take more than a few hundred dollars to fit this place with screens, and should we not see to it that this is done for these old people who have given the world all that they can give? I know of horse stables in this town where there is an electric fan at each stall and screens all around the place. Is it not shamefully cruel to give animals what we deny to men?

Scoreboards Elsewhere.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What is all this controversy in regard to the scoreboard? Boston is a big enough city to allow a few fans to watch the score and then have room enough left to move around, but this poor village in which I am forced to stay for a week cannot accommodate both scoreboard readers and pedestrians. It certainly is ridiculous for a foreigner to listen to this: "I cant' and you dares'nt." I don't ever want to see another squib in a St. Louis paper about Philadelphia being slow and Boston not being greater than St. Louis until you do as you preach—"Show me." When you get to be a city of the first class, put away your village ideas.
HARRY WILLIS.

Arbitrary Police Action.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Last Wednesday a brother of the writer (a teamster) had a load of lumber to deliver to the lumber yard at Twelfth and Market streets. Market street being torn up on account of relaying of tracks, he was advised to drive around to Chestnut street and come in by way of the alley. In that alley two teams were already stopping and unloading. Upon seeing this, my brother stopped on Chestnut street to await one of the two teams coming out. Presently a police officer (mounted) appeared, charging him with blocking the street, adding that he felt like arresting him. My brother then drove into the alley as far as he could, which left the coupling pole of his wagon extending somewhat across the sidewalk, whereupon the afore-mentioned officer ordered my brother off his wagon, declaring him under arrest, also drawing his revolver, when my brother did not comply on the moment. The following day at court the version as given by the officer seemed to be given credence only and my brother was fined $10 and costs, the former, however, being remitted later upon representations made by his lawyer. Even at that the incident caused my brother a loss of about $15 in money and a day in time, for committing the crime of stopping on a public street, for the use of which he is required to have a license. Now, even assuming that he was at fault, the mode of procedure in a similar case in a European city would be for the police officer to take his name and address and instruct him to appear at court at such and such time and place, while here in free and civilized America a man (or woman) coming in conflict with the authorities is subjected to the humiliation of being hauled or escorted through the streets, followed by a mob of hooting and yelling urchins, big and little, and then to be searched and locked up like a common thief or murderer, even though his offense be only a trivial one, if he be guilty at all. But that he apparently is adjudg[illegible] if a police officer says so.

A BIG STICK.

CONVERTED.

From the New York World.

It has taken a long time to convert Senator Warren of Wyoming to tariff revision, but as a practical man and a man of business principles, once he was converted, he was bound to stand by the true doctrine. If the duty on hides is reduced, he says, the duties on articles in which other senators are interested should be reduced. To be sure. The tariff is not being revised because the Warrens and Scotts and Elkinses and Hales and Fordneys are interested in hides, glass, coal, print paper and lumber, but because the plain consumer who has no direct vote on the tariff needs to have the cost of living reduced. The more senators and representatives vote to cut duties on one another's products the better the consumer will be pleased.

THE TERRIBLE REVOLVER.

From the Boston Traveler.

Why should any man or woman keep a revolver in the house? For use against burglars is the usual reply, the only one with a glimmering of common sense in it. Yet how seldom is the implement used for the defense of the home, and how pitiably often does it become the instrument of a sad tragedy! The revolver is, of course, perfectly useless as a means of keeping burglars away; one small black-and-tan dog is worth a whole arsenal for that kind of duty. It is about as ineffective for putting night marauders to flight. If used, it implies a duel, in which the householder is quite likely to come off second best. And outside this narrow province its chief mission seems to be to kill or maim through accident. There is no good use for a revolver in your house. It ought to be banished as a potential destroyer of life and happiness.

THE MAUD MULLER SEASON.

This is the season, we may say, when sweet Maud Muller raked the hay, and what with timothy perfume, the black-eyed Susans in their bloom, the sickle singing sundry staves, and the hayfield tremulous with waves, the soft wind stirring more or less, and Maud in her simple gingham dress, her golden hair and her blushes red, the jurist all but lost his head.

It is, indeed, the season when the judge had been the worst of men an seeing her there in the field, her loveliness had not appealed to him so far that he had not been forced to cry

"Giddap!" and trot along the hot and dusty track without once ever looking back, or knowing scarce where he was at, the while his heart went pit-a-pat, and the buggy rolled up hill and down, returning to his girl in town.

Indeed, a more romantic judge had not been strong enough to budge, but would have stopped and ahed and ohed upon the flowered country road until Maud's father donned his blouse and asked the judge up to the house, and while they ate he would with sighs have ogled Maud until their eyes had met in one long look and soft, and the mortgage had been married off.

In the Dry Belt.

A middle-aged man alighted from a passenger train at Trenton recently and went directly uptown in search of a thirst parlor. He walked in and commenced pointing around on the back shelf to the bartender. The bartender finally placed his hand on the desired article of booze and the gentleman nodded his head to the effect that the barkeeper had what he wanted. He took about four big gulps and drew forth a $5 bill. The bartender wanted to be kind and so wrote on a piece of paper:

"We don't charge deaf and dumb people for what they drink here."

"Deaf and dumb!" exclaimed the patron. "I'm not deaf and dumb. I was just so confounded dry that I couldn't speak."—Paris (Mo.) Appeal.

OUR DEVOTION TO BEER.

While it is not likely that Missouri will be able to drink enough beer to offset the effects of prohibition in the entire Union, her effort to do so does credit to her constancy. Kentucky may betray her bourbon, and some day even Milwaukee may deny that which has made her famous; but Missouri is Ruth and Naomi is beer.

Nothing was said about it, but it seems to have been the common conception of duty here to increase the local consumption of beer in inverse ratio to its diminished consumption outside of the State. Thus we are able to present the phenomenon of increased beer revenues in Missouri when the Federal reports show a constantly increasing loss. It is as if every time we heard of another State going dry we all pledged ourselves to drink twice as much beer as we had been drinking, until now we are consuming all the beer formerly drank in our own State, all of Oklahoma and Kansas, Southern Illinois, and the contiguous halves of Iowa and Arkansas. A little study would probably show the gains reported by Inspector Marshall to be exactly the losses to prohibition in the territory mentioned.

Missouri may not be the best State in the Union, but she is the gamest, anyway.

Possibly the fact that there is nothing else to do in St. Louis at this season accounts for the local stampede to aironautics.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Answers to Questions From Readers of the Post-Dispatch.

Write but one question. No bets decided. Business addresses not given. Legal questions must be simple. Address "Answers," Post-Dispatch, using postal cards when convenient.

SIS.—Rice powder is not likely to harm the skin.

READER.—First Broadway electric car, May, 1900.

A P.-D. READER.—We do not make recommendations of "systems."

STENO.—There cannot be two postoffices of the same name in one State.

EM.—The word is swastika, and it is also spelled with a c. Written also suastica and svastika.

DISCOURAGED.—Enlarged prostate frequently causes leg pains and symptoms such as you suggest.

JULIA.—We do not know where the "Cat's Paw" painting, formerly owned by Ed Russell, can be located.

A READER.—Answers cannot be published until there is space for them. It is useless to specify days.

J. W.—For square feet in wagon bed, multiply length by width. For cubic feet, multiply length, breadth and thickness.

KOWALOK.—The Mayor will proclaim the Centennial day when all labor, so far as possible, may cease. Watch the papers.

A. M. C.—Bakers bake many kinds of bread. In Braun's Baker's Book you would probably find the kind of baker's bread you want.

SUBSCRIBER.—Liquid stove polish: Bone black, 2½ parts; pulverized graphite, 2½ parts; copperas, 5 parts; sufficient water to form a creamy paste.

WORRIED.—Nonresident of Illinois must wait a year to obtain a divorce in Illinois. Nonresident of Missouri same time in Missouri. Indiana, 2 years.

OLD RIVER MAN.—We don't know what is meant by "the first boat they built and the last." List of Anchor Line boats was recently published in this column.

T. N.—You might try heating, and rubbing lard into, the stains made by tar paint (liquid roofing paint). The grease could afterwards be removed by grease formula.

CITIZEN.—Any one in the employ of the Government represents the Government in whatever he may be employed. Therefore, as Register of the Treasury, Register Vernon is a representative of the U. S. Government.

SUFFERER.—For hay asthma (hay fever): White Mountains, Catskills, Adirondacks, Rocky Mountains, Minnesota, Long Branch, Beach Haven, Fire Island, Nantucket, Mount Desert, Marquette and Petoskey, Mich., or a sea voyage.

THREE FRENCHMEN.—Mexico celebrates May 5 because of the defeat before Puebla (the famous Cinco de Mayo), of a French army of 6000 French, on that date. At that time Napoleon III was trying to establish an empire in America.

C. R. D.—Some obliging reader may send in for you a formula for cleaning wax figures. Any store fixture establishment will clean them for you.

ANXIOUS.—Two-step in waltz: The music "Hiawatha" is good two-step time. Start with your right foot. The step is one long glide and a short one, and then with your left foot.

M. B.—Dry cleaning for laces: Try washing in either gasoline or naphtha. If all the dust and spots are not removed the first time, clean in the same way a second time, and repeat. If possible do the cleansing out of doors, where there will be no danger of fire or of an explosion. Hang out of doors when cleaned.

POLLY.—Divorce suits may be filed in October term, which begins Oct. 1. If the defendant is to be served with summons in Missouri, suit should be filed in time to obtain service on or before Sept. 15. If defendant is to be served with summons outside of the State, suit should be filed in time to obtain service on or before Sept. 10.

SUBSCRIBER.—For oily skin, remove the causes: Too much greasy foods, too little fruit, fresh and ripe; too much rich gravy and too much sweets, too much powder and not enough soap and water; perhaps too much physic. If skin is very oily sponge with alcohol, but be careful not to use this too often or skin will become too dry. A little borax in water in which you bathe your face is also good.

X. Y. Z.—Mulberry wine: shake the ripe or partly ripe berries from tree onto clean sacking or sheeting and place in a tub, where they may be well pounded and mashed. Strain, and to each gallon of juice add three pounds of sugar, placing in a cask with an open bung. This should ferment and be fit for racking off into another cask in six weeks. Will be fit for bottling and use in eight months.

MRS. F. W. S. J.—English tomato chutney: One pint sliced green tomatoes, six small green peppers, four small onions chopped together. Shake over them a handful of salt and leave all night. Drain off the water, add a teacup of sugar, the same of scraped horseradish and a tablespoon each of ground cloves and cinnamon. Cover with best vinegar and stew gently eight hours. (We know nothing of that which you mention.)

MRS. K.—Lamp chimneys may be made brilliant by washing them in hot suds and rinsing them in clear hot water. If a little salt is put into the reservoir of a lamp it will burn with a clear, bright light. Lamp burners boiled for half an hour in soda and water will cause a lamp to burn with renewed brilliancy. Boil the wick in vinegar, drying thoroughly before using. There should be a new wick every month.

J. A. K.—Some animals of Mexico: Northern, wolves and coyotes. In mountain forests, bears, peccary, puma, jaguar, ocelot. In Mexican tropical forests, five varieties of monkeys and a species of sloth. Among other animals are the hare, rabbit, squirrel, beaver, mole, marten, otter and several species of deer. We do not know which of the Mexican states have game laws. We have no facts in regard to what the Yaqui Indians would do to hunters.

S. M.—Postoffice employe may be granted a patent, when the invention is to be used in the public service, without the payment of fee; but he must state in his application that the invention may be used by the Government, or by any other person, without the payment of any royalty. This is all the law we find in regard to the matter. There is no provision for the payment of anything to the inventor.

SLOBSKY.—Books on dyeing and cleaning: Heliot and D'Apligny's "Art of Dyeing Wool, Silk and Cotton;" published by Van Nostrand, New York; $2. Hurst's "Garment Dyeing and Cleaning;" published by Lippincott, Philadelphia; $1.75.

HOPEFUL.—The following recipe contains nothing injurious, never takes out the stiffness from fabrics (as from veilings and chiffon), and is at the same time a disinfectant and a preventive of moths: Sulphuric ether, 1 dram; alcohol, 2 drams; chloroform, 1 dram; oil of cloves, 1 dram. Three times this amount to one quart best gasoline. The oil of cloves may be omitted if desired, as in cleaning anything white it has a tendency to turn it yellow. To clean a dress skirt, just double or treble the amount of these ingredients. Men's trousers can be soaked over night in this, and when pressed are as good as new. It is fine for ostrich plumes, as it never takes the curl out. Be sure to shake out in the air until thoroughly dry. Old laces clean beautifully with this fluid. Let the article to be cleaned lie in the liquid for a while, according to how soiled it is. Articles can remain in all night without injury to the fabric in any way. FAMOUS INDIANS

Miantonomoh, the Sachem Who Was Sacrificed.

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

INTO the Governor's own pew of the old Boston church, one Sunday in 1632, stalked a gigantic Indian—causing as much excitement and general commotion as a hawk does in a dove cote. From mouth to mouth was whispered the news that the strange visitor was Miantonomoh, the famous Sachem, who, with his uncle, Canonicus, ruled the mighty Narragansett "nation."

He had come to Boston on a mission of peace, and was the honored guest of Gov. Winthrow. In fact, all the authorities put themselves to vast trouble to make the visit pleasant for this grim, wise, silent young Indian. For it was needful just then to court the friendship of the Narragansetts. Miantonomoh, being only a savage, believed in all the Puritans' protestations of friendship. To his uncorrupted Indian mind a pledge of friendship was sacred, and friends should stick together through good and evil fortune alike. He swore brotherhood to the English colonists—and kept his oath. They pledged loyal and lasting friendship to him—and in a few years treacherously sacrificed him to their own interests. In those days the savages still had much to learn concerning the ways of civilized people.

A Trust That Was Betrayed.

Miantonomoh, when Canonicus died in 1636, became sole ruler of the Narragansetts, Rhode Island being his headquarters, and his own palace-wigwams being perched on what is now known as Tonomy Hill, just north of Newport. When the gentle clergyman, Roger Williams, was driven from Massachusetts by the Puritans he was warmly welcomed by Miantonomoh, who gave him land and provisions. In 1637, when the Pequot war began, Miantonomoh sent the Governor of Massachusetts the hand of a slain Pequot and 240 feet of wampum as an evidence of his own people's friendliness. When the colonists that year marched against the Pequots, Miantonomoh and his braves joined the militia. This action made the Pequots hate Miantonomoh. They sent him word that if ever he should fall into their hands they would punish his treachery toward them and his friendship for the settlers by boiling him in a caldron of oil. To show how little he feared the threat, Miantonomoh went at once on a journey through the Pequot country and back again, unharmed. Roger Williams strongly advised him not to go, but Miantonomoh replied: "A brave man cannot shun danger."

Uncas, the Mohegan chief, was looming up more and more important in Indian politics. The Puritans saw the urgent need of securing the friendship of so powerful a leader. But Miantonomoh and Uncas were sworn enemies. The colonists' rulers urged the two foes to make peace, but Miantonomoh, as ever, followed the advice of his white friends. In 1638 he and Uncas signed a treaty of friendship (dictated by the colonists), which included a promise to leave all disputes to the English for settlement. The same year Mianotomoh was cajoled into selling Rhode Island to the white men for 240 feet of white beadwork.

Soon after this Miantonomoh began to learn a new phase of the colonists' nature. A rumor—apparently with no foundation—reached the Massachusetts colony that he was conspiring against the English. He went alone to Boston to answer the charges Six years earlier, when he had visited that city, he had been treated like a king. Now he was neglected and even looked upon as an enemy. When he entered the trial room he was actually forbidden to sit at the same table as the English. Nevertheless, as no accusers dared face him, and as he showed a wisdom and dignity that impressed even the Puritan councillors, he was acquitted of the conspiracy charge and set free.

The Penalty of Friendship.

In 1643 Uncas made war on one of the Narragansett subchiefs, Sequasson. Miantonomoh, faithful to the terms of his treaty, asked leave of the Governor of Hartford to avenge the attack. Permission was granted, and with 100 Narragansetts he marched against Uncas and 500 Mohegans. The armies met near Norwich. Miantonomoh wore a coat of mail—a gift from the English, of which he was very proud, but which hampered his movements. Uncas challenged him to single combat. Miantonomoh haughtily refused, saying his followers were there to fight. While the parley was going on, Uncas gave a sudden sign, and the Mohegans fell upon their unprepared foes, defeating them and taking Manitonomoh prisoner. The latter's fight was impeded by the English coat of mail. Uncas brought Miantonomoh before a colonial court at Boston. There, in spite of the fact that he had earlier proved his innocence of the same charge, the captive was found guilty of conspiring against the English. The commissioners, on the plea that their ally Unca's life would be in danger as long as Miantonomoh should live, condemned the gallant Sachem to death.

Miantonomoh had trusted and loved the English. They sacrificed him to Uncas, and even gave the Mohegan permission to carry out the execution. The only stipulation the white men made, in memory of Miantonomoh's former services, was that he should be merely killed—not tortured as well. So the fallen Sachem was led back to the scene of the lost battle, near Norwich, and there struck dead by a tomahawk blow. His body was cut to pieces. Uncas, looking down on his slain foe, growled:

"This is good for me. It makes my heart strong!"

In revenge for their adored hero's death the Narragansett's ravaged the Mohegan country and cooped Uncas up in a fort there. Uncas was rescued by his friends, the English, in time to prevent the dead Sachem's followers from wreaking full vengeance.

SHORT ROADS TO BEAUTY

Advice to Inquirers From the Post-Dispatch Expert.

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

Gooseflesh.

C. C.—The gooseflesh you complain of is very probably a form of nervousness. Try this formula of a salve for the gooseflesh:

Boric acid powder, 90 grains; glycerine, 2 fluid ounces; distilled water, 2½ fluid ounces; lanoline anhydrous, 1 av. ounce; paraffin, white, 14 av. ounces; oil of roses, 6 drops. Heat together the first three ingredients until solution is affected (one hour). Melt together the lanoline and paraffin, incorporate the solution by rapid and constant stirring. Then add the oils and mix again. After a warm scrub with the flesh brush dry the arms thoroughly and apply a very little of the ointment. Rub it in until no oily substance is left on the surface of the skin.

Hair Dark and Scalp Dry.

ETHEL M.—Here is the formula for a hair tonic which you may apply every night or several times a week with a small brush, so as not to get the tonic through the hair, massaging your scalp vigorously afterward. I would not advise you to bleach your hair if it is falling out and your scalp is in poor condition. Anything you might use to lighten the hair would at the same time dry the scalp and consequently aggravate the trouble. Take the crown out of a hat brim and try bleaching it in the sun, wearing the brim to shades the face. This is the tonic for a dry scalp: Resorcin, 3 drams; fluid extract of pilocarpin, 3 drams; tincture of cantharides, 4 drams; glycerine, 4 drams; spirits of lavender (compound), 4 drams; castor oil, 2 dram; bay rum, 1 pint. Add the castor oil to the bay rum and shake thoroughly. Afterward add the other ingredients.

A Bad Complexion.

G. R.—The same thing that caused the liver spots on your face undoubtedly caused the pimples, and cosmetics and bleaches will not do any good whatever until you have remedied the cause, which is probably a torpid liver. Get your physician to suggest a remedy or take one of the good old-fashioned ones, and you will soon find a great improvement in your complexion. Here is a formula that will heal the pimples, but will not prevent their returning unless the real cause of the trouble is overcome: Melt together 5 ounces pure lard and 2½ ounces white wax; add ½ ounce balsam of fir, and when it begins to cool stir in ½ ounce carbolic acid. The addition of balsam of fir to this preparation corrects the disagreeable odor of the acid and renders it slightly adhesive, which is desirable.

Baby Has Straight Hair.

MRS. P. S.—Fourteen months is rather early to begin training a baby's hair, since she is not likely to have very much to train at that age. But as her hair begins to grow thicker and longer you may encourage it to curl by fluffing it with the fingers or a very soft brush. Never roll it on papers or curlers if you don't want to take every particle of natural wave out of it. Also, do not use any sort of cosmetics on a baby's hair, which is as tender and delicate as possible. Her second hair may come in curly at any rate or by a little encouragement may at least be induced to be fluffy.

To Reduce Thick Lips.

N. T.—If you have been in the habit of chewing your lips you must overcome it before you can expect to reduce them. Here is the formula requested for reducing thick lips: Mix an ounce of any of the cold creams, add one gram each or pulverized tannin and alkanet chips; let macerate for five hours, then strain through cheesecloth. Apply to the lips when necessary.

Losing Her Eyelashes.

ANNA.—Here is the formula of an ointment which will act as a tonic on the eyebrows: Red vaseline, 2 ounces; tincture of cantharides, ½ ounce; oil of lavender, 15 drops; oil of rosemary, 15 drops. Mix thoroughly. Apply to the eyebrows with a tiny toothbrush once a day until the growth is sufficiently stimulated. Then less often. This ointment may be used for the eyelashes also. In this case it should be very carefully applied. It will inflame the eyes, as any oil will if it gets into them.

The Ever-Delicate Question.

"How old are you, madam?" asked the cross-examining lawyer. The woman blushed deeply, and stammeringly blurted out:

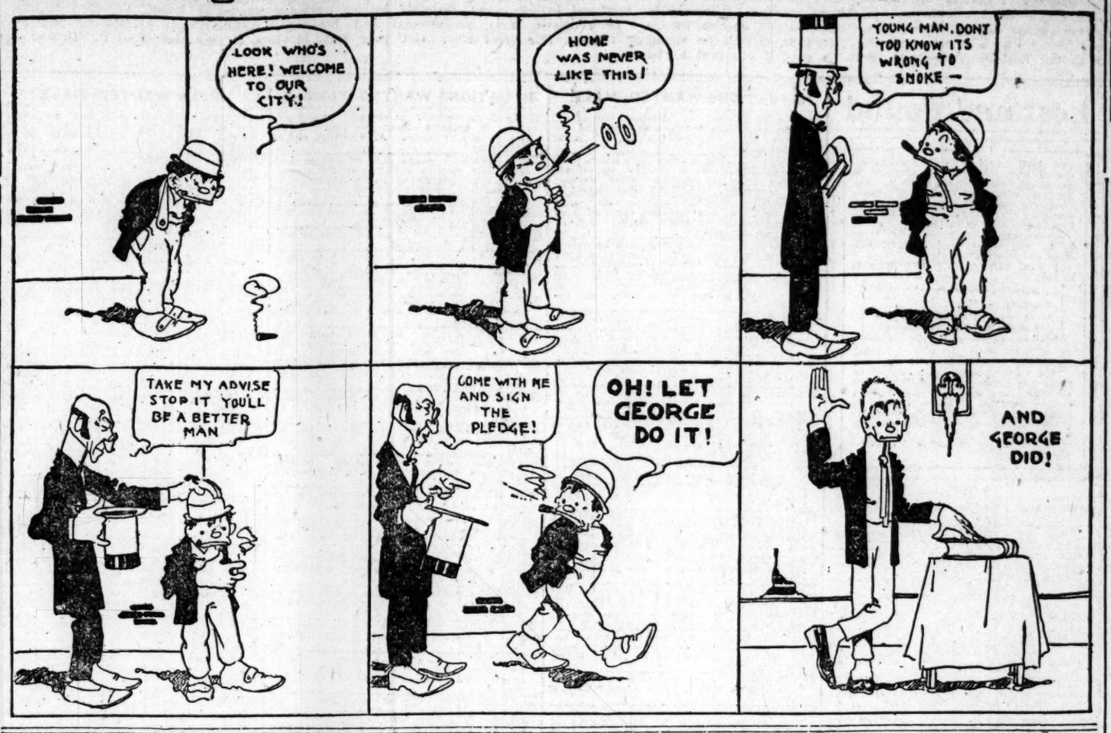

"I—I" and stopped short.

The attorney looked guilty. "Please, madam, quickly," he urged in a gentle, kindly voice; "it's getting worse every minute, you know."

Fussmaker Alone at Delmar

Written for the Post-Dispatch.
BY LINDSAY DENNISON.

MR. FUSSMAKER was irritated with Delmar. This thing of walking up a perfectly respectable-looking stairway and following "This Way Out" signs until he found himself in front of a crowd of very happy people who were shouting hysterically and pointing their fingers at him because he had unsuspectingly walked into a barred cage labelled "The Missing Link"—this walking over to what looked like a free-peep-in-the-slot-and-see-a-moving-picture show, only to have your hat blown off by an ambushed stream of air—these and other things had got on his nerves.

Mr. Fussmaker was tired of being laughed at. He wanted to get away from it all and be quiet.

This time, having found that the "Ferris" wheel could get out of order and keep him up in the air until the coming of the dawn and the Fire Department, he decided to seek subterranean seclusion. He bought a ticket for one of those dark dank boat rides which lead one up and down wooden-bound channels.

When the boat in which he was the only passenger was released, he floated away into the darkness fairly bubbling with the self-appreciation of his new idea. When he reached the darkest part of the underground course, he put out his hand and caught at the wooden side of the canal.

"Now," thought he to himself, "I am quite secure in my meditations. They will never notice that I have not come back to the starting point because I am such an inconspicuous little man, as Mrs. Fussmaker always tells me. And I can sit here until I have all my plans thought out for the rest of the summer. When I am through I merely have to let go and float back out again."

The boat swung around in the current, and bumped a bit against the wooden back. Mr. Fussmaker was astonished to find how little effort was necessary to keep it from floating on with the current.

The very fact of his self comfort warmed him into a belief that the world was not after all a wicked place which tried to make fools of men of small stature. He determined to go out again and mingle with the glad throng and cease being over-sensitive about his own dignity. He let go of the board alongside.

The boat did not move, however. Mr. Fussmaker lighted a match and looked over the side. The water was still racing under him. He tried to push the boat along. It was stuck fast.

If he yelled for help, Mr. Fussmaker realized with a sinking heart he would bring on himself the wrath and jeers of the boat man. If he stayed, he would have to sleep in the boat all night and be late to the office next day.

"Great goodness!s What shall I do?" he murmured to himself.

"Hello, mister," said a voice at his ear.

There was a flood of light. Mr. Fussmaker looked up and saw a 6-year-old girl holding up a strip of canvas and peering at him curiously. He realized suddenly that he had been marooned within six inches of the garden without knowing it. He clambered out to dry, warm safety and gave the little girl five cents to buy candy with. For the first time in his life he had been a fool without being caught at it.

The Circular Staircase

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Miss Rachel Innes tells the story. She and her nephew, Halsey, and niece, Gertrude, take Paul Armstrong's country place, Sunnyside, for the summer, while the Armstrongs are out West. John Bailey, who is engaged to Gertrude, comes to see them. The night of his arrival Arnold Armstrong is found killed in the cardroom at the foot of the circular staircase. Halsey and Bailey disappear, but Halsey comes back. There are many mysterious happenings in the house which Miss Innes and Detective Jamieson cannot explain, though they are sure Halsey and Gertrude could aid them if they would. In the midst of the trouble the Armstrong bank (the Traders') fails. Bailey was an employe of the bank and much of the Innes money was there. His continued absence gives ground for the suspicion that he robbed the bank and that he killed Arnold Armstrong. Paul Armstrong (Arnold's and Louise's father) is reported to have died out West, and a body is taken back for burial. Later the grave is opened and the body found there is not that of Paul Armstrong. Louise Armstrong, to whom Halsey has been paying attention, is found ill in the lodge concealed there by old servants. She recovers and becomes Miss Innes' guest, until her mother comes for her. Halsey goes to see her in the village. Subsequently his automobile is found smashed up, but he cannot be found. Anne Warner is the housekeeper at Sunnyside. She seems to be mixed in the mysterious doings. There is a child in the village called Lucien Walker, of whom no one, not even his caretaker, knows anything. The stables at Sunnyside are burned and during the excitement a stranger is shot. Dr. Walker tries to block Miss Innes' investigations. He is attending Louise Armstrong. A warning is received to look out for Nina Carrington, who Miss Innes does not know. Riggs, a former employe of Dr. Walker, confesses to have had some part in the mystery and identifies a small box pitted woman, who was temporarily employed at Sunnyside as Nina Carrington. She is killed by a train. A tramp brings information of finding a man gagged in a box car going out West. The tramp has Halsey's watch and confesses he stole it from the gagged man. A tramp brings the information that Halsey is in a hospital at Johnstown. Detective Jamieson believes there is a secret room at Sunnyside and someone is searching for it.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Anne Watson's Story.

LIDDY discovered the fresh break in the trunk room wall while we were at luncheon, and ran shrieking down the stairs. She maintained that, as she entered, unseen hands had been digging at the plaster; that they had stopped when she went in, and she had felt a gust of cold damp air. In support of her story she carried in my wet and muddy boots, that I had unluckily forgotten to hide, and held them out to the detective and myself.

"What did I tell you," she said dramatically. "Look at 'em. They're yours, Miss Rachel—and covered with mud and soaked to the tops. I tell you, you can scoff all you like; something has been wearing your shoes. As sure as you sit there, there's the smell of the graveyard on them. How do we know they weren't tramping through the Casanova churchyard last night, and sitting on the graves!"

Mr. Jamieson almost choked to death. "I wouldn't be at all surprised if they were doing that very thing, Liddy," he said, when he got his breath. "They certainly look like it."

I think the detective had a plan, on which he was working, and which was meant to be a coup. But things went so fast there was no time to carry it into effect. The first thing that occurred was a message from the Charity Hospital that Mrs. Watson was dying, and had asked for me. I did not share much in Liddy's going. There is a sort of melancholy pleasure to be had out of a funeral, with its pomp and ceremony, but I shrank from a deathbed. However, Liddy got out the black things and the crepe veil I keep for such occasions, and I went. I left Mr. Jamieson and the day detective going over every inch of the circular staircase, pounding, probing and measuring. I was inwardly elated to think of the surprise I was going to give them that night; as it turned out, I did surprise them—almost into spasms.

I drove from the train to the Charity Hospital, and was at once taken to a ward. There, in a gray-walled room in a high iron bed, lay Mrs. Watson. She was very weak, and she only opened her eyes and looked at me when I sat down beside her. I was conscience-stricken. We had been so engrossed that I had left the poor creature to die without even a word of sympathy.

The nurse gave her a stimulant, and in a little while she was able to talk. So broken and half-coherent, however, was her story that I shall tell it in my own way. In an hour from the time I entered the Charity Hospital, I had heard a sad and pitiful narrative, and had seen a woman slip into the unconsciousness that is only a step from death.

Briefly, then, the housekeeper's story was this:

Anne was almost forty years old, and had been the sister-mother of a large family of children. One by one they had died, and been buried beside their parents in a little town in the Middle West, and only one sister-in-law left, the baby, Lucy. On her the older girl had lavished all the love of an impulsive and emotional nature. When Anne, the elder, was thirty-two and Lucy was nineteen, a young man had come to the town. He was going east, after spending the summer at a celebrated ranch in Wyoming—one of those places where wealthy men send worthless and dissipated sons, for a season of temperance, fresh air and hunting. The sisters, of course, knew nothing of this, and the young man's ardor rather carried them away. In a word, seven years before, Lucy Haswell had married a young man whose name was given as Aubrey Wallace.

Anne Haswell had married a carpenter in her native town, and was a widow. For three months everything went fairly well. Aubrey took his bride to Chicago, where they lived at a hotel. Perhaps the very unsophistication that had charmed him in Valley Mill jarred on him in the city. He had been far from a model husband, even for the three months, and when he disappeared Anne was almost thankful. It was different with the young wife, however. She drooped and fretted, and on the birth of her baby boy, she had died. Anne took the child, and named him Lucien.

Anne had had no children of her own, and on Lucien she had lavished all her aborted maternal instinct. On one thing she was determined, however: that was that Aubrey Wallace should educate his boy. It was a part of her devotion to the child that she should be ambitious for him: he must have every opportunity. And so she came east. She drifted around, doing plain sewing and keeping a home somewhere always for the boy. Finally, however, she realized that her only training had been domestic, and she put the boy in an Episcopalian Home, and secured the position of housekeeper to the Armstrongs. There she found Lucien's father, this time under his own name. It was Arnold Armstrong.

It gathered that there was no particular enmity at that time in Anne's mind. She told him of the boy, and threatened exposure if he did not provide for him. Indeed, for a time, he did so. Then he realized that Lucien was the ruling passion in this lonely woman's life. He found out where the child was hidden, and threatened to take him away. Anne was frantic. The positions became reversed. Where Arnold had given money for Lucien's support, as the years went on he forced money from Anne Watson instead until she was always penniless. The lower Arnold sank in the scale, the heavier his demands became. With the rupture between him and his family, things were worse. Anne took the child from the home and hid him in a farm house near Casanova, on the Claysburg road. There she went sometimes to see the boy, and there he had taken Mary. The people were Germans, and he called the farmer's wife Grossmutter. He had grown into a beautiful boy, and he was all Anne had to live for.

The Armstrongs left for California, and Arnold's persecution began anew. He was furious over the child's disappearance and she was afraid he would do her some hurt. She left the big house and went down to the lodge. When I had rented Sunnyside, however, she had thought the persecutions would stop. She had applied for the position of housekeeper, and secured it.

That had been on Saturday. That night Louise arrived unexpectedly. Thomas sent for Mrs. Watson and then went for Arnold Armstrong at the Greenwood Club. Anne had been fond of Louise—she reminded her of Lucy. She did not know what the trouble was, but Louise had been in a state of terrible excitement. Mrs. Watson tried to hide from Arnold, but he was ugly. He left the lodge and went up to the house about two-thirty, was admitted at the east entrance and came out again very soon. Something had occurred, she didn't know what; but very soon Mr. Innes and another gentleman left, using the car.

Thomas and she had got Louise quiet, and a little before three, Mrs. Watson started up to the house. Thomas had a key to the east entry, and gave it to her.

On the way across the lawn she was confronted by Arnold, who for some reason was determined to get into the house. He had a golf stick in his hand, that he had picked up somewhere, and on her refusal he had struck her with it. One hand had been badly cut, and it was that, poisoning having set in, which was killing her. She broke away in a frenzy of rage and fear, and got into the house while Gertrude and Jack Bailey were at the front door. She went upstairs, hardly knowing what she was doing. Gertrude's door was open, and Halsey's revolver lay there on the bed. She picked it up and turning, ran part way down the circular staircase. She could hear Arnold fumbling at the lock outside. She slipped down quietly and opened the door; he was inside before she had got back to the stairs. It was quite dark, but she could see his white shirt bosom. From the fourth step she fired. As he fell, somebody in the billiard room screamed and ran. When the alarm was raised, she had had no time to get upstairs; she hid in the west wing until every one was down on the lower floor. Then she slipped upstairs, and threw the revolver out of an upper story window, going down again in time to admit the men from the Greenwood Club.

If Thomas had suspected, he had never told. When she found the hand Arnold had injured was growing worse, she gave the address of Lucien at Richfield to the old man, and almost a hundred dollars. The money was for Lucien's board until she recovered. She had sent for me to ask me if I would try to interest the Armstrongs in the child. When she found herself growing worse, she had written to Mrs. Armstrong, telling her nothing but that Arnold's legitimate child was at Richfield, and imploring her to recognize him. She was dying; the boy was an Armstrong, and entitled to his father's share of the estate. The papers were in her trunk at Sunnyside, with letters from the dead man that would prove what she said. She was going; she would not be judged by earthly laws; and somewhere else perhaps Lucy would plead for her. It was she who had crept down the circular staircase, drawn by a magnet, that night Mr. Jamieson had heard some one there. Pursued, she had fled madly, anywhere—through the first door she came to. She had fallen down the clothes chute, and been saved by the basket beneath. I could have cried with relief; then it had not been Gertrude, after all!

That was the story. Sad and tragic though it was, the very telling of it seemed to relieve the dying woman. She did not know that Thomas was dead, and I did not tell her. I promised to look after little Lucien, and sat with her until the intervals of consciousness grew shorter and finally ceased altogether. She died that night.

The Wise Way to Buy Soap

The following is a piece of valuable advice from a celebrated singer, who is famous for her beauty as well as for her voice: Don't trust your nose when you buy soap for your toilet. A delicate and delightful scent may cover a multitude of impurities. Many finely scented soaps are made of rancid fats, or loaded with injurious chemicals that will ruin your skin. Some are doubtless pure, but how can you tell? Buy Hardtus Soap and know that you are safe. Its odor is that of the pure, healing pine tar balsam of which it is made—one of the most soothing, balmy and curative products in Nature's laboratory. Its effects shows how good it is. It is deliciously refreshing. It soon makes the skin clear and velvety—no more roughness, redness, irritation and unsightly yellow 'dead' tints. The clear, clean bloom of a healthy skin is a prize beyond price—don't trifle with it." Don't you want to see what this famous soap will do for your skin? Ask your druggist or any of the following druggists for this splendid soap. 25c a cake, or sent by mail on receipt of 25c. Send for book "The Care of the Skin."

Education.

VICE-ADMIRAL URIU of the Japanese Navy was a member of the class of 1881 at the Naval Academy at Annapolis and has recently been here visiting his classmates and celebrating a reunion with them.

At a dinner given to the vice-admiral when he was in this country one of his classmates told a story on the vice-admiral as an illustration of the progress of the Japanese in the past 30 years.

"Uriu was the most correct and proper person in our class," said the story teller. "He was prim and precise and very reverent. I met him one morning on the parade ground.

"'Good morning,' I said enthusiastically. 'Isn't this a splendid day?'

"'It is, indeed,' Uriu responded gravely, 'and I thank heaven I am here and permitted to enjoy it.'

"When I met Uriu this time, after a lapse of nearly 30 years, I recalled that conversation and said: 'Good morning. Isn't this a splendid day?'

"'It is, indeed,' Uriu replied, 'and will you, for heaven's sake, kindly tell me where I can get a drink?'"—Saturday Evening Post.

MAKE A GOOD BREAKFAST

Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the Woman's Home Companion.

IT is customary to make the first meal of the day slightly the lightest and distinctly the plainest and simplest of the three. If there be any deficiency of the appetite, breakfast is the meal at which this is most likely to show itself. But this lack of appetite is in nine cases out of ten clearly traceable to sleeping in an unventilated room or to late hours in foul air the night before, or to insufficient exercise the preceding day, and is no indication that the body really requires less food at this time. Perfectly healthy men who sleep with their windows open and go to bed at a reasonable hour will tell you that they enjoy their breakfast as well as any other meal of the day, and many even call it their best meal.

Another popular delusion in regard to the lightness and unimportance of the breakfast is that widespread subterfuge, the 'continental breakfast,' consisting of a cup of coffee and some fruit or a single roll. This is a very pretty breakfast as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far; and the sole basis for its adoption on the Continent is that it is only intended as a temporary tide-over, until the real breakfast of meat, eggs, fish, with beer or wine, which is taken at about 10 or 11 o'clock, like a very early luncheon. If you haven't got a good appetite for breakfast, make it your business to go and get one, instead of allowing yourself to be blinded by this morbid state of affairs and deciding that all you really need is a cup of coffee and a roll or an orange or a puff of breakfast bran.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE INCORPORATION OF ST. LOUIS

TO THE FRONT — SAINT LOUIS

During the week of Oct. 3d to 9th inclusive more than 500 Mayors of American Cities will be present in this city to participate in the ceremonies celebrating the Centennial of the Incorporation of St. Louis. Thousands of dollars will be expended in making the event as big a success relatively as the World's Fair, which was a world beater. Here is the program. Four grand pageants illustrating the City's history, utilities, educational merits and industries; spherical balloon races, dirigible balloon contests, aeroplane trials, Veiled Prophet's parade and ball, new municipal building corner stone laying ceremonies; reunions and Jubilee meetings of religious, civic, professional and benevolent organizations; athletic tournaments at the new Fairground Park; illuminations and fireworks. The crest of prosperity's wave will be sweeping through this great city. Get your craft in shape to ride abreast of it. If you need help to do this, telephone your want ads to the Post-Dispatch—your credit is good if you rent a phone.

MARRIED WOMEN

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of childbirth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment will be sent free.

JOHN D. JR. AND HIS WIFE ELECT SCHOOL TRUSTEES AT POCANTICO HILLS DISTRICT Dog That Had Fought With Polecat Came Near Breaking Up the Meeting.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—A dog came near breaking up the Rockefeller School Trustees' election last night in the little schoolhouse at Pocantico Hills, Tarrytown, just as everything was going smoothly, and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. had proved themselves worthy students of practical politics.

The dog, having chased a polecat for a while, sought peace and comfort in the schoolhouse. His entrance was not noticed at first, but presently the chairman, Joseph White, a personal friend of Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller, arose and insisted that the sergeant-at-arms clear the room of whatever objectionable creature, man or beast, it was whose presence was compelling voters to make use of wild and weird cuss words. The dog was routed with a broomstick and order was restored.

The Rockefeller ticket went through without a hitch. The name of Wm. R. Knight, a New York lawyer, was substituted for that of Charles M. Ramsey, a former president of the Board of Trustees. Some opposition developed to Ramsey, who lives on the Rockefeller estate, so John D. Jr. eliminated the opposition by eliminating Ramsey. The voters were mostly Italian workmen and their wives, all employed on the Rockefeller estate, with a fair sprinkling of natives and residents of the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller drove to the schoolhouse and share seats with an Italian family. After the election Mrs. Rockefeller expressed herself as pleased, and was promptly nominated by the board as a visiting committee member.

KEYS SAVE FROM STAB WOUND

A bunch of keys saved Patrolman Cornelius O'Keefe from a probably fatal stab wound early Wednesday. He arrested Pearl Singleton, a negress, in her home at 1406 Chestnut street after she had thrown a clock at another negress. She was barefooted, and when O'Keefe told her to put on her shoes she stooped as if to carry out his order, but instead drew a long-bladed knife from her stocking and slashed at the policeman.

She inflicted one cut four inches long in his back and stabbed at his abdomen, but the blade struck the keys. With the assistance of negroes in the house, O'Keefe disarmed the woman and took her to Central Station.

FINE OF $3 IS LEVIED IN FEUD OF MACEDONIANS

Quarrels in Tri-Cities Are to Be Aired in Higher Courts.

A feud between Nick Alabach of Granite City, richest Macedonian in the Tri-Cities, and T. Evanoff, writer for the Naroden Glas, Granite City's Bulgarian newspaper, was told of in Justice Riggs' court in Granite City Wednesday, when Alabach was fined $3 and costs for disturbing the peace of Mike Jim.

Three warrants, one against Alabach, one against Mike Jim and one against K. D. Moniroff, have been obtained in Edwardsville by Evanoff and will be served on the trio Wednesday night or Thursday. The warrants charge the defendants with threatening Evanoff's life.

There have been several encounters lately between Evanoff and supporters of Alabach. The last one occurred Sunday night. It was the basis of the charges against Evanoff and the four men he is prosecuting.

The Sunday night encounter was at Alabach's coffee house in Hungry Hollow, of which Mike Jim is manager. Mike Jim, Kote and Alabach testified that Evanoff was "snooping" around and disturbed their peace. Evanoff said he was disturbing no one's peace, but that his own life was threatened.

Justice Riggs thought Evanoff should have kept away from Alabach's coffee house under the circumstances and fined him. Evanoff took an appeal to the County Court.

LEXINGTON (KY.) OFFICIALS OUSTED FOR ELECTION FRAUD

Court Decides That Mayor, City Attorney and City Assessor Must Retire.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 4.—Judge Watts Parker today handed down a decision setting aside the 1907 election in Lexington on the grounds of proven fraud and violence. The decision ousts from office Mayor John Skain, City Attorney Muir, Jailer Masner and City Assessor Doyle. All other officeholders would have been ousted had it not been found impossible to push all the cases because of the work involved.

This is the second time in two years that high officers of a Kentucky city have been ousted by the courts because of election frauds. In 1907 the entire administration of Louisville was swept out by the Court of Appeals because of fraud in the 1905 election. The ousted Mayor, Paul C. Barth, ended his life a short time after.

The Lexington election was also marked by tragedy. Clyde Campbell, a Republican worker, was shot and killed at the polls by Policeman Murphy, who was himself killed by Campbell's father. The elder Campbell was tried three times and when the courts found it impossible to agree the case was dismissed.

Judge Parker is a Democrat and the ousted officers are Democrats.

ST. LOUIS WILL BE CENTER OF A NEW WEATHER DISTRICT

New Forecaster, J. Warren Smith, Will Take Charge Here Aug. 15.

With the coming of J. Warren Smith, new United State Weather Forecaster, St. Louis will become the central station of a new weather observation district, to be known as the Upper Mississippi Valley District.

This will mean heavier work for the St. Louis office than was handled during the time Edward H. Bowie was in charge. Mr. Bowie is now district forecaster at Washington and his family has gone there with him. Mr. Smith will arrive about Aug. 15. He has been in the Weather Bureau since 1888, and has been stationed at Helena, Mont., and at Boston.

The whole country has been redistricted in an effort to improve the observance of climatological conditions. Formerly there were 45 districts. Now there are to be 15 districts. They will be the North Atlantic, South Atlantic, Lower Mississippi Valley, Upper Mississippi Valley, Ohio Valley, Lake region, St. Lawrence Valley, Missouri Valley, Rio Grande Valley, Southern slope of the Rocky Mountains, Colorado Valley and Southwestern slope of the Rocky Mountains, California, Nevada and Columbia River Valley.

RAILROAD LIST IRREGULAR IN TODAY'S TRADE

Small Fractional Gains Shown in Majority of Securities at Opening.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Only a few conspicuous changes were shown by opening prices of stocks today, small fractional gains being in the majority and small declines in the minority. Great Northern Ore certificates advanced 1¼, St. Paul and Kansas City Southern ⅝. General Electric declined.

In a general way, the early trading showed a continuation of the advance in most of the specialties, while the railroad list, after fitful advances, became irregular on realizing, dragging donw some of the active specialties. American Agricultural Chemical advanced 2½, Railway Steel Spring 2, Illinois Central 1¾, American Car 1⅝, and Pennsylvania, American Locomotive and some other industrials 1 or more. Union Pacific reached 202¾ and Pennsylvania touched 142 before there was a general drift downword.

The sharp did carried Reading 1¼ below last night and Rock Island, Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Republic Steel and American Ice 1. The tone became steadier afterwards when Consolidated Gas moved upwards 2¼, American Woolen and Central Railroad of New Jersey 2, and a number of others a point or more. American Express sold at an advance of 4¾.

Bonds were irregular.

A fresh attack on the Harriman stocks sent them down to the lowest price of the day and caused a general decline. Later, buying of United States Steel pulled up the list a fraction. Central Railroad of New Jersey extended its rise to 5 points and American Steel Foundries also gained 1⅜ and Interborough Metropolitan preferred 1. Keokuk and Des Moines jumped 3½ and the preferred 5 points.

Trading was smaller in volume in the afternoon but the undertone grew better because of the support given to United States Steel and other leaders. Great Northern Ore certificates improved 3 points, American Hide and Leather preferred 1½, and Western Maryland 1⅜.

East St. Louis News

The Board of Public Improvements overruled objections Tuesday and authorized the paving of Fifteenth street from the V. & C. Belt Railroad to the Lansdowne lagoon, at a cost of $16,500. It is also planned to extend the street east from the lagoon on Waverly place to Harding avenue, East Lansdowne, thence to the Caseyville road. The boulevard plan was decided upon, with [illegible]-foot paved roadways on each side of the car tracks. The trolley poles will be placed in the center and a double track system installed on the boulevard. The center of the street between the inner curbs will be maintained at the expense of the street car company.

For the first time in the history of East St. Louis the postoffice will be closed on account of a local celebration next Thursday, when the Retail Merchants' picnic will be given. Postmaster J. B. Messick obtained permission from the Government to close the office at noon. The merchants will celebrate at Lansdowne Park.

Arrangements are under way in East St. Louis Oct. 25 for the dedication of the new Federal Building. On the invitation of Congressman W. A. Rodenberg, President Taft, Vice-President Sherman and Speaker Cannon will attend the festivities, accompanied by the governors of about thirty states, who will accompany the President to the Deep Waterways convention at New Orleans. The largest crowd that has ever gathered in East St. Louis is expected to attend the exercises. Committees from the various civic societies will be appointed to complete the plans.

The funeral of Mrs. Caroline Metzen, 86 years old, who died Tuesday of senility, at the home of her grandson, John Metzen, 54[illegible] North Twelfth street, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. from the German Evangelical Church to Mount Hope Cemetery. She is survived by two sons. She was the widow of the late John P. Metzen, who owned the property upon which the Broadway Opera House stands, and which was platted into city lots when East St. Louis outgrew its boundary at Tenth street.

The police have been asked to find Robert Fanches, 16 years old, of 1121 Gaty avenue, who disappeared Monday night. He seemed heartbroken when he lost his job as messenger boy at the C. P. & St. L. freight house Monday morning, and did not return to his home.

Republicans were surprised Tuesday when it was announced that County Judge John B. Hay had ordered the expenses of the East St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners cut by abandoning the office of assistant clerk. This position has been held several months by B. V. Chase. M. D. Baker has been chief clerk several years, and by Judge Hay's order he will be required to do all the clerical work of the office except during elections. It is said that former Postmaster H. F. Bader is slated for membership on the Board at the expiration of the term of B. H. Canby this fall.

The last one of the triplets born to Mrs. Ira A. Crum of 518 North Eighth street at St. Mary's Hospital Monday died Tuesday night, and was buried Wednesday afternoon at Mount Carmel Cemetery. The three infants, two boys and a girl, were buried in the same grave. Mrs. Crum is recovering.

At a meeting of the Catholic Parade Union Tuesday night at St. Patrick's school hall arrangements were made for all the Catholic parishes and societies in the city to participate in the parade, preceding the laying of the corner-stone of St. Francis Regis Church in Alta Sita Aug. 15. President M. J. Walsh was chairman of the meeting and A. B. Suess was secretary. Another meeting will be held at the school hall Aug. 11, when delegates from all parishes and societies will complete arrangements and elect a grand marshal.

Leroy Bigamy, an army veteran, was found dead in bed Wednesday morning at the home of his daughter, 224 North Second street. He had arranged to enter the Soldiers' Home at Quincy. An inquest will be held at the Degen-Doussard morgue.

W. K. Cody, 40 years old, died Wednesday morning at his home, 218 Bowman avenue. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

The Building Trades Council and Central Trades and Labor Union met Tuesday night and decided to hold a joint Labor day celebration at Lansdowne Park, Sept. 6. The officers were: President, John Sweeney; vice-president, J. H. O'Flaherty; secretary, B. D. Warren, and treasurer, J. F. Barr. The principal speakers will be C. H. Fontleroy of St. Louis and T. R. Mould of Belleville. The Board of Marshals from each union will meet Thursday night at 318 Missouri avenue to select a grand marshal and arrange for a parade.

Make a safe investment. Put your money into home furnishings bought at Rhodes-Burford's. A little money down, the balance monthly.

DEATHS.

CHERRY—Entered into rest on Tuesday, Aug. 3, 1909, at 7:50 p. m., infant son of H. P. and N. M. Cherry (nee Bartley), grandson of H. A. and R. F. Bartley.

FINANCIAL ITEMS

New prices of the United States Steel Corporation for steel bars, angles, plates and beams, have become operative. Sales of steel bars are now being made on a basis of $1.30 Pittsburg; and plates, beams and angles, $1.40 Pittsburg. The advance is equivalent to $1 a ton in all the foregoing classes of steel.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 4.—Utah Copper is making a new record in the matter of production. Its output during July was greater than any previous month since the two mines were fully commissioned. David C. Jackling, general manager of the company, says that they are getting the best transportation facilities that they have had at any previous date, and that the pits are opened up in a manner that they can increase the output by 25 per cent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Committee on Stock List of the New York Stock Exchange has listed the following securities: The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Co.'s $4,077,000 additional capital stock, making the total amount listed $30,277,000, and the Southern Railway Co.'s $1,572,000 additional first consolidated mortgage 5 per cent bonds, making the total amount listed $52,710,000.

The first chapter of Steel common as a speculation was, of course, its issue and sale to the public.

Morgan owned largely in the Bridge Trust and Tube Trust; the Moore Bros. in the Wire Trust; Carnegie was in rails and billets; Rockefeller was in ore and Lake Superior transportation, and the public held Federal Steel, paying 4 per cent, and fluctuating between 40 and 70.

Figures just published by the Canadian Government indicate a rapid increase in the percentage of trade between the United States and Canada and a rapid and steady decline in the percentage of trade with Great Britain, as shown in the following table:

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Money has been hardening slowly for several weeks. The change was hardly perceptible at any time, but will be more noticeable from this time. Rates on brokers' paper range between 4 and 4½ per cent at the commercial banks. Collateral loans are generally at 4½ per cent, or ½ per cent higher than a couple of weks ago. Counter loans vary from 4½ to 5 per cent.

July bank clearings gained 17.3 per cent, against a June gain of 24½ per cent, and a seven months' gain of 17.9 per cent. July was the third biggest month this year, and showed the fourth highest gain, also establishing a new July record.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—On call, money is still generally quoted at 2¼ per cent; the demand does not seem sufficiently large to permit of a higher quotation than that. Bankers believe, however, that the next change will be upward. In time money rates are higher for all dates over 90 days. Very little trouble is experienced in obtaining 90-day money at 3½ to 3¾ per cent, but for six months, 4 per cent is practically the minimum, as against 3½ per cent a week or 10 days ago.

BOND MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The volume of bond transactions last week was on a level with that of the past fortnight. Stock Exchange figures show a loss of approximately one million dollars in total sales, as compared with the preceding week, but the market had a definite character throughout the entire six days. Early in the week no pronounced activity was evident in trading in the various convertible bonds, but at the close they were the center of attention. Of the five leading issues, four are of this kind. There was heavy trading in Western Union convertible 4s. Their activity during the week is particularly noticeable, because during the previous week less than $250,000 was sold, with a closing price of 89¼. This week's transactions carried them upward about seven points.

Daily transactions on the Stock Exchange averaged about $3,500,000, comparing as follows, with the corresponding days of 1908:

	1909.	1908.
Monday	$2,059,500	$2,359,500
Tuesday	4,280,000	2,331,500

COFFEE MARKET.

The week's clearances of coffee from Rio were 32,000 bags and Santos clearances were 293,000 bags. Santos shipments were 297,000 bags.

Victoria clearances to the United States were 16,000 bags and to Europe 2000 bags.

Bahia weekly receipts were nil with stock 10,000 bags. Bahia clearances for the week were nil to the United States, 200 to Germany and nil elsewhere.

ST. LOUIS MONEY MARKET

Some of the banks report a substantial increase in loans since the beginning of the month. The effects of the cotton movement have not as yet been felt, although the banks have been daily looking for this feature to become more and more evident. Interest rates are 4½ to 5 per cent on the best paper for three and four months' accommodations. On demand loans were made fractionally higher today at 4¼ and 4½ per cent.

NATIVE CATTLE—There was another moderate run of natives. Quality included some good cattle, top steers selling up to $7.10. Not many first-class heifers were offered, but cow supplies included some attractive stock. All classes of good cattle sold actively and at prices strong to 10c higher. Common to medium kinds held steady and in a few instances perhaps were a shade better sale than yesterday. Calves irregular at the recent decline. Stock cattle showed no appreciable change.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—There were around 2000 head received in the quarantine division. The market proved in good shape, ruling fully a dime higher. Bulk of the offerings ran to steers and were fairly good in quality. Buyers took hold readily throughout and the movement displayed activity. Oklahoma steers brought $5 and cows moved up to $3.55. Continued light receipts of Southern stock have materially helped the market during the past few days and it would not be surprising if this stimulated future shipments.

HOGS—The supply of hogs was again very small and the receipts for the week so far not as much as half as large as was received during the corresponding time of last year. The market was draggy and prices on a steady basis with yesterday. Good hogs were scarce. The top of the market was $7.90 for selected hogs for shipment to an eastern slaughterer, while the bulk of the hogs sold at $7.60@7.80. The packers were bearish and cared but little whether they purchase any hogs or not. Pigs and lights unless strictly good were 15@25c lower, making them on the lowest basis for two or three weeks.

HORSES AND MULES—The auction supply was of light volume today and only a short session was held in the ring. The market was strong on all classes of horses and the movement was regular under a good demand from the South and East.

The mule market was rather draggy. Holdings in commission alleys amounted to 125 head and a number of fresh arrivals went direct to dealers. The better grades of miners and big finished mules were scarce and in good demand, but small and medium mules were slow sellers.

INDEPENDENT STOCKYARDS.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.

CATTLE—Market steady with sales of the first two days of the week.

Some sales of choice butcher stuff look a little higher, but the sales of the common kinds fully offset this by being some lower.

Some choice butcher stuff, steers and heifers sold at $5.25, with bulk of heifers and steers of fair to good quality at $3.75 to $4.25; best cows available at $4.25; grass-fat cows, $3.50 to $4; cutters, $2.50 to $3.25; canners, $1.50 to $2.25; bull market steady, with bulk of receipts, 900 to 1300 pounds, at $3.25 to $3.60; milkers lower than this time last week; choice veals, $7; bulk, $6 to $6.75; heavy calves and heretics, $3.50 to $5.

HOGS—A very light run on sale today, with no choice hogs among them. Market was steady to 5c higher, with packers buying light mixed kinds at $7.25 to $7.50. Butchers paid $7.60 to $7.80, but better hogs would have brought $8. Good quality pigs, 160 pounds and under, $7.10 to $7.60; lights, 210 pounds and under, $6.65 to $7; common to fair, [illegible] to $6. Everything sold at the close, wi[illegible] buyers looking for more hogs.

RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

Regarding the rumor that Illinois Central is about to issue the $15,000,000 of stock held in the treasury, a director of the road said to the Wall Street Journal: "There is absolutely no foundation for the report. The matter has not been discussed by the board, if indeed it has ever been mentioned."

The report of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. for the month of June and 12 months ended June 30, compares as follows:

	1909.	1908.	1907.
June gross	$2,033,018	$1,928,966	$2,097,104
Ex. & tax.	1,545,455	1,467,594	1,712,611
June net.	$487,563	$461,372	$384,493
12 mos. gr.	$26,144,065	$26,029,052	$26,771,528
Ex. & tax.	18,062,899	20,043,795	20,442,027
12 mos. net.	$8,081,166	$5,985,257	$6,329,501

The Rutland Railroad holds a unique position among the country's transportation properties. The total of stock and bonds outstanding, per mile of road owned, Dec. 31, 1908, was $52,111. Of this amount $500 is represented by common stock and $22,811 by 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock. The most interesting feature is, that on the latter, cumulative dividends to the amount of 180 per cent are unpaid, or on the present capitalization, a total of no less than $16,662,600.

WHEAT FIRMS UP, RECOVERS LOSSES

Prices Work Up From Early Declines on Short Covering and Close Steady.

Sentiment in the local wheat pit, influenced mainly by the clear, cool and favorable weather in the Northwest, continued decidedly bearish. During Wednesday's session the several rather bullish factors were overlooked and a liberal volume of long liquidation, in conjunction with a poor buying power, caused a further downward movement. Trading was again light and the market listless at the steadily lowering range of values. Late in the day, however, there was a good volume of short covering and the market, having become largely oversold, readily responded. The early losses were recovered and the market closed steady, unchanged to ¼c lower for the day.

Advices from the Northwest state that the splendid weather of the past week has forced the crop to mature rapidly and that it is now beyond much danger. A liberal harvest is expected and this discrediting of the rust complaints was one of the principal factors responsible for the bearish attitude of the pit crowd.

Liverpool market, after opening weak in sympathy with our previous decline and on the continued good weather in the United Kingdom, was influenced to a steadier tone by claims that the American wheat arriving there was not, in many cases, coming up to the contract grade. This was contested. Prices in the English market at the close were relatively steady, after our decline of Tuesday. It was said, according to cables, that a good demand for American wheat existed in Liverpool, but our seaboard reported few export bids and at [illegible] levels.

The Ohio and Kentucky State reports were decidedly bullish, both showing poorer conditions than indicated by the Government and previous State reports and both placing the yields far below last year's.

These, together with the comparatively firm cables, caused a steady opening in the local market. It soon became evident, however, that the market possessed little support. Besides the excellent prospect in the Northwest, favorable weather for harvesting and shipping wheat prevails in the winter wheat belt. Country offerings are liberal. Receipts at the local market and at other terminals of this region are very heavy. The continued heavy movement is proving burdensome and stocks at most points are increasing.

Depression developed as the session progressed, the steady opening levels being soon lost and a downward movement started. Toward noon the market ruled dull and sluggish at sharply lower levels.

September wheat opened a shade higher at $1.00½, declined to $1.00¼, rallied to $1.00[illegible] and declined to 99⅝. December wheat opened unchanged at $1.00⅝, declined to 99⅝c and rallied to 99¾c. May wheat started with offerings ⅛c lower at $1.0[illegible] was offered down to $1.03⅜ and sold at $1.03½.

OFFICER IN SUIT CALLS HIS WIFE AN ARMY FLIRT

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4.—Lieut. Hans F. Weusthoff, who recently quit the army service in the Philippines, has filed suit here for divorce.

Mrs. Weusthoff was one of the handsomest women in San Antonio, Tex., when she was married to the Lieutenant in 1889. When he was ordered to the Philippines to take charge of the Philippine scouts she accompanied him.

One day when he returned to camp from an engagement with the hostile natives of Luzon, he found her missing, he says. She had taken his horses, carriage and dogs. He learned that she had gone to Camp Connell and also that she was particularly friendly with a clique of young officers and that they had quarreled over her during his absence. He then obtained leave of absence and followed her, "to get the horses and dogs," according to the petition.

He mentions particularly William Quinten, a young officer. Her actions in the camp, says the petition, "created public scandal," and because of the attentions the officers were showing her she was ordered away by the commanding officer of the camp. She returned to Camp Jossman, where, it is charged, she flirted until she was ordered to leave "for the good of the service."

CANNON EXPECTS $6000 AUTO TO MATCH $15 SUIT

Speaker Does Not Hope to Set the Style in "Gents' Furnishings."

SOCKS—15 CENTS FOR 2

Underwear at 50 Cents Per Section Not Danvillian's Only Economy.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.

UNCLE JOE CANNON'S sartorial splendor is built from the principle of 50-cent underwear, and is of a brilliancy not adapted to a $6000 automobile. Never a handsome man, the Speaker has long ago foregone the ambition of fixing men's styles in America, like King Edward does in England.

Still the plain simplicity of the doughty gavel wielder has its effect on the lower house of Congress, and every man-jack in the body, from the oldest down to the baby statesman, likes to wear the coolest of cool clothing in the summer.

It is not what is known as a lead-pipe cinch that the Speaker will get his automobile by congressional appropriation, but the wiseacres say it is a pretty good bet that he will. All was going serenely with the appropriation for $12,000 to buy one for the Speaker and one for the President of the Senate, when Simms of Tennessee, who pretends to be a friend of Mr. Cannon, made a point of order against the amendment and knocked it out temporarily.

Not long ago Speaker Cannon was the possessor of a homespun North Carolina suit of clothes. His socks were of woolen and knit by an old lady from Guilford, N. C. Not to be outdone by Guilford, a man in Charleston sent him a pair of home-made suspenders made by his grandmother.

The Speaker likes this sort of thing. A few days ago he turned up in an ice-cream suit of gray. "Now, here's an item for you," he said to a newspaper friend. "A man gave me the cloth for this suit, and do you know what I did? I took it to the tailor fellow and had him make this up."

Then Uncle Joe spun around on a pair of $4 black calfskin shoes and showed off the suit, which must have cost at least fifteen dollars to make.

Hats Worry His Secretary.

The constant worry of Uncle Joe's secretary, L. White Busbey, is Mr. Cannon's hats. The Speaker will wear any hat which is handy. He might have paid $6 for his two-gallon top hat, $5 for his opera hat, but $4 has been his limit for derbies and $3.50 for the summer lids.

They sell straw hats in Washington at the fag end of the summer for a dollar and a quarter, and it is rumored, though still unverified, that the Speaker likes to buy them and spring brand-new ones on his friends the following spring.

Fifteen-cent and two-bit stockings are to his liking. He is as reckless about their color as he is about their price. For neckties, he chooses the black variety in winter and the tub ties in summer. These ties can be bought on the open market for anything ranging from 29 cents to 75 cents, with the accent on the 29.

Then Uncle Joe wears a cigar. There is no economy in this part of his adornment. Speaking of cigars, the Speaker likes to tell this cigar story:

An Irishman who had made a fortune at contracting invited a number of friends to dinner. At the end of the meal the waiters passed around 80-cent cigars, done up in tinfoil and double rows of gilt bandages.

One of the guests, an excavation contractor in a small way, drew one and peeled it. He stuck the cigar in his mouth, bit off an inch and blew it to the floor. The rough edge of the stub tickled his lips and he bit off another gob. At the third bite, when the cigar had been reduced to a quarter of its length, the host interfered.

"Pat," he pleaded, "that's a good cigar."

"Is that so?" murmured Pat, surveying the weed critically. "I'm gittin' so I doan't know the diffrunce between a fiver and a tin-cinter."

HARMONY OF 15-CENT SOCKS, $6000 AUTO AND DANVILLE COMPOSURE

These incongruities of attire and equipage will be shown, a Post-Dispatch artist believes, if the appropriation of $6000 for an automobile for the Speaker of the House is put in the emergency appropriation bill now before Congress. The Speaker had a machine of his own which was fairly satisfactory until the amendment was introduced. Then he shipped his own machine home to Danville.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Augustus Callas, proprietor of a candy store, was thrown against a counter and suffered fractures of both legs last night when a soda water fountain exploded in his store.

Pretender Wills $2,000,000 to Pope.

ROME, Aug. 3.—The will of the late Don Carlos, the pretender to the throne of Spain, leaves to the Pope works of art and money totaling $2,000,000 in value.

PETTY CRIMINALS SIT ON $10,000 BENCHES DURING TRIAL IN OLD COURTROOM

Walnut Furniture, Purchased in 1868, Has Increased Enormously in Value.

The old Court of Criminal Correction, at the Four Courts, presided over by Judge Wilson A. Taylor, has the most valuable furnishings of any courtroom in St. Louis. Judge Taylor says furniture experts tell him the walnut benches and desks in the old courtroom are worth not less than $10,000.

These benches are occupied every day by hundreds of petty criminals who are caught in the meshes of the law. Negroes by the score can be seen seated on them every day. Very few people who pass in and out of the courtroom have any idea of the great value of the furniture.

"The benches were put in there in 1868, when walnut lumber was cheap," said Judge Taylor to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Since then walnut lumber has become scarce and expensive, and lumber experts say the old benches, seasoned as they are, would be excellent material for veneering.

"I have in my office a very fine old walnut desk. It is hand-carved, and was not considered very valuable when it was put in, but it is worth a large sum now. If the city should decide to sell the furniture in the courtroom, lumber experts tell me it would bring not less than $10,000."

THE HONEST PROPRIETARY MEDICINE has saved thousands of dollars to families who could ill afford the expense necessary to maintain the service of a physician, and have answered the purpose equally as well and often succeeded after our best physicians have failed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is one of this kind.

NERVOUS DISEASES

Do you feel that you are not the man you once were? Do you feel tired in the morning and easily exhausted? Is your back lame? Is your memory failing? Do you have difficulty in concentrating your thoughts? Do you notice a loss of ambition? If you suffer from any or all of the above symptoms you certainly do not desire to remain so. What you want is to be made strong and vigorous mentally, as nature intended.

RESULTS GUARANTEED IN 30 TO 60 DAYS.

BLOOD DISEASES

May be either hereditary or contracted. The former causes eczema, rheumatism, pains, etc. The latter begins with a small pimple, followed by sores in the mouth and throat, which have the appearance of white patches, spots or sores on the body, face or scalp, falling hair and eyebrows, and later on other terrible symptoms, such as paralysis or locomotor ataxia, cancerous looking growths, decayed bones and flesh.

RESULTS IN 90 DAYS.

Symptoms disappear in 1 to 8 weeks.

BLOOD POISON

Cured, Never to Return

Entirely removed from the System—Not "Locked In," Like Ordinary Treatments and Patent Medicines Do, to Again Reappear.

Our Treatment Cures All Symptoms, So You Nor Any One Would Know You Ever Had the Trouble.

ALSO SKIN DISEASES, ECZEMA, PIMPLES, ITCHING, BURNING and DISCOLORATIONS of the SKIN.

TO CURE BLOOD POISON it must be entirely removed from the system. The treatment we give you acts so quickly by neutralizing the poison that you can almost feel it being cast out every day, and creates fresh, pure blood, cleansing and building up the system so there is no come back to it.

Your advantage in treating with us is that when you are cured you will stay cured, and the treatment does not injure your stomach and cause bone pains like strong mineral mixtures.

We also treat with the same success Nervous Debility, Men's Urinary Troubles, Kidney, Bladder Diseases, and other affections of men.

WE CHARGE NOTHING TO PROVE OUR METHODS WILL CURE YOU.

We GUARANTEE TREATMENT TO COST YOU NOTHING unless you are absolutely cured and satisfied, and we give you a written certificate to return every dollar you pay us.
